Self-Appointed Analysts Oddly Silent

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — More than just the Public Order (temporary) Measures Act was swept into the dustbin of history Friday midnight.

Along with it went all the garbage prattled for months by many self-appointed spokesmen and interpreters of the French fact in Canada.

Strangely silent now are the likes of Claude Ryan, Rene Levesque, Michel Chartrand, Robert Lemieux in Quebec and Peter Newman and Ronald Haggart in Toronto.

Besides not being elected by the downtrodden people they claimed to represent these and lesser-known experts had a common bond in their sometimes vitriolic denunciation of the act as a brutal measure imposed by English Canada on French Canada.

Counter arguments that the federal government was acting at the behest of Quebec's elected representatives were scorned as transparent deception.

'WEAK-KNEED'

To Quebec, brilliant, avant-garde Robert Bourassa had proved to be a disappointing strawman who was too weak-kneed as premier to dare seek repressive legislation.

To them it was obvious a power-mad Prime Minister Trudeau had twisted his arm until he whimpered for help to give the constitutional excuse for launching a Machiavellian vendetta against the hated separatists.

It was all a cynical federalist plot to isolate and silence Quebec's separatist's and intelligentsia, the country was assured from countless public platforms as Parti Quebecois, FLQ members and sympathizers of both hit the fund-raising circuit to make hay while their sun shone.

The arch-priests of logic reacted predictably when public opinion polls showed even Quebecers didn't believe them. They merely heaped scorn on the polls and shifted their itineraries to address more audiences outside Quebec where the money and true believers abounded.

ONE THEORY

Courageously they railed against the secretly-pleased premiers of English Canada who had looked on in hyper-critical silence at Quebec's agony under federal storm troopers and fascist police powers.

At least that's how the theory of a federal conspiracy to grind down Quebec went.

It was all so clear until the reaction Friday to Ottawa's decision to let the Public Order Act lapse exposed the theory as transparently untrue.

Almost to a man premiers and leading citizens throughout all the provinces save one have expressed pleasure and relief with the federal decision.

PROOF?

The exception was Quebec's complaisant Bourassa who bitterly castigated Ottawa for ignoring his vehement demands that the legislation he asked for be extended beyond the federal deadline and that the FLQ be specifically outlawed forever.

In logic wasn't his outburst another proof of federal arm-twisting?

So where were the conspiracy theorists who argued so stridently such a short time ago that theirs was the only logical interpretation of what really happened between the two governments during the FLQ crisis?

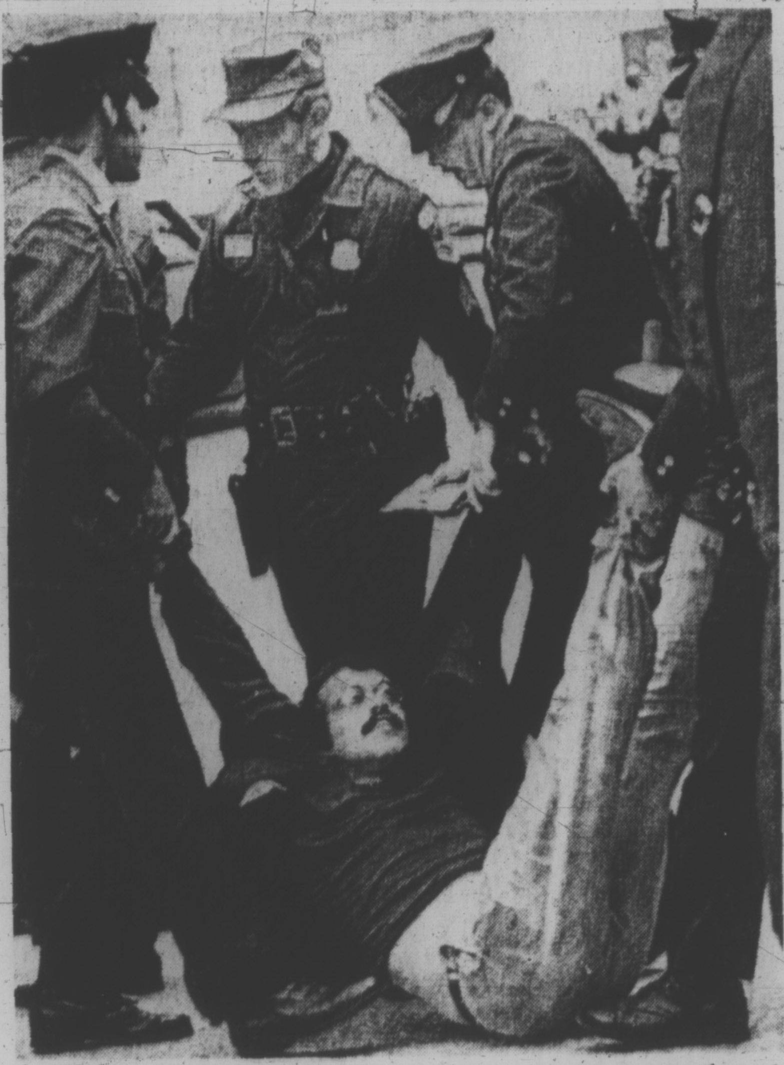
Sometimes silence is almost as deafening.



ANTIWAR DEMONSTRATOR gets carried away by Washington police today from entrance to Justice Department. Two hundred others were also arrested, running the total of persons arrested in the last week to over 1,000 by police count. (AP Wirephoto)

Troops Ready For Protest Confrontation

Demonstrators Plan Disruption

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hundreds of military policemen standing ready just across the Potomac, anti-war demonstrators are drumming up support for militant activities they hope will disrupt the United States government.

The U.S. defence department announced early today that as a precaution it transferred "a few hundred personnel of the 519th Military Police Battalion from Fort Meade, Md., to Fort Myer, Va."

That puts the troops within two miles of the four main Potomac River bridges over which thousands of federal employees commute from suburban Virginia into the District of Columbia every working day.

The demonstrators—in their most ambitious campaign in the capital since the Vietnam war began—have made those bridges and other key traffic intersections in the Washington area targets for disruption Monday and Tuesday.

By tying up traffic at those 21 points, the protesters contend, they can bring the federal city to a halt.

CITY READY

But the federal city is ready, officials say.

Deputy Attorney-General Richard Kleindienst called threats to shut down the government "just a lot of hot air." He said 7,300 police and National Guard troops will be on hand to prevent traffic tieups. The Pentagon added six helicopters to the force, some choppers to ferry high officials to work, others big enough to move cars from the highways.

The demonstrators launched a series of rock concerts to boost crowds for the Monday and Tuesday tieups.

Many of the youthful campers streamed into the city overnight to join an estimated 1,500 who had camped just west of the Tidal Basin below the Lincoln Memorial.

Friday, 335 anti-war protesters were arrested at the justice department where they blocked every entrance to the building in a sit-down campaign. The arrests brought to 1,200 the number made by Washington police during a week of demonstrations on Capitol Hill and at various governmental agencies.

PREDICTS 50,000

Rennie Davis, a demonstration organizer, predicted that up to 50,000 persons will be on hand for the sit-ins.

Police estimated far fewer. Briefings held on Capitol Hill for members of Congress included estimates of 5,000 to 10,000. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, one of those briefed, said officials assured him there will be no encirclement of the Capitol, which had been predicted.

And Kleindienst promised official Washington the

Cambodia Premiership Still Open

PHNOM PENH (AP) — A third Cambodian declined today to take the premiership, and Chief of State Cheng Heng once more turned to the army.

He asked Brig.-Gen. In Tam, president of the National Assembly, to try to form a new government after one of his own advisers, Choup Hell, said he could not undertake the task.

The government crisis began when Gen. Lon Nol, partly paralysed from a stroke, announced Thursday he would stick to his decision announced April 20 to resign.

Cheng Heng then called on Deputy Premier Sisowath Sirik Matak to take the premiership. Sirik Matak declined.

In Tam, 51, is one of the more popular army officers. He is governor of Kompong Cham province. This region encompasses the important eastern sector where the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese maintain major bases. He helped to overthrow Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Jack Scott Wins Top Writing Award

Times columnist Jack Scott has been awarded a $500 first prize in the 13th annual MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. journalism competition, company chairman J. V. Clyne announced Friday night.

SCOTT

Scott's winning entry was an eight-part series titled: "Victoria — A Search for Identity" which appeared in the Times in February of 1970.

In it he explored the provincial capital's environment, culture, economic problems and prospects.

Awards totalling $1,700 were presented by MacMillan-Bloedel in two categories: writers on British Columbia daily newspapers with over 25,000 circulation and those working for dailies with under 25,000 circulation.

Rex Malthouse of the Nanaimo Free Press received the $500 first award for smaller dailies for a feature article explaining the purpose and success of experiments on Vancouver Island to increase size and population of salmon by adding fertilizer to lake water.

VETERAN NEWSMAN

Scott, 57, is a veteran Canadian newsman who has worked as an international correspondent and was a long featured columnist with the Vancouver Sun. He started with the News Herald in Vancouver when he was 15.

A national newspaper awards winner, he came to Victoria after five years abroad as roving reporter for the Toronto Daily Star. He spent two years as the first resident Canadian correspondent in Latin America and later headed the London bureau of the Star covering Britain, Europe and the Middle East.

Other assignments have included the Mau-Mau rebellion in Kenya, the six-day Arab-Israeli war and the "missile crisis" in Cuba.

He earlier won a Bowater award for a series on developing nationalism within French Canada.

Among other winners announced Friday night was Colonist columnist Gorde Hunter. He received a $100 honorable mention award for three columns about the non-medical use of drugs, including a critical analysis of the LeDain Commission interim report on the subject.

Ceylon Rebels Surrender To Authorities

COLOMBO (Reuter) — Large numbers of insurgents began surrendering to Ceylon government forces today—the start of a four-day period set by Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike for them to give themselves up.

An order has gone out to all security forces mopping up the last strongholds of terrorists in various parts of the country instructing them to hold their fire.

A government spokesman said that security forces who up until Friday were continuing their offensive against the extreme left-wing insurrection have been ordered not to launch any offensives unless they are attacked.

The spokesman said that while large numbers are surrendering several hard-core insurgents are still on the rampage, killing civilians, looting stores and food stores and destroying public and private buildings.

He said that about 300 insurgents already have surrendered, but he did not make clear when they had done so. He said about 3,000 insurgents, including those captured and others arrested as suspects, now are in the island's jails.

Those who surrender will be held in army camps until they are moved to rehabilitation centres now being set up.

W. Indians Burn Trudeau Effigy

The demonstration came a few hours after about 60 demonstrators stoned the Canadian high commissioner's house in Georgetown, Guyana, breaking windows but causing no injuries.

About 150 students of the University of West Indies here refused their dinner and trooped out of the hall of residence — a gift from the Canadian government — after word of the Montreal trial verdict reached them.

Shouting "power to the people, death to racism," and "we will fight for the rights of black people," the students marched to the university playing fields.

There they trampled, spit on, and then set fire to the Canadian flag and Trudeau's effigy.

In the trial, one student from the British West Indies island of Dominica and another from Barbados were jailed for terms ranging from six months to almost two years and fined for wilfully obstructing use of the computer centre at the university during demonstrations in February, 1969.

Here's Where to Get Glimpse of Queen

"Early arrival" is the key directive for citizens who want a glimpse of the city's royal visitors Monday and Tuesday.

As a guide, the following is a detailed schedule of motorcade routes.

After arriving at 6:45 p.m. Monday at the Inner Harbor, on the yacht Britannia, the royal party will leave by car at 7 p.m. for city hall, travelling east on Belleville, north on Government, east on Fort, north on Cook, west on Yates, North on Blanshard and west on Pandora.

At 7:30 p.m. the royal family will arrive at the Pandora entrance to city hall and at 7:35 p.m. at Centennial Square through which they will walk to Douglas Street.

From there, at 7:40 p.m., the carcade proceeds south on Douglas; west on Pandora, south on Government, west on Yates, south on Wharf, east on Humboldt, south on Government, west on Belleville, north on Menzies to the Britannia.

Tuesday, all streets in the vicinity of the Legislative Building will be blocked to traffic from 8:30 a.m. until after the official provincial welcome ends at 11 a.m.

To the sound of a 21-gun salute, the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Anne will disembark from Britannia at 10 a.m. and proceed east on Belleville, south on Government, west on the main driveway in front of the Legislative Buildings, where the welcoming ceremony will begin at 10:45 a.m.

At its conclusion about an hour later, the royal party will go to the Provincial Museum and the archives, then down the steps to Belleville Street and west to Britannia.

At 12:30, when they head for the government luncheon at the Empress Hotel, the royal family will travel east on Belleville and north on Government.

At 2 p.m. the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh leave the Empress for up-Island, travelling north on Government, east on Humboldt, north on Douglas to the Trans-Canada Highway.

At 2:20 p.m., Princess Anne departs for Pat Bay airport, north on Government, east on Humboldt, and north on Douglas.

PEKING, MOSCOW LASH OUT

U.S. 'Defeats' Inspire Oppressed

By The Canadian Press

China and the Soviet Union attacked the United States today for its policies in Indochina during "May Day" celebrations.

China's revolutionary masses flocked to Peking's Summer Palace for the celebrations, chanting "Long live Mao Tse-tung" and "Down with U.S. aggressors."

The New China news agency accused President Nixon of "Fascist suppression" of anti-Vietnam war demonstrators in the U.S. and denounced "U.S. policies of aggression and racial discrimination."

PLEDGES SUPPORT

"We proclaim anew from Red Square that our party and people will continue to support the just cause of the heroic peoples of Vietnam and Cambodia, the peoples of the Arab countries and all fighters of aggression and suppression, for the freedom of the peoples."

The New China news agency said "brilliant victories" won against U.S. and allied forces in Indochina have "greatly inspired the oppressed people and nations of the world in their struggle for liberation."

The agency also attacked the Soviet Union, saying: "Many medium-sized and small nations long bullied by U.S. imperialism and social-imperialism have daringly stood up one after another to oppose the power politics of the two super powers."

East Germany was the only Warsaw pact country to celebrate May Day with a military parade. The Soviet Union and other Warsaw pact countries have dropped the military parade in favor of workers' meetings.

DISPLAY GIANT ROCKETS

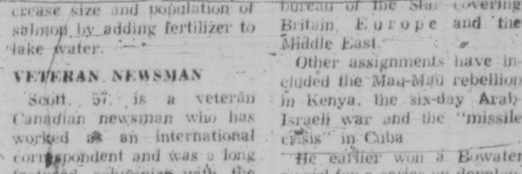
In Warsaw, Polish Communist leader Edward Gierek warned against sowing discord and "high-handedness" in a speech to thousands of May Day demonstrators.

The celebrations were the first organized mass demonstrations since food-price riots last December.

In Prague, Gustav Husak, Czechoslovak Communist party leader, said that the three-year crisis in his country's political, economic and social life has ended.



Wars to end all wars didn't seem t' work. Now they hev demonstrations t' end all wars—an' they might jist be makin' some headway.

MAGNA PIPELINES HAD VISIONS OF DOING JOB

B.C. Pipeline Interest Nothing New

By AB KENT

For at least 15 years the concept of piping natural gas to Vancouver Island — second largest market area in British Columbia — has fascinated entrepreneurs.

But the only company ever to hold a licence to undertake the project collapsed before technical difficulties could be solved.

Magna Pipeline Co., whose president was the late Ralph K. Farris, held B.C. Public Utilities Commission certificate of public convenience and necessity to build what was described in 1959 as a $14 million line 42 miles between Ladner and Westholme.

By the time the last estimate of capital cost was made in 1962, the price had escalated to $35 million, a public offering of 750,000 shares worth $6 million had been made, and a British company held a $7 million contract to build a special flexible pipe to be laid over the convoluted bed of the Gulf of Georgia.

That same year the PUC cancelled the certificate of public convenience.

The reason: Magna's case was based on the flexible pipe and when British Insulated Callendar Cables Ltd. — which made undersea electrical transmission lines for B.C. Hydro — failed to perfect a gas pipeline, the concept failed.

PUC commissioner Lyle Wicks said since then there has remained as a park of interest in a similar project, and several inquiries from prospective companies have been recieived.

However, no application for a certificate of public convenience has been made.

Magna did little from that time forward, and on Sept. 8, 1970, it was dissolved as a registered company, liquidating its assets voluntarily.

The anticipated high cost of natural gas for retailing on Vancouver Island was recognized at the time the Magna project was being organized, but apparently it was no deterrent to the company's enthusiasm.

In fact, there was a early rivalry for the PUC certificate from Island Transmission Co., which said it intended to oppose the Magna application. Later it withdrew with the comment that California fuel oil could be delivered on the island for 70 cents a barrel cheaper than an equivalent amount of gas.

Fuel oil is still regarded as a better buy on Vancouver Island, although the price has risen significantly in 10 years.

Magna hoped at first to provide service to the Island — but not distribution lines — in 1963. Nanaimo and Victoria were to be supplied and a line was to be built to the Olympic Peninsula via a subsidiary company which had approval of U.S. authorities.

Stage two of Magna's development was to build an extension to Alberni, Campbell River, Texada Island and Powell River. There would be a total of three pipelines over 236 miles, and total capacity was to be 105 million cubic feet of gas.

First phase was to cost $20 million, the second $10 million, according to revised estimates, but the initital $14 million was to be from public subscription and $8 million in mortgage bonds.

In 1961 Farris also was president of Charter Oil Co. Ltd., which held about 30 per cent of Magna's stock.

Considerable money was paid down on the flexible pipe, and trials were held in a Scottish loch, but it seems no satisfactory method of joining sections together could be devised. BICC promised to give back $6.4 million of Magna's money.

Today, more thought apparently is given to the use of conventional weld, seamless steel pipe, of which there is some experience elsewhere.

But an accurate estimate of the capital investment required is an obstacle to contemporary planning, as pointed out by MacMillan-Bloedel vice-chairman Robert Bonner.

MB, with vast pulp, paper and sawmill undertakings on Vancouver Island, is a prominent prospective participant and consumer in any new natural gas pipeline proposal.

Bonner said MB has not been asked to take part in such a venture, although he agreed the question is interesting. Natural gas has been looked at by industry "over the years," he said, and becomes reachable now only because of an extraordinary rise in fuel oil prices in recent months.

He pointed out the forest industry still burns hog fuel, a cheap and efficient way of disposing of waste and which also generates steam and electricity used by mills.

There would be a hog fuel disposal problem if industry converted to gas. Even if gas were generally adopted by industry on Vancouver Island, fuel oil would still be required for backup in times when gas is seasonally unavailable, Bonner said.

Noting Premier Bennett's terms of reference in inviting industry to propose a new company for bringing gas to the island, Bonner said 90 days would not permit a full financial analysis or proper economic study.

Also, there is no automatic way in which different industries can come together suddenly to present a joint case such as that, he said.

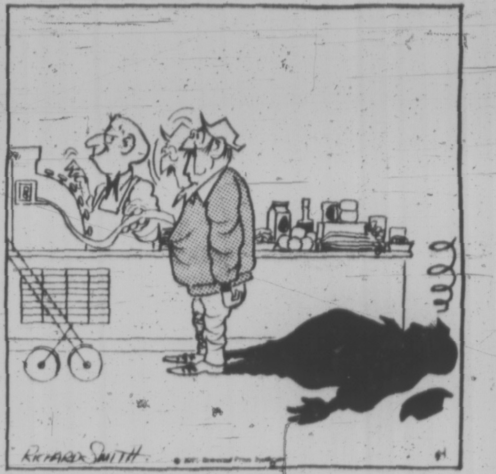
Premier Bennett said use of clean-burning gas would eliminate a pollution risk found in other fuels, but Bonner said he is aware of no noticeable pollution from fuels now imported to Vancouver Island.

Natural gas may be most attractive for domestic use, too, he said, but that attraction is directly related to price.

He said it would be difficult to make a case for subsidizing natural gas on the island.

Shadow Mischief



Merger Rejected By Gulf Schools

Gulf Islands School District has rejected a proposal to amalgamate with Saanich School District.

Saanich school board chairman Jack Armstrong said today he was disappointed by the decision.

"We had hoped that amalgamation might take effect by Sept. 1."

Attending talks in Sidney Friday were deputy education minister Joseph Phillipson; provincial administrative superintendent Chris Taylor; and financial services superintendent Ed Espley. All government representatives spoke in favor of amalgamation.

Saanich school district would like to expand in order to provide a broader tax base and permit more economical administration, but the Gulf Islands felt that union would result in a 10-mill increase of their school tax base.

'ILLUSION'

The Saanich mill rate is 33 but in the Gulf Island the mill rate is only 22.

"The difference in mill rate is an illusion," said Armstrong. "The Gulf Islands are operating on a budget which does not include administrative staff. But they will have to hire administrators and when they do the whole weight of the increase will fall on the taxpayers."

"Talks ended on an amicable note," said Armstrong, "but any further move towards amalgamation with the Gulf Islands will not be instituted by the Saanich board."

Regional District 'Only Answer'

Regional district government will continue to survive because it has to, Capital Regional District chairman and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

Opening a one-day seminar on the regional concept at Gordon Head recreation centre auditorium, Curtis said:

"It has to survive because at this point in time it is the only form of government we have which is able to provide solutions to the many problems incapable of solution at the municipal level, and, unless we want the provincial government to be the complete big brother, incapable of solution at the provincial level."

Curtis recalled Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell describing the regional concept as not political amalgamation but functional amalgamation.

NO INTERFERENCE

"Regional district government does not steal from municipal governments areas of responsibility which are traditionally and logically theirs."

He said regional government provides "a vehicle whereby municipalities in a designated area can, together with representatives from electoral areas, get together to solve problems which could not be solved unless the regional district board existed."

It was the Capital Regional District, he said, that brought some order to the chaotic development of trunk sewers throughout the region.

The first big phase of the sewage trunk system master plan costing $7.5 million, now is almost completed and will be operating in a short time.

During the last five years the regional district has purchased as parkland about 3,250 acres, including 1,704 acres at East Sooke.

DEVELOPMENT

"A few weeks ago we were granted permission to spend up to 20 per cent of our total parks budget on development and intend this summer to commence construction of trails and other essential work," he said.

In the planning area, he listed as a major accomplishment passage of a land use bylaw for Salt Spring Island. The big project in the planning department at this time is preparation of the regional plan.

"It would be ready for presentation later this year and will give us some detailed ideas on where we are going and where we should be going in the total region."

Curtis said during the last three or four years the area in which the Capital Regional District has sustained the most criticism has been the hospital construction field.

But he said, in only one area has the region experienced any inordinate delay, St. Joseph's Hospital.

In other areas, "sound and planned progress" has been made, including 300 extended care beds under construction at Gorge Road Hospital which should be completed at least two months ahead of schedule, in March of next year.

Leeds, Arsenal Both Win Games

LONDON (CP) — Leeds United and Arsenal both won their games today, and the English League soccer title was balanced on a knife-edge.

Leeds, in its final game, defeated Nottingham Forest 2-0, while Arsenal struggled to a 1-0 decision over Stoke City and remained one point behind in the First Division standings.

That means that in its last game Monday, away to Tottenham Hotspur, Arsenal must win or play to a scoreless draw to take the championship and get into the European Cup of Champions next season.

Hummel Trial To Hear Key Witness

The Crown will present the heart of the prosecution case against William Hummel Monday, the ninth day of the lawyer-businessman's trial on charges of tax evasion and making false statements on tax returns.

Prosecutor Robert Hutchison has spent eight days introducing cartons full of business files and records to back up Crown charges. Monday, Judge E. E. N. Robinson will hear evidence from Kenneth Stokes, an investigator with the national revenue department and the key man in assembling the case for the prosecution.

Hummel is charged with evading taxes on $127,000 and making false or misleading statements on tax returns for the years 1966 through 1969.

Lawyer John Spencer will begin the case for the defence after Stokes' testimony, and is expected to carry the trial until at least the end of the week.

Intervention Plea Spurned

Labor Minister James Chabot has rejected proposals that he be given more specific powers to intervene in provincial labor disputes.

"That's his opinion," Chabot said Friday, commenting on suggestions by C. J. Connaghan, president of Construction Labor Relations Associations, who urged legislative changes to allow the minister to intervene earlier in contract conflicts.

He dismissed the idea that this be written into law, adding that he hoped labor and management would inform him early in disputes.

Connaghan told a Port Alberni service club Thursday that unions and management should be required to inform Chabot immediately they decide on strike or lockout action.

Venturers Second In Amory Award

Their project was a mountain hike in Strathcona Park starting at Buttle Lake, near Ralph River, to the Red Pillar near Comox Glacier.

The Garry Oak group was praised by the judges for its log inclosed in handworked wooden covers with brass hinges. It contained a day-by-day account of the trip, menu lists, expense sheet, maps, pen and ink sketches, photographs and samples of flora found.

The Victoria Venturers didn't mind losing out to the 1st Brantford Venturers. The Ontario scouts are blind, but hiked for several days through forests and over hills.

The boys turned in a log written in Braille, as well as maps, photographs, a film and tape recordings of conversation during the journey plus samples of rocks collected.

Third place went to Sperling Venturers of Manitoba who undertook a canoe trip.

Bourassa Bares Plan For $6B Hydro Project

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa announced Friday night that the Quebec government will undertake to construct a mammoth $6 billion hydro-electric project to harness five rivers flowing into James Bay.

It is believed that on completion the hydro complex will be the largest in the world.

The project to dam the Nottaway, Broadback, Eastmain, Grand and Rupert rivers will also represent the largest single financial undertaking in the province's history.

The announcement came during a Liberal party rally here and was not unexpected. Speculation had been rife in published reports for more than a week.

The premier told about 4,000 cheering supporters that the project would be "a turning point in our history" and would bring unprecedented prosperity to Quebec society.

His half-hour address was preceded by a film, projected onto three screens in the Quebec Coliseum, which outlined the James Bay project in northern Quebec.

PROMISES JOBS

It will produce 3,500 new jobs before the end of this year and eventually provide work for 125,000 Quebecers.

It is expected to produce 10 million kilowatts when completed, more than the Grand Coulee project in Washington state, far more than the Churchill complex in Labrador and an amount equal to the total power now produced by Hydro-Quebec, the province's publicly-owned hydro-electric utility.

Premier Bourassa said a public corporation will be established by the government and Hydro-Quebec to administer the James Bay project.

He said there will be an "immediate start" on the complex.

It was not indicated the exact date when actual construction would begin but it is believed that the project will take 10 years to complete and work will reach its peak in 1973.

STUDIED SINCE 1964

The project has been under consideration since 1964 when Hydro-Quebec began feasibility studies. Crude winter roads have already been built to provide access to the five rivers.

Missing Friday night was the expected announcement of large investments in the James Bay undertaking.

Speculation on the project announcement had been accompanied last week by predictions that Mr. Bourassa would also reveal a $2 billion prepaid sale of electricity from the complex to Consolidated Edison of New York City.

Before the Liberal rally, government sources said negotiations for various financial arrangements were continuing and whether an announcement would come Friday night depended on when they were completed.

The 37-year-old premier has been seeking investors for the project since he came to office in the Quebec general election of April 29 last year.

But even without an indication that financial arrangements had been completed, Mr. Bourassa was able to celebrate the first anniversary of his election with a smile of satisfaction.

The James Bay project was "the key to our economic development and our social progress, which will in turn will give us political stability."

The premier, who campaigned for the Liberal party leadership on a platform that economic well-being was the solution to many of Quebec's political problems, said the project was the key to his government's campaign to strengthen the Quebec economy.

The documentary film which preceded Mr. Bourassa's speech said that private investment of $1,375 million had entered the province since the election of the Liberal government April 29, 1970, creating 28,000 new jobs in Quebec.

Mr. Bourassa said during his election campaign that he hoped to create 100,000 new jobs in the province.

BRAVERY AWARD and $500 were given by Workmen's Compensation Board Friday night to William David Maloan, 44, of 148 Olive, in ceremony at Red Lion. Maloan, a lithographer with Queen's Printer, rescued Alexander Boyd, 59, from near-drowning off waterfront June 26, 1970.

CANADA TO PUT POLLUTION CASE

Washington Tanker Talks Monday

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's openly-expressed concern about the dangers of oil pollution along the West Coast will be backed up in detail here Monday, at a time of sharp internal debate within the U.S. government about a proposal to ship Alaska oil to the mainland by pipeline and tanker.

A group of senior Canadian civil servants, joined by a representative of the British Columbia government, will hold an all-day closed-door discussion with American officials at the state department about what External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has called the "great risks and dangers" to the B.C. coast from sea-going tankers carrying Alaska oil to the power-hungry "lower 48" states.

The meeting was blandly described Friday by a state department spokesman as an "exchange of information" between technicians from the two countries "about the risks of pollution on the Pacific coast in the event that larger quantities of oil than at present begin moving there."

It is not, the spokesman stressed, a discussion of the relative merits of various proposals for shipping Alaska oil south.

Against the current proposal for an 800-mile pipeline across Alaska and a fleet of tankers to the mainland, now being considered by the U.S. government, Canadian cabinet ministers have suggested that a pipeline down the Mackenzie Valley should be studied as an alternative.

Canadian opponents of the pipeline-tanker scheme have stressed the hazards of navigation in the often stormy waters along the B.C. coast, and particularly the danger for tankers moving through Juan de Fuca Strait and Puget Sound to discharge oil cargoes at refineries being built or proposed on the Washington state coast near the Canadian border.

Atlantic-Richfield Oil Co. is constructing a 100,000-barrel-a-day refinery at Cherry Point, Wash., at a cost of $150 million almost solely in anticipation of the pipeline-tanker scheme being approved. Its plans are said to call for a fleet of 120,000-ton tankers to carry the oil.

Opponents say tanker collisions are "inevitable" in the narrow straits which B.C. shares with Washington state. And they add that oil spilled in those waters would just as inevitably end up on the beaches, coastal marshes and recreation islands of the southern B.C. coast.

While the Canadian delegation is likely to be unanimous in stressing the dangers to the B.C. coast from accidental spills, collisions or groundings, there is reason to believe they will find a less-than-unanimous viewpoint on the American side.

The proposal by a consortium of American oil companies has generated wide dissent both within and outside the U.S. government.

Environmentalists, backed up by scientific studies even from government agencies, say the proposal threatens vast harm to the delicate Alaska wilderness and to the seas.

Even those who appear neutral about the proposal have said the scheme presents too many unanswered questions to be approved in haste.

Rail Traditions Abandoned With Amtrak

WASHINGTON (WP) — Private U.S. railroads end more than a century of tradition today as they abandon almost all of the intercity passenger trains that once represented the industry's greatest glory.

As Friday's last overnight trains arrive this morning in major U.S. cities, the railroads will officially transfer their passenger service to a new quasi-government corporation — Amtrak.

Amtrak, in turn, is reducing the number of intercity trains from 360 to 184 in an attempt to conserve its limited funds (about $340 million) and concentrate improvement efforts on the routes with the best prospects.

LOGICAL

For the industry, the transfer represents the logical conclusion of years of tireless campaigning to eliminate their passenger service — service which, the railroads claimed, was inevitably rendered unprofitable by the advent of the jet airplane and the extension of the interstate highway system. Chronic passenger deficits, estimated between $200 and $250 million in 1969, were jeopardizing their capability to provide reliable freight service, the railroads argued.

For the railroads' critics, Amtrak represents an opportunity to revitalize passenger service whose destruction they attribute to the industry's single-minded devotion to freight handling and deliberate downgrading of passenger service quality.

Although both the industry and its critics supported Amtrak's creation, the system begins today only after the failure of last-minute congressional and courtroom efforts to delay the May 1 transfer date.

In the senate, majority leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) vainly urged his colleagues to postpone the start-up date for seven months while Amtrak adds more trains to its sparse system.

HERE'S HOW NOT TO DO IT

DONCASTER, England (AP) — Fire Chief Raymond Barlow decided it was too dangerous to let 25 visiting students take turns sliding down the firehouse pole, so he gave them a demonstration instead.

This is one of the best reasons for owning a Volkswagen.

It happens to the best of us.
Sooner or later, you're bound to run into a little trouble.
However, if you run into it with a Volkswagen, it doesn't hurt you very much.
VW parts are inexpensive. And easy to replace.
And for the most part, you don't have to dismantle half the car to replace most parts.
A VW dealer won't have to look high and low for a new fender for you either. He's got all the parts right at hand.
And since anything that needs replacing can be replaced so easily, labour costs are held way down.
Which means you don't have to be limited to just headlight smashing.
You can jab the trunk.
Graze the door.
Or bump off a bumper.
It may make you furious, but it won't make you poor.
So if your garage door just happens to jump out in front of you and dent up your VW a bit, don't worry.
We can conveniently replace anything you use to stop your VW.
Even the brakes.

Especially for People

WHEN CALGARY SCHOOLS were closed by a strike a few days ago the news reports told of hordes of young folk crowding into the public libraries to do their studying. It was a visible demonstration of the fact that public libraries are a vital, integral part of the educational system today — a source of books and information, as well as of art, music and other cultural wealth. A real library is not only a place where these things are stored but also where they may be used, discussed and made a part of the individual's life.

The concern of librarians the continent over is that not enough people recognize the opportunities that libraries offer. Too many people look on libraries as quiet mausoleums dedicated merely to keeping books on shelves — and this limited view unfortunately can be found among officials whose task it is to disburse public funds to libraries, and even among some librarians themselves. Much more attractive is the concept of the modern library as an activity centre, a cultural focal point for the community, a living and participating institution which contributes to the betterment of life for all varieties of citizens.

It is to spread this concept and promote the use and improvement of libraries that the British Columbia Centennial Citizens' Conference on Libraries will be held in Victoria on Monday—an all-day gathering of 250 invited participants from all over the province. Morning talks by library experts, afternoon discussion groups to spread information and share library problems, and a banquet sponsored by the provincial government will round out a historic day for British Columbia libraries, for such a gathering has never been held in Canada before. The day will be the major observance of Library Week, and half a dozen regional conferences will be held later in the year to carry out the purposes of the initial meeting.

The theme of the conference: "Libraries, vital to tomorrow's world", is an important one for all Canadians, and for Greater Victorians it should have a special appeal.

The Greater Victoria Public Library has come through a difficult year, curbed by tight financing as well as the hazards of a reorganization after decades of service. Now, in addition to its three small branches, the Library is embarking on a more extensive development of library branches through the use of Centennial project funds. An attractive new branch is being provided in Oak Bay, and discussions with Saanich and the City are under way to determine the most advantageous site for a larger joint branch. These facilities, along with new programs to be developed at the main library, should give this community a whole new look at modern library services.

Another slogan of the conference is: "Libraries are people places" — and that's the way it should be.

Another Phosphate Battle?

THE FIGHT AGAINST PHOSphates pollution moved into a new phase in the United States with the drafting of a relatively mild warning for each package of detergent containing the substance.

The printed warning would list an approved amount of the product to use, the phosphorus content, the contribution the detergent makes to water pollution and a request that it not be used in excess.

While industry fights the authorization of such a label, anti-pollution forces and environmentalists point to the failure of industry to come up with a non-injurious substitute, noting, incidentally, that the one ingredient tried in 43 detergent brands last year was hastily withdrawn in the wake of questions concerning its harmfulness to health.

The warning proposed for packages containing detergents seems mild enough, but with the three large firms that control 80 per cent of the market producing not a single known no-phosphate laundry detergent, more drastic campaigning may be in store.

It could lead to the point where concentrated efforts were launched to ban phosphates entirely — an implied threat that should stimulate industry to work even harder on research to find an acceptable substitute.

Waste Called Sport

TWO DELEGATES TO THE British Columbia Indian Homemakers' Association conference in Sardis have reported a shameful waste presumably in the name of sport. They say that they know of cases in which hunters have shot moose and left them to rot on the Indians' reservation, only the antlers being taken as trophies. At the same time, Indians "sit in their houses and starve."

Trophy hunting for big game in this province comes under periodic censure, usually from persons opposed to blood sports, but also from conservationists. It is even less defensible when it results in wasted meat while people are hungry.

Admittedly, it is not the easiest of tasks to pack out a moose, and butchering on the ground may be difficult. But if British Columbia authorities which permit trophy hunting allow such waste, they earn reproach. Killing for the pot, under certain circumstances, is against the law. Depriving the pot of the trophy kill violates a moral law.

Example at the Top

ONE OF THE GREAT SEATS OF higher learning in the United States, Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut, has once again justified its reputation for academic pioneering. A selection committee of one of the university's residential colleges, Pierson, has nominated a black American biologist, Dr. Richard Goldsby, as its new Master. He will replace the celebrated author, John Hersey, and will be the first black Master in the Yale system.

Comment on the appointment has ranged from that which saw it as another feather in the progressive cap of Yale's president, Kingman Brewster, to that of some of the black faculty who saw such a nomination as being overdue. The selection committee has stressed that the choice of Dr. Goldsby was only partly based on the fact that he is black.

The happenings at the top of the educational pyramid in the United States may be imitated at the lower levels. At least a liberal example is being set.

Unemployed persons in the community must be pretty annoyed at a group of local Liberals pre-empting the census co-ordinator jobs here, unto themselves (Victoria Times, Friday, April 23, 1971—p. 21.)

Does the married sister-in-law of Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson need this job more than some unemployed head of a family or student?

It would also be interesting to know who these Census Co-ordinators have chosen as their paid census enumerators — unemployed persons genuinely needing employment or moonlighting friends? I think Canada Manpower could have supplied a long list of persons genuinely needing such work.

Such actions are giving the Liberal party a reputation of self-seeking callousness. Surely such is the antithesis of the "Just Society." — Concerned Taxpayer.

The Devil's Fag

The almost constant cough heard in hospital wards, though by most patients denied as being caused by smoking, is quite evidently so!

I pray that youth moderators will explain the many ills also caused by smoking. Some of the intelligent young are willing to listen to the advice of learned doctors and will be so happy in later years that they did. Just me!

WHILE PROBLEMS MOUNT

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Glamor Is Attractive, But Is Not the Final Answer

GEORGE BAIN, chief Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto Globe and Mail, always serves Canadian politics raw, on the half-shell, garnished with a bitter-sweet sauce of his own special recipe. But the reader should not take his persiflage too seriously. Behind the giggle the man is in deadly earnest, almost in tears strictly non-partisan tears, you understand.

Hutchison

Thus his judgment of the Trudeau government and the state of the nation is worth considering. "This," he writes, "has been an extraordinarily slow and hesitant government . . . of exceedingly modest achievement. Notwithstanding the fact that it sometimes presented an untidy appearance, that it lacked a majority, that it was faced with a fiercer opposition than Mr. Trudeau has known, the government of Lester Pearson made a better legislative record than this one has done."

Yet the lack of achievement, says Mr. Bain, has not visibly damaged Mr. Trudeau, who appears to be as popular as ever. Undoubtedly this proves something," but what? "Perhaps that the personality is the performance, that people are bored with issues, problems, crises, politics in general and don't much care what is done or not done just as long as it is done or not done by someone with star quality."

Mr. Trudeau has star quality all right and is the single star in our politics at present. Unfortunately, however, we are not watching a theatrical production but, I would guess, the most serious problems in the modern history of the nation, and the grim truth is that no basic problem has been solved in Mr. Trudeau's three years of power. Today we almost look back on the untidy years of Mike Pearson as our most happy time.

Still Fortunate

Is that Mr. Trudeau's fault? I would think not. For none of the other Western nations has solved any of its basic problems either, as we can see by looking, for instance, at Britain or the United States, our closest friends. By any reasonable comparison we are still a very fortunate people and would be so whether Mr. Trudeau had been discovered or not.

Nevertheless, the basic problems have not been solved. That fact should not be lost in the glamor of a shining presence. Nor should we forget that Mr. Trudeau did not promise quick solutions and warned us not to expect them. The fair question is not whether the stubborn, long-term problems have been solved in the short term, since they could not be, but whether the government has done as well as it should have done under the actual circumstances.

Every Canadian must answer the question for himself, but the public in Canada, as elsewhere, seems too confused to answer anything clearly. That, I suppose, is why we turn from boring issues to an exciting personality. It is so much easier to discuss the prime minister's human virtues and failings than to wrestle with the dull business of the nation. He himself becomes the central issue, a false one. The real issue now, as always, is the wisdom and quality of the nation which a government can invoke or fail to invoke, lead or not lead.

Is the government invoking Canada's best qualities? Is it really leading the nation or, as Mr. Bain suspects, merely putting on a show? Even more puzzling, does the nation really wish to be led? Of course, it demands leadership in every waking moment, it beats its breast and cries out for strong government. But whenever the government acts strongly, as it sometimes acts, it is accused of tyranny and attacked for undemocratic methods. Certainly the government, like governments the world over, is confused, but much less confused than the people.

In short, the nation is more divided now than it was when Mr. Trudeau won election on a wild and hopeful surmise of unity. His enemies will say that we are witnessing cause and effect, and if it were only that we could soon cure the effects by getting rid of the government which caused them. Regrettably, the causes long ante-dated the existing government and the effects, though delayed and disguised by glamor, were bound to show themselves sooner or later as they are now doing.

Where does all this leave the prime minister who promised nothing specific and must be disappointed with the current situation in general? It leaves him, I believe, at the true beginnings of his troubles, the last three years being no more than the overture to his personal drama, the preliminaries of his test as a statesman.

Especially in the case of Quebec, we approach a denouement of some sort and it would have faced us under any government. That problem, like our economic problems, is even more difficult than Mr. Trudeau imagined three years ago but if the deepening difficulty is clear enough his method of meeting it is not.

French-Canadian Mandate

While he will wisely time his move to suit the situation as he judges it, surely there can be no doubt about one thing that at some point, not far ahead, a French Canadian prime minister will have to go past the Quebec government, over the heads of all the local politicians, direct to his own people and ask them for a mandate to preserve the nation.

So it happened with Cartier, Laurier, Lapointe, St. Laurent and all the other great French Canadian leaders. So it will happen with their successor. The answer he gets from his own people will tell us, more clearly than any of the daily wrangles of politics, whether the nation can be preserved. And hence much more than glamor and star quality is staked on the strange Trudeau adventure, now moving toward its climax.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

A Two-China Policy Both Peking and Taipei Reject

A BLUE-RIBBON presidential commission headed by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. has now recommended that the United States welcome and encourage the seating of Red China in the United Nations "as early as practicable" which means this September, when the UN General Assembly next convenes. This virtually settles the matter. With a name as respected as that of Cabot Lodge publicly on record on behalf of Peking's acceptance, it is virtually a foregone conclusion that the administration will act accordingly.

Frye

There remains, however, the highly critical question of what to do about Nationalist China. The Lodge commission urged that Washington seek to prevent its ouster from the UN, and a large number of Americans — probably a substantial majority — would agree that by right, Taiwan should be offered an opportunity to stay.

But at this point diplomatic planners run into severe practical obstacles. No formula yet devised has promised an umbrella under which both claimants to China would be willing to sit together. Each has insisted it would never share UN recognition with the other.

Impractical

A majority vote of the General Assembly in favor of two Chinas would not therefore in fact produce a UN with two Chinas participating.

If the net practical effect of preserving a UN seat for Nationalist China was to keep Peking outside the world community, the friends of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would be pleased, but the principal object of the exercise — to establish new channels of communications and contact with the Mainland — would have been frustrated.

Similarly, if the practical effect of offering Taiwan (Formosa) a UN seat as the government of that island, rather than the government of all China, was to precipitate a proud and angry walkout by the Generalissimo's delegates, little or nothing constructive would have been accomplished. American relations with both Chinas would have been damaged.

It is hard to escape the conclusion that a policy which sponsored two Chinas (or one China and one Taiwan) would be at once wholly logical and wholly impractical. It would fit the objective facts, but neither China wishes those facts to be perpetuated by diplomatic acceptance.

Recent ping-pong diplomacy, opening up the possibility of a Sino-American rapprochement and a drastic change in the world balance of power, has given Washington a powerful motive to avoid antagonizing Peking. Opportunities extending over the next decade and beyond could be compromised if the Chinese representation fight in the UN is badly handled this fall.

It is entirely possible, for example, that Peking would be less profoundly offended by an American stance which backed Taiwan as the government of all China than it would be by an American policy of attempting to split China into the two sovereign entities.

Unitary China is the one subject on which both Peking and Taipeh agree. Both see Taiwan as an integral part of the whole. Each claims to govern the whole. Neither wishes to be considered the government of only a part.

Soviet Precedent

It is remotely conceivable that an acceptance of unitary China, in principle, could be married to representation for both Peking and Taipeh in practice. The Soviet Union is one country, but both Byelorussia and the Ukraine have separate UN seats. They, like Taiwan, are provinces of the larger entity.

In order to persuade both Chinese governments to accept such a solution, however, it would be necessary to fudge the question of which government was the ruler of all China — an extraordinarily difficult undertaking, even for diplomats who specialize in constructive ambiguity, and one which neither China would wish to see attempted.

There are many in Washington, therefore, who do not want to attempt a two-China solution. The effort almost certainly would meet defeat. In any case; and it could be an unprofitable vessel (except in terms of domestic American opinion) on which to go down with flags flying.

If the United States must consciously adopt a course which it knows will result in defeat, this school would rather go down on a one-China (Taiwan) platform than on a two-Chinas one.

This would have the virtue of consistency; it would maintain American ties with the G'mo in Taipei, and it might envenom relations with Peking less severely than a two-China drive would do — especially since Peking would have the satisfaction of triumphing over Washington.

Disadvantages

There are, however, severe disadvantages in this course, as well. It would be unpopular domestically. It would be a humiliation in the eyes of the world. And it would undercut the United States' right, under international law, to continue guaranteeing the separate maintenance of an island which the world community would have decided was rightfully a part of mainland China.

There remains the option of backing the seating of Peking without trying seriously to obtain separate diplomatic treatment for Taiwan. It would be inconsistent to do this while retaining the Seventh Fleet in the Taiwan Straits; but it would not be the first time a government had acted inconsistently.

From a coldly Machiavellian point of view, this is the course that would be most likely to advance American interests. Whether American opinion would stand for it, without a good deal more from China than hints of an impending new era, is the critical question.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

On the slopes of Terrace Hill, just off the Happy Valley Road, lies an almost sub-alpine meadow with an abundance of spring flowers in bloom, including hairy manzanita, highly attractive to bees for pollen and nectar.

Some fifty odd flowers are now blooming there. Among them the camas and the larkspur show up in a pleasing contrast to the pink of the seablush and the white of the bittercress and chickweed.

On mossy banks the rare and extremely delicate red flower of the red maid may be found.

From the summit you have a clear view of Victoria's grain elevators and highrises in the east, and to the west Red Flag mountain and its lookout station stand out against the background of the Sooke Hills.

Below, the Trans-Canada highway and the Sooke Road wind between the hills like a ribbon.

Across the strait, above the haze of Port Angeles, the Olympic Mountains provide the backdrop to a scene not easily forgotten, with the sea sparkling on sunny days and carrying its ever-changing traffic of ships.

If Youth Likes I Ching, Why Not the Queen, Too?

By RAYMOND S. RODGERS

To many Canadians, particularly some of the younger generation, the monarchy is a quaint, antiquated institution and about as ridiculous as Spiro T. Agnew. At first thought, one might think the young and the longhairs would reject the monarchy on the grounds it is just a silly inherited idea.

But the same segment of the population has no difficulty accepting astrology and I Ching, which are pretty ancient imports and, some would say, barely based in rational thought. So that is not the problem.

The problem with our monarchy, the House of Windsor, in the eyes of youthful counter-culture, is that it is so utterly square. An institution which appeals to W. A. C. Bennett, so the reasoning goes, must be a dodo. Period.

Which brings us to the serious question: Can anything be said in praise of the monarchy? And immediately one must understand that the monarchy is not the same thing as the monarchic function in a parliamentary system. There are things to be said in praise of monarchy. But whether Canada retains or rejects the monarch, our system does require the continuation of the monarchic function.

The modern parliamentary system is an evolution beyond the struggle-for-power, which is inherent in the American system and which used to be characteristic of British government when the king was a real executive independent of Parliament.

Few people ever realize that the American system of government is actually a case of arrested development. In early British history, the king struggled for power against Parliament. In the American system, the president continues to struggle for power against Congress (only when the president and Congress are of the same thought and party does relative harmony prevail).

In the modern parliamentary system, the executive — the cabinet, led by the prime minister — is at one with the parliamentary majority. If this essential harmony does not exist, if the prime minister fails to retain the support of his cabinet (as happened to Diefenbaker) and, by extension, his party and Parliament, then a new order must arise.

If, after an election, the House of Commons is divided down the middle, then somebody in the system is required to make a common-sense judgment as to which party leader is most likely to be able to form a government. That judgment is the function of the monarch.

The function does not, however, have to be performed by a hereditary monarch. The monarchic function in the Italian parliamentary system is performed by an elder statesman with the somewhat misleading title of president.

The monarchic function in Canada is performed, not by the Queen but by a former Speaker of the House of Commons with the title, perhaps equally misleading, of Governor-General. I personally would like to see this precedent firmly established: the Governor-General should be chosen — by the prime minister, leader of the opposition, and the chief justice of the Supreme Court (with the latter casting a deciding vote in the event of disagreement) — from the roster of former Speakers.

The monarchic function must continue to be performed in Canada for as long as we have the sanity to preserve parliamentary government.

But what about the monarchic function as it is performed in Britain? Is there a justification for hereditary monarchy? Yes! Note that the monarchic function mainly requires sound common sense. It does not require great intellectual brilliance. It requires the ability to listen to constitutional advice, but not to formulate intricate constitutional theory.

Furthermore, it is an advantage when this function is placed above and beyond partisanship or a desire for aggrandisement. The very thing which makes some critics — such as Quebec's Jean-Charles Bonenfant — sneer at hereditary monarchy, namely, that it rests on the accident of birth ("relations sexuelles"), is, in fact, its very virtue.

The accident of birth places the person performing the monarchic function beyond ambition. In Britain, no social-climber, no worn-out politician, can aspire to performing the monarchic role as a final crown of personal glory. That role is fore-ordained to be performed by a member of the House of Windsor. And if an heir should be deficient in the modicum of intelligence required of the role, then he or she can be passed over by a regency council.

Finally, I would suggest to the counter-culture, which currently glories in feeling rather than linear thought, in a sense of the mysterious rather than computerized efficiency, in a respect for ancient wisdom rather than MIT rationality, that there is something to be said for an institution and lineage which has survived not only the centuries — but even Hollywood!

And to Canadian devotees of countervailing power, I would point out that the provincial governments more than adequately counteract the fusion of executive and legislative powers at the federal level, and vice versa.

Rodgers is the author of four books on Canadian and international affairs. He now resides at White Rock, and was most recently associate professor of political science, University of Winnipeg, from which he resigned in a dispute over the excessive use of U.S. tests.

'Mr. Premier, That's Not Performance'

From BRUCE YEMEN

In The Legislature

It is well advertised that advertising makes things happen.

When the advertising is done by the government, paid for by the people and has political overtones, it makes Opposition Leader Dave Barrett upset.

More Attention

Both the advertising and Barrett's concern make Premier Bennett happy, because Barrett's criticism of a government advertisement this week only drew more public attention to the message.

The message, in case you didn't notice in Wednesday's newspaper, was spelled out over five columns in bold black letters three-quarters of an inch high.

"BRITISH COLUMBIANS PAY THE LOWEST INCOME TAXES IN WESTERN CANADA."

(The chuckling you hear may be Premier Bennett enjoying yet another bit of publicity for his advertisement, or rather yours, since you helped pay for it.)

Let's face it, there is a thin line between political propaganda and legitimate information.

The comparative tax table in the advertisement at least did something that few advertisements ever do — it actually proved the point being made.

British Columbians really do pay the lowest personal income taxes in Western Canada. And it is an interesting bit of information to have at a time when many of us have just made out cheques to the receiver-general of Canada.

But, really, is it good enough simply to say that a government advertisement paid for at public expense, is acceptable if it is both true and interesting?

That covers an awful lot of ground.

How about an advertisement that says:

"Waldo Skillings is a tough, blunt-speaking guy who'd give his right arm to help his good friend W. A. C. Bennett. That's the kind of loyalty and spirit that keeps your provincial government functioning as a tightly-knit team."

As far as we can tell, that's a true statement and it probably would qualify as an interesting bit of information.

But would it be necessary to use public funds to place it in newspapers as an advertisement?

Just Can't Resist

Of course not. Even Premier Bennett wouldn't try that. It would be a ridiculously political advertisement.

Even if you could argue for the tax comparisons in Wednesday's advertisement as legitimate information, you would have a hard time justifying the last line of the advertisement.

"Not only does British Columbia have the lowest personal and corporation income tax rates in Canada," it says, "but our total services and grants are the best in Canada."

The premier just can't resist that little extra plug.

Bennetts opponents had better not challenge him to prove that our grants and services are best.

That would be an invitation to take another advertisement on our behalf to answer the challenge.

Goodness knows, Bennett doesn't need any encouragement. He said Thursday he intends to keep right on advertising.

The longer he stays in public life, he said, the more he is convinced that the people must be kept informed.

It's odd that he becomes more convinced of that because years ago many people could have sworn from Bennett's statements that he was totally, absolutely committed to that policy. How could he be more convinced than that?

Oh well, what's a few thousand advertising dollars here and there?

Of course, Bennett is seriously planning to fill some of the void to be created by the banning of cigarette and liquor advertising Sept. 1, then we may have to squirm a little. That's getting into the million dollar league.

The government came too close to that league in 1969 when a variety of departmental and government agency advertising campaigns just happened to coincide with the provincial election campaign.

Nobody ever did come up with a firm figure for the cost of that exercise in over-kill, but it was more than a few thousand dollars.

But in spite of the agonized cries from political opponents about the government election advertising, there was remarkably little public concern about it.

The placid public acceptance of the use of tax money for dubiously-timed advertising campaigns may have helped encourage Bennett to continue taking a cheeky attitude to opponents on the issue.

But who can blame him after getting away with "The Good Life", that $50,000 wonder of cinematic achievement in the "keeping the people informed" category?

But there's a possible bright side to all of this.

The premier says he now believes that the people should be given the factual information with which to compare the performance of their government with those of other provinces.

This will come as good news to the boys down at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for whom British Columbia's finance department has come to be symbolized by a melancholy asterisk and a plaintive note that comparative figures for B.C. are not available.

Or if the figures were available, there was often something odd about them that kept them from being very useful.

Orthodox Figures

It will be good news indeed for national statistical unity if Bennett plans to start making available plain, orthodox figures to inform the people.

But Bennett will have to prove that his threatened use of advertising will meet the standards of legitimate governmental information. Wednesdays effort doesn't quite make it.

Until he does prove it, there is only one way to describe the situation:

Wieners and Beans From Poor And Peanuts From City Hall

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

THE WEEK IN CITY HALL

The little game being played by Walter Olszewski and Reg Clarkson of the Low Income Group ended the way it should have — with the disclosure that they and other salaried organizers of their maid-a-day service were making more money a month than all the 30 welfare mothers they were supposedly helping.

Undoubtedly the federal health and welfare department will not continue to grant money for further salaries.

Now, from this same group, a plan to hold a "poor peoples' banquet" of beans and wieners on Centennial Square while the Queen visits city hall and the square Monday evening.

Surely there is something left of the $10,000 grant, or some savings from that $7,000 in salaries, to provide a decent meal. Not that beans isn't darn good food.

But the Low Income Group has begun to rust and creak and there are a lot of people around able to say I told you so with good reason.

This phoney demonstration planned to gain publicity for this increasingly suspect Low Income Group probably won't embarrass the experienced Royal Family as much as it will hurt the dearhearts gathered to see and hear and possibly meet their Queen.

Mayor Courtney Haddock is a self-confessed monarchy fanatic — to a fault, one might say, since his comically ancient rhetoric on the matter only serves to tip others to the edge of republicanism.

Some of us would like to just look on, take pleasure from the spontaneous joy the visit will provide for others, and satisfy a natural curiosity about this famous family, without going into hysterics either way.

It's difficult to admit in front of the mayor a mild indifference to the whole matter for fear of giving oneself a bad character reference. Thousands of people in this community will neither come out to see the Queen nor think twice about it and this shouldn't be held against them.

But when this visit is put in the context of the beans and wiener feast, it becomes a little easier to get interested in.

A piece about the expense of sailing the royal yacht by Times columnist Jack Scott last week, and a couple of news stories this week about the cost of the visit to B.C.'s cities sparked some rage around city hall. The mayor was predictably disgusted.

It went something like this, in part: "What annoys me is that while you fellows are complaining about the amount of money it costs the British government to sail the Britannia over here, our government is frittering money away on all sorts of crazy schemes, and nobody says anything."

Like the Housecleaning Rehabilitation Association, which gobbled up in useless salaries in 2 months more than city hall budgeted for its meagre hour with the Queen.

Man for man, there are probably more avid monarchists in this community than in any other in Canada. For this reason it is a stroke of luck that our current mayor should be one himself, symbolizing so well the citizens who are looking forward to this rare encounter with royalty.

The city, after all, reeks of British tradition, and — to speak in a language that the visit's critics can understand — depends largely on this tradition to bring in those well-known tourist dollars, dollars not unlike the kind that will butter the bread that goes with the beans at the poor peoples' banquet.

Comfort in Warmth

By ART STOTT

The invitation to the Wednesday affair in the University of Victoria Commons dining room called it an informal reception to honor Bob and Norah Wallace. So it was and so it did. But to the crowd assembled for the occasion it was even more. It was a kind of home-coming week with a warmth and sincerity that left an indelible impression on those participating.

This was no stereotyped ritual, with trite tributes, not necessarily accurate, delivered by rote merely to meet the conventions. Bob and Norah were among friends. They knew it and appreciated it.

Harry Hickman, who spoke for everyone present, delivered a graceful tribute that rang as honestly as a silver dollar on the counter. He didn't suggest that Bob could walk on water. He simply stated facts that added up to a record of accomplishment which is a source of pride to Bob's friends. If the eyes of the two honored guests misted on occasion, that was honest emotion, too. Nobody played to the gallery because such a play was unnecessary. Nobody gilded the lily because lilies aren't improved by gilding.

Harry, who confesses he doesn't like speaking on such occasions, enjoyed it this time because, as he explained privately, the atmosphere was so friendly.

As one man, long in education in this province, put it in talk with acquaintances: "It helps to restore your faith in humanity. Here's a person who has done a good job and whose friends have gathered to tell him he has and to prove their appreciation by funding a scholarship in his name. No confrontations, no dissent. Maybe it proves that we haven't been wasting our time trying to encourage young people to improve their minds. And it's a good party."

It's probably a commentary on our times that so many should feel that way, that it becomes a matter of delighted surprise to find a group of people, directly and indirectly tied into education, meeting harmoniously and with genuine affection, enjoying the renewal of old contacts and some new ones.

We are deluged, these days, with words emphasizing the importance of the individual, the dignity of man, the right to happiness, the necessity for trust and goodwill. And those contributing to the deluge so frequently seem obsessed with the idea that they have to put down anyone whose point of view may differ from their own.

They insist on universal love and will cut the throat of any whose concept of it varies from their own. They are joined by faddists who see as the "in thing" this protestation of concern for the abstracts of human welfare and who parrot the current phrases while subjecting others to gross indignities.

Thoughtful people of my generation have been depressed or turned cynical by recognition of contradiction between words and behavior — many of them pleading no innocence themselves. For them, gatherings like that of Wednesday evening provide a cheerful inspiration. Participants came together in joint support of a worthwhile effort to perpetuate Bob Wallace's name through contributions to the scholarship fund that will help future students as Bob Wallace has helped those under him in a 40-year career in higher education. Their rewards were completely intangible — the satisfaction of paying a tribute to a man they liked and honored in a way that fitted his own attitude.

They were able to do it with no dispute more heated than an isolated repetition of a quarter-century argument between two groups anxious to prove that Oak Bay High is superior to Victoria High, or vice versa. Even that argument is dying out.

If Victoria High supporters cannot accept the logic of the case after 25 years' careful, well-documented and coherent presentation, I'm wasting my time continuing it. Certainly I'm not dogmatic enough to suggest that the good have come only from Oak Bay High. Bob Wallace went to Victoria High and emerged unimpaired.

So the evening passed in light-hearted chat, cheerful reminiscence, a renewal of pleasant sentiment and a reminder that our times need not be coldly desolate, can be warmed by the fires of friendliness and appreciation.

A worthwhile occasion, a well-merited tribute to the guests of honor, a redefinition, in its way, of purpose, and, as my friend said, a good party. Almost confirmed Gracie Allen's magnificent profundity that people can have more fun than anybody.

China Considers Inviting Americans to Forbidden City

By NORMAN WEBSTER
Special to the Times

PEKING — United States senators in the Forbidden City? It's not as far out a possibility as you might think.

One part of the proposition is already fact — the Forbidden City, site of China's imperial palaces, has been reopened to foreigners and will soo open again to the general public.

The other part has been mentioned to diplomats here by a high Chinese foreign ministry official as a matter under serious consideration. The Chinese have a list of U.S. political figures and are considering which ones to invite and when.

They have been sounding out diplomats on the views of U.S. Senators considered dovish on Vietnam and sympathetic to China. Observers believe invitations will go out before the end of the year, and perhaps even in the next few months.

It is known, too, that the Chinese are combing a list of American and other foreign journalists who have requested visas to visit China. It is likely that substantial numbers will be admitted this year, following the international brigade which has already flooded in following the entry of the U.S. table tennis team three weeks ago.

One of the high spots for all who get here will be a tour of the fabled Forbidden City in the heart of Peking. Once home to China's emperors, it is one of the world's triumphs of architecture.

Walled Complex Consists Of 250 Acres In the Heart of Peking

Before 1966 it was a prominent attraction for the many foreigners who visited this country. For the past four and a half years, however, it has been as forbidden, as it ever was to outsiders closed, as was China, during the tumult of the cultural revolution.

Peking residents could only climb Coal Hill to the north, look down on the yellow roofs gleaming in the sun and sigh.

And now, suddenly, they have been walking under those roofs.

In the past two weeks touring groups of ping-pongers have been taken there. In recent days the gates have been opened to Peking's diplomats and correspondents, two groups still a bit dumbfounded by the new warmth fowards foreigners in general.

During our visit we found exhibits in place, guides on hand and workmen engaged in minor renovations. A Chinese official said July 1 is the target date for reopening to the public.

The Forbidden City is actually a walled complex of 250 acres in the heart of Peking. It housed the palaces built under the Ming Dynasty, in the 15th Century.

Twenty-four Ming and Ching emperors reigned from within its wine red walls until the deposition of the last emperor in 1912. Here they held court and lived with their empresses, concubines, eunuchs and thousands of other retainers and court officials.

It helps to have the history in mind when you visit, but it isn't necessary. The palaces have a purely visual impact, that is, literally, breath taking.

The balance of space and mass, of open courtyard and palace buildings, is exquisite. The curving roofs, taking up one half and more of the height of the buildings, sweep gracefully above the supporting straight lines of pillars.

There is color in abundance, in the lavishly employed white marble, the red walls of the buildings and the yellow tile of the roofs. Standing on a marble island, you are surrounded by waves of bright yellow, along which the morning sun traces gleaming diagonal breaking lines.

It is quiet inside, probably the most serene spot in Peking. The feeling of serenity is augmented by the relative absence of politics.

In an entrance pavilion, to large portraits of chairman Mao were being touched up, and the outer surfaces of the walls around the city carried slogans. From inside, though, only one slogan could be seen. "Long live invincible Mao Tse-tung's thought," it said. It was hanging high on the hall of ancestral worship.

Before 1966 Forbidden City Was Prominent Attraction For Thousands of Foreigners

Across a vast courtyard, set on a triple terrace of white marble, stands the most magnificent structure in the Forbidden City — the hall of supreme harmony. It was used for such great occasions as the ceremony of accession to the throne, the emperor's birthday or the nomination of generals before a campaign. In setting, size and design, it is considered one of the two masterpieces of Ming architecture in Peking. The other is the Temple of Heaven in the southern part of the capital.

The hall is 87 feet high, 210 feet long and 115 feet wide. Six central columns inside are gilded and carved with dragons. Others are bright crimson and lead up to a decorated ceiling. On a raised platform in the middle of the hall, backed by an intricately carved screen and surrounded by incense burners is the throne.

It sits in the middle of the platform, in the middle of the hall, in the middle of the Forbidden City, in the heart of Peking, the capital of Chung Kuo — the middle kingdom, or central country. From here, in the exact centre of the world, the mandate of heaven was exercised by its earthly holder.

The palace complex is in fair repair, although it probably wouldn't pass the scrutiny of an emperor. There are weeds poking past the paving stones in the courtyards, roof tiles are fading and broken in places and some building facades are well worn.

These deficiencies are due to wear only and not to any purposeful destruction. Keeping this huge complex with its wooden buildings in tip-top shape is a difficult and costly business.

Beyond the hall of Supreme Harmony come lesser pavilions. They succeed one another in a straight line going north until the palace of Earthly Tranquility, where Ching emperors and empresses spent their wedding nights.

To the west are the emperor's living quarters and the palaces which housed wives and concubines. They contain heavy carved furniture, rich hangings and a wealth of objects from Hanet paintings and jade ornaments to ivory boats and clocks with dragons whose wings flap.

Some of the items are a tribute to Chinese artistry. Others merely manifest the execrable taste of the evil dowager empress, Tzu Hsi, the former concubine who ruled China for nearly half a century until her death in 1908.

Old Buddha, as she was known, was not a favorite of our guide. "Enough money was spent on her birthday celebrations to feed a million peasants for one year," the guide said sternly.

Another wild extravagance came every mealtime. More than 120 dishes are said to have been prepared and served by hundreds of retainers at each meal.

These dishes consumed fabulous quantities of mutton, pork, duck, pastries and other foods. The lords and ladies of the Forbidden City didn't worry much about grovery bills.

Lawyer New PC President

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Gelinas, a lawyer from Ste. Agathe, has been named president of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, it was announced Friday.

Mr. Gelinas succeeds Fernand Alie, who announced his resignation Thursday following a dispute with national party leader Robert Stanfield.

Mr. Gelinas was defeated in the federal byelection in Labelle riding last November won by Maurice Dupras, a Liberal. The PCs have only four MPs in the 74-seat provincial house which is dominated by Liberals.

Mr. Gelinas appointment comes following a dispute lasting several months between Mr. Alie and Mr. Stanfield.

DEADLINE FOR CBS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System, refusing to show United States' congressmen material left out of The Selling of the Pentagon, has been asked by the Federal Communications Commission to answer complaints the documentary was unfair.

The network was given 20 days to respond.

Even as that deadline was being set Friday, another for CBS was running out: the 10 days given by congressional investigators to provide material collected for but not used in the documentary.

Instead of providing the material, CBS sent the House of Representatives commerce committee's special investigating subcommittee a new refusal, saying compliance "would have a chilling effect" on news reporting in all media.

A subcommittee lawyer say it may take a week to 10 days before the members decide whether to seek a contempt-of-Congress citation against the network, a possibility that could set the stage for a court action.

The Selling of the Pentagon, first broadcast last Feb. 23 and repeated March 23, stated, as the FCC described it, "that the department of defence would spend $30 million this year in "public relations funds not merely to inform but to convince and persuade the public on vital issues of war and peace."

POINT TO RESPONSES

Pentagon officials said responses by Daniel Z. Henkin, an assistant secretary of defence, to interview questions by CBS reporter Roger Mudd had been edited and rearranged in ways that misrepresented Henkin's statements.

They said that a marine colonel, quoting the premier of Laos on the "domino theory" of Asian mutual defence, was made to appear as if the words were his own.

Representative Harley O. Staggers (Dem. W. Va.), chairman of the subcommittee, ordered CBS April 8 to turn over all the material it collected in preparing the program. On April 20, after CBS refused, Staggers gave the network 10 days more to reconsider.

ANTI-LITTER LAW DUSTED OFF FOR USE

HAMILTON (CP) — Throwing an empty cigarette package away on the street will be an expensive action for city residents next week.

To mark Pollution Probe Week, police have dusted off a seldom-enforced anti-litter bylaw enacted 10 years ago.

Any one idly tossing away a cigarette package will be liable to a minimum fine of $1 or a maximum fine of $300.

"This may sound strong, but there are a lot of citizens who want to keep our streets clean," said Ald. Pat Valeriano, chairman of the city's anti-litter subcommittee.

Living With Rustic Charm By

fab·a·log

the fab-a-log story

Real logs make buildings which are not only rustic and charming but also — because they do not require any insulation — warm in the winter and comfortably cool in the summer. They are truly for all seasons. Fab-a-log makes it possible for you to have just such a structure by using pre-cut logs — each one a magnificent lodgepole pine that retains its individual rugged character.

Shaped with precision machinery to ensure perfect fitting, weather-tight construction that requires no nails, bolts or screws, every single log is uniquely notched by a patented process which provides for permanence, stability and ease of erection. Maybe you have a cosy one room cabin with a fireplace in mind, or perhaps your needs run to six or twelve of them. You may want a chalet to accommodate all your friends or something even larger. The possibilities with Fab-a-log are almost limitless.

WEEKEND'S TOP TV SHOWS

Tonight

THE WORLD WE LIVE IN. 7 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Riddle of Heredity. This show explores man's efforts to map out and eventually control genetics. Mendel's basic theories and the Austrian garden where he worked out the mathematical factors of heredity are examined.

LAWRENCE WELK SHOW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. The old maestro twirls his baton a double salute — a tribute to the Kentucky Derby, and a Mexican holiday Cinco de Mayo (5th of May), a festive day which commemorates the defeat of French troops, leading to Maximilian's downfall. You'll hear Welk and his band in "Mexican Hat Dance," "Tijuana Taxi" and, by the Hotsy Totsy Boys, "Cuanto Le Gusta." As for the Derby musical salute, what else but "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Kentucky Babe."

PEARLE BAILEY SHOW. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. Pearlie Mae does a lot of singing tonight, but the real highlight is the appearance of opera star Leontyne Price, who not only sings opera, but also "I Love You Truly" with Pearlie Mae. Liberace also does a duet with the hostess, "The Old Piano Roll Blues," and he also plays the "Love Story Theme." Pearl also contributes "Everybody's Talkin'," "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head," and "I Gotta Be Me."

MY THREE SONS. 8:30 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. (Rerun.) When girls have arguments with their parents, especially over a boyfriend, they want to elope. So Polly leaves home, heads for the Douglas house to convince Chip they should run off and get married. Only Chip doesn't bite. So they break off.

SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "The Fortune Cookie" is the picture that saw Walter Matthau leap to star status. He won an Academy Award for best supporting actor of 1966 as the ambulance-chasing, conniving, sloppy lawyer who convinces his brother-in-law, Jack Lemmon, a TV cameraman who is knocked over by a player during a football game telecast, that he has become paralysed because of the injury. Of course, Lemmon isn't injured, but that doesn't deter Matthau. Matthau is funny enough on his own to carry the picture.

MARY TYLER MOORE. 8 p.m., Channel 8. (Rerun.) What could be lonelier than working all alone — on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day? What makes matters worse for Mary is that she had planned to visit her parents for the holiday.

MANNIX. 10 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) Mannix stops at a roadside filling station and restaurant and finds himself in the middle of some mobster intrigue. A top mob boss has been sprung from prison and is attempting to get out of the country, and the race is on to see who gets him first — police or the mob. Just when Mannix thinks he's escaped, he runs into bogus police, all part of the plot, which gets a little confused at times.

Sunday

HYMN SING. 5:30 p.m., Channel 2. Nelson Lohnes is featured, singing The Old Shepherd's Prayer and Show Me My Task. Other hymns include The Place Where I Worship, Abide With Me, Amazing Grace and Night Has Drawn Its Curtain.

GUNSMOKE. 5:30 p.m., Channels 6 and 8, 9, 12. Dodge Marshal Mat Dillon and Doc Adams take a tense train-ride, returning an escaped prisoner to Dodge City. They have to contend with an influential woman who thinks the prisoner is being abused and the prisoner's friends, alert for a chance to free him.

ANIMAL WORLD. 5:30 p.m., Channel 12. Bill Burrud takes a close look at the jaguar in his natural habitats of South and Central America and shows that, while he is the most feared of all animals, he can also be friendly, as long as he's not hungry. The jaguar kills only to eat, Burrud informs us.

WONDERFUL WORLD OF DISNEY. 6 p.m., Channel 2; 7 p.m. Channel (Part III) (Rerun). This is the final episode of the "Ballad of Hector, the Stowaway Dog." Hector's search for his sea-going master, from whom he's been dognapped, takes him to Barcelona. Before the grand reunion, Hector manages to foil a gang of jewel smugglers. Guy Stockwell and Craig Hill co-star.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW. 8 p.m., Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12. (Rerun). This show helped launch the Holiday on Ice season last fall, and worth viewing again if only to watch the graceful skaters. The skating revue offers tributes to the late French singer Edith Piaf and skating star Sonja Henie. In addition, you'll hear Karen Wyman, Bobby Vinton and Rare Earth rock group sing.

THE WORLD WE LIVE IN. 8:30 p.m., Channel 9. (Rerun). An interesting documentary filmed in Antarctica shows the exploration of underwater animal and plant life. An archaeological search also turns up fossils believed to be 220 million years old.

MASTERPIECE THEATRE. 9 p.m., Channel 9. The first in a six-part dramatization of Dostoyevsky's classic novel about pre-revolutionary Russia, "The Possessed." David Collings stars as Peter Verkhovensky, the town's leading activist. Keith Bell is Stavrogin and Rosalie Crutchley is his wife. Alistaire Cooke introduces the characters. It is compelling drama and highly recommended.

GLEN CAMPBELL. 9 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun). Not necessarily a highlight, but some note of distinction in this hour is the fact that Walter Brennan, the crusty-voiced three-time Oscar winner, sings. Well, he doesn't exactly sing, he sort of talks his way through "Mama Sang a Song." Larry Storch is along for some fun, and Thelma Houston sings "Oh, Happy Day." Comedy bit has Campbell, Brennan and Storch playing frontier soldiers in bungling "F Troop" style.

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 4. "Stagecoach." To be perfectly blunt, this is a woeful updated version of the John Ford classic. The original, made in 1939, made a star out of John Wayne, and won an Oscar for Thomas Mitchel as an alcoholic doctor. Alex Cord is seen in the Wayne role, as Ringo, an escaped convict, and Bing Crosby plays the drunken Doc. Ann-Margret, Red Buttons, Mike Connors, Bob Cummings, Van Heflin, Keenan Wynn are all in this version, but it doesn't help.

FANFARE. 10 p.m., Channel 9. One good television shot can make stars. So Fanfare will attempt to create stars tonight with "Silverbird: Birth of a Navajo Rock Group." It's cameras focus on seven members of the Diaz family, full-blooded Navajo Indians who now live in the small northern New Jersey community of Dumont. There are three adults who have been making music together for nearly 20 years, and four teen-age members of the clan. They became the Silverbirds last year, and now have a recording contract with Capitol. The camera catches them in action in the Catskill mountains, at a recording session, in their home and at concerts. You'll hear them sing Indian protest songs, much as "Broken Treaties" and "Custer's Last Stand."

BOUNTIFUL LITTER DRIFTS FROM SKY

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (AP) — Bountiful high school students set out to observe Ecology Day Friday and ended up littering the neighborhood instead.

Plans called for a plane to drop 350 multi-colored balloons containing anti-pollution and anti-littering slogans on to the school grounds.

But, school officials said, the pilot apparently misjudged the wind and the balloons fell into a neighboring subdivision.

The students combed the neighborhood and retrieved most of the balloons.

Gunsmoke's Doc Adams Replaced—Temporarily

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Milburn Stone as Doc Adams on television's "Gunsmoke" is being replaced next season, despite his enormous popularity.

Stone, recovering from heart surgery, is being temporarily and reluctantly relieved by Pat Hingle, a versatile broadway, television and film actor.

"I've never met Milburn, but I feel I know him from 17 years of watching 'Gunsmoke' and his relationships with Chester and Festus," Hingle said.

Hingle will play Dr. Chapman (he hasn't been given a first name yet), a younger man who comes to town at the recommendation of Doc Adams, who has gone east to catch up on new medical methods.

"It was interesting the way they wrote Milburn out of the show," Hingle said. "He fails to save the life of a young girl but feels he could have pulled her through if he'd known more medicine. So he goes to Baltimore to study new techniques.

"En route he stops by New Orleans to see Dr. Chapman, who agrees to fill in for him in Dodge City."

Because Stone underwent surgery in Alabama before this season's episodes began shooting, the disappearance of Doc Adams and the arrival of Doc Chapman are explained in a letter.

Hingle is a younger man than Stone and studiously avoids any hint of imitating Doc Adams. He wears a wide-brimmed Panama hat, a white linen coat, bright ascot tie and brocaded flowered vest.

The moment he lands in Dodge City he is thrown in jail by Festus — who is left temporarily in charge by Matt Dillon — for moving into Doc Adams' office.

"Festus can't read, so the papers and credentials of the new doctor make no sense to him at all," Hingle said, grinning.

Nobody knows better than Hingle that it is impossible to replace Milburn Stone in the affection of viewers. He makes no attempt to fill the character, choosing instead to play an entirely different man.

"The producers and I both hope that Milburn will be back after the first six or eight shows of the season," Hingle said.

"We are shooting the show now until sometime in June. Then we go on Hiatus until Sept. 15 when production will start again. It's then that Milburn is expected to return.

"I know from personal experience about being on the critical list myself. So I wish him a very speedy recovery."

Hingle suspects he will be resented by devotees of "Gunsmoke" who see him as an interloper, unaware that Stone is recuperating and unable to work.

"I'll say one thing," Hingle concluded, "the rest of the cast and crew have made me feel right at home. They've been wonderful."

WHAT THEY SAY ISN'T RELEVANT

Those Chatty Dolls May Blow the Whistle

By RICHARD K. SHULL

HOLLYWOOD — Those plastic wonders of the television age, Barbie and her friends, were getting along nicely until they learned to talk.

Barbie, you know, is purely a creature of TV and the keystone of the Mattell toy empire. Mattell went from nothing to King of the toy market by the simple device of circumventing department store toy buyers and parents to carry their message of plastic joy directly to the kiddies via Saturday morning TV.

Once Mattell and the kids established rapport, the parents and toy buyers were forced to shape up or ship out.

So 11½-inch Barbie with 14 moveable joints and her plastic friends became the object of millions of prepubescent play fantasies, and the little old seamstresses in Taiwan and Hong Kong were hard pressed to crank out enough groovy fashion costumes for Barbie.

But two things threaten the love affair between children and fashion dolls. First, the impressionable youngsters, the inheritors of this earth, have become extremely ecology conscious and aware of the quality of life.

NOW THEY TALK

And second, Barbie and her friends were given voices, and we discovered that deep down inside, they're shallow.

Let's pull the lanyards on Ken, Barbie's frighteningly lifelike boyfriend, and P. J., one of her girl pals, and listen in on the conversation.

"I'm Barbie's best friend, P. J.," P. J. declared with an egotistical assumption that anyone could be a best friend to the haughty and disdainful Barbie.

"Barbie's a great dancer," Ken replied, plumbing the depths of his own intellect.

"Let's invite the gang over," P. J. suggested, fearful of ever being caught in contemplative solitude.

"I'll get the food for the party," Ken volunteered, eager for superficial excitement.

Ken exited for the store, and P. J. dashed to the phone. "Let's have a party with Barbie and Ken," she told one after another.

Meanwhile, Ken shouted to everyone he saw, "P.J.'s having a party! Let's go!"

"Help me get ready for my date," P. J. said anxiously when Ken returned, adding, "College parties are super fun."

"Put some records on and let's dance," Ken suggested when he was unable to think of anything pertinent to say and found himself verbally incapable to communicating with P. J.

"Wow! You're the grooviest," she declared, summing up her full range of superlatives.

When the gang assembled, Ken was immediately attracted to Jamie, a new red-haired member of the Barbie gang, who in addition to 14 moveable joints is capable of shambling along like Frankenstein's monster when grasped by the waist and dragged over a surface.

"Have you met Barbie's new friend? He asked P. J., in the way of introducing Jamie.

"I'm Barbie's best friend, P. J.," P. J. replied, sensing the new girl as a threat to her own security in the structure of the hedonistic gang of materially surfeited pleasure seekers.

"Have you met Barbie's new friend?" Ken repeated, sinking the needle into P.J.'s exposed nerve.

NOT SO SURE

"I'm Barbie's best friend, P. J.," she said again, this time her voice tinged with uncertainty.

Ken turned his back on P. J., grasped Jamie around the waist and they shambled away together. He whispered to her "I'm taking the girls shopping. Want to go?"

"I'm Barbie's best friend, P. J.," P. J. continued to mutter as she sobbed atop her bed, her entire superficial world in chaos.

Now, that what's wrong in the plastic world of Barbie and her friends no relevance.

Now, if the Barbie and friends would like to get their 14 moveable joints in sync with times, they'd be programmed to say things such as:

"The gang's going to hassle Dow Chemical, let's go!" Or, "I'll get the drinks for the party in returnable containers."

And in a lull in conversation, Ken could throw in some nifty lines such as "The air we breathe is polluted with hydrocarbons and photochemicals."

And finally, they all could declare in unison, "We're all best friends, high on clean living."

Aw, shut up.

Eviction Notices In Rent Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wall and Redekop Realty Ltd. began serving eviction notices Friday on about 60 tenants who have been conducting a rent strike.

The strike, sponsored by the Vancouver Tenants Council, developed in a dispute over recent rent increases instituted by the company. A spokesman for the council suggested that the company's action was a bluff.

TV MOVIES

Tonight

5:00: Channel 2: Bodyguard (1948 mystery). Lawrance Tierney, Priscilla Lane. Story about a detective who is framed for murder, clears himself by finding the true culprits.

8:00: Channel 6: Freud (1962 biography): Montgomery Clift, Susannah York. The early struggle for recognition and the general work of Sigmund Freud.

8:30: Channel 5: The Fortune Cookie (1966 comedy). Judi West, Ron Rich. A TV cameraman is injured while covering a pro football game and urged by an unscrupulous brother-in-law to feign serious injury and sue, sue, sue!

9:00: Channel 8: La Strada (Italian; 1954 drama). Anthony Quinn, Giulietta Masina. The action centres on a boastful circus strongman, a female assistant, and a clown who taunts him.

9:30: Channel 4: Woman of Straw (British; 1964 drama). Gina Lollobrigida, Sean Connery. Excellently produced melodrama about wealth, murder and revenge on the Riviera.

11:00: Channel 7: Madame X (1966 drama). John Forsythe, Constance Bennett. The ancient tear-jerker about the tragic lady who sacrifices all for love and her son.

11:15: Channel 5: Lisa (1962 drama). Stephen Boyd, Donald Pleasence. The story concerns a flight across Europe by a disturbed Jewish refugee right after the Second World War, and the aid she gets from a police officer who teams up with her.

11:40: Channel 2: Masquerade (1965 adventure). Cliff Robertson, Marisa Mell.

Sunday

9:00: Channel 4: Stagecoach (1966 western). Alex Cord, Ann-Margret. Remake of John Ford's 1939 classic about seven passengers on a stagecoach heading through dangerous Sioux Indian territory.

9:00: Channel 12: The Dark at the Top of the Stairs (1960 drama). Robert Preston, Dorothy McGuire. William Inge's play about a mid-Western family is brought to the screen with all the dramatic moments intact.

10:00: Channel 7: Some Came Running (1958 drama). Dean Martin, Shirley MacLaine. An all-star cast brings James Jones' novel about life in a small mid-western town after the Second World War to the screen.

11:20: Channel 6: The Art of Love (1965 comedy). Dick Van Dyke, Elke Sommer. (See Sat. 11:15 Ch. 8 for details).

11:45: Channel 4: Sweet Bird of Youth (1961 drama). Paul Newman, Geraldine Page, Ed Begley. Some fine performances, including an Academy award won by Begley, keep things interesting.

DAYTIME TV STAR Anne Jeffreys (Bright Promise, 2 p.m. Monday to Friday, Channel 11) is mother of three, trained opera singer and has appeared in 47 movies, 28 stage plays and over 100 television shows. She steadfastly maintains, however, that family comes before career.

KIERANS KEPT ALMOST EVERYONE IN STITCHES

Finally He Got His Wish: Visit With PM

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Eric Kierans finally got his wish last Tuesday — an appointment with the prime minister himself.

It must have been a charming tete-a-tete with the bilingual pair exchanging an interesting variety of translations for "fuddle-duddle."

Never again is an out-going communications minister likely to display talent for communicating on so many levels, nor the Ottawa press corps likely to be in position to understand him so well.

"My dear prime minister: I appreciate very much our lengthy discussion yesterday . . ." Kierans began his April 28 letter of resignation which Prime Minister Trudeau tabled in the Commons Thursday.

The delicious depth of sarcasm in the seemingly innocuous opening words can only be appreciated through a flash back to a late February night when Kierans was officially standing in for Trudeau as guest of honor at the annual National Press Club ball here.

Kierans kept everyone in stitches except for a sprinkling of fellow cabinet ministers attending the gala function as he recounted how he came to be there.

He delivered the story in stand-up comic style but there was no mistaking the undiluted bitterness that underlay his performance.

Kierans revealed that for months, ever since his departure from the postmaster's portfolio, he tried repeatedly to have a private chat with Trudeau without success. He couldn't even get an appointment with Trudeau's secretary.

Then, out of the blue, two days earlier he received a message to drop over to the East Block where Trudeau has his offices.

Overjoyed and with palpitating heart, he rushed over

Private Chat With Trudeau Long Eluded Him

only to find that he had been summoned to meet one of Trudeau's aides and not the grand panjandrum himself.

Initial disappointment, however, was soon smothered by the vast consolation that he would have lunch at last with a VIP.

With a droll roll of the eyes, Kierans allowed as how a mere cabinet minister like him "doesn't get to have lunch every day with someone from the PMO" (the widespread abbreviation for the prime minister's office).

And so he was informed Trudeau couldn't make the press ball and would like him to pinch-hit.

Kierans confessed he immediately turned his head to make sure there was no one standing there to stick a knife into his back . . . a reflex twitch he had picked up since joining the Ottawa political circle . . . before agreeing.

All in the hopes of earning credits towards the previlege of meeting the Big Man himself someday, Kierans concluded with a smile on his face and none in his eyes.

His silent signals were clear then just as they were between the lines of the letter of resignation he wrote Wednesday.

Those signals fairly screamed accusations of "sell-out" at the foreign investment policy being put together behind the scenes now by Trudeau's cabinet.

Kierans can claim to be completely consistent.

Three years ago the leading nationalist among the Liberals, Walter Gordon, resigned from the cabinet and the same day Kierans took time out of his hectic campaign for the party leadership to express deep regret.

He said both had the same objective . . . "The preservation of Canada's independence in economic and monetary affairs" and priased Gordon for having commissioned the study of Canadian industry which resulted in the Watkins Report.

Deep Regret When Gordon Quit

"This report will come to be regarded as a milestone in Canadian history . . . (which) I would have been proud to sign," Kierans said in that statement March 11, 1968.

(The task force study recommended establishment of a Canada development corporation and laws which would block economic domination by the U.S. without interferring in rationalization of Canadian industry to create more jobs. It was headed by Prof. Melville Watkins who has become even better known recently as the sparkplug of the NDP's 'nationalist-izing' Waffle group.)

Kierans went on to say he was not advocating discrimination against foreign investment.

"We must, however, control foreign investment by political action. This is the responsibility of the government of every independent nation.

"Foreign capital and foreign-owned subsidiaries must respond to Canadian goals and Canadian laws just as Canadian capital abroad respond to the goals and laws of countries in which it is resident."

Then, in a prescient observation in view of the subsequent repeated delays by cabinet colleague Herb Gray to bring down his long-awaited white paper on foreign ownership policy, Kierans added three years ago:

"Foreign businessmen, who are accustomed to such legislative . . . rather than rhetorical . . . guidelines, would welcome a clear cut statement of Canadian government policy followed by clear cut government action."

He also urged dropping of exchange limits and restrictions so Canada could pursue and independent monetary policy.

And he wound up with:

"The objectives of a national policy on foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry must be, both restriction for restriction's sake, but expansion for the sake of Canadians.

NORTH AMERICA BECOMING ISLAND IN METRIC SEA

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — When your car body disintegrates from rust in three years, don't blame the steel standard.

The steel, if it bears the mark of a standards-setting association or agency, certifies only the quality of metal.

The thickness in the car body is entirely the auto manufacturer's decision.

This is an example of a common misunderstanding about the role of standards, says Dr. Robert Legget who has just completed a special report on the subject for the Economic Council and the Science Counil.

He predicts that growing public demand for better performance and other standards will make this subject one of major concern over the next few years.

His report urges the government and the public to give much greater attention than in the past to the establishment of all kinds of standards.

CHANGE IMMINENT

One reason is that a switch by Canada to the metric system of measurement is imminent. The government declared its intention last year to make the change. In addition, standards play an increasingly important role in international trade.

The problem of rapidly-rusting cars is the kind of thing that will mark the anticipated debate about standards, Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Science Council, told a news conference at which the Legget report was made public Friday.

Some people felt cars should last 10 years "but I don't think the public would want to pay the price.

"I think the public would be up in arms."

Dr. Arthur Smith, Economic Council chairman, agreed with Dr. Solandt, adding that he didn't see any rush to buy Rolls Royce cars which last longer than many North American makes.

Dr. Legget recommends that greater financial resources and expertise be provided for the setting of standards by the voluntary and governmental agencies.

NO SECRETARIAT ABROAD

At the news conference, he urged particular attention to beefing up Canadian participation in international standard-setting which soon will affect a great deal of Canadian foreign trade.

Canada had not provided a single secretariat for the international committees which draw up standards on many articles of importance to Canadian commerce.

The United States had supplied, 60, Britain 38 and European countries 100.

Dr. Leggett, himself is an active participants in bodies that have drawn up many of the existing domestic standards.

Dr. Leggett said he has never known a case where producers and users failed to reach consensus on a standard after going through the usual negotiating sessions.

Canada had not yet achieved the status it should have in the use of this consensus principle, partly because of the great difficulty in getting consumer representatives to give the subject the necessary time.

MEETING TO DISCUSS WHY

Journalism Standards 'Mediocre'

By CARL MOLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — The communications media have become a bottleneck, says Dorothy Henaut. Mediocrity is the prevailing standard in journalism, says Eric Wells.

Both are journalists who make their livings by communication. They and about 275 other journalists of print and broadcasting are in Ottawa to talk about just why communications are a bottleneck and journalism is mediocre — if they are — and what to do.

Media 71, as the weekend conference of journalists is titled, is the first such introspective assembly of the journalistic trade — or is it a profession, another subject to be discussed.

Organized by working journalists in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, the conference has attracted colleagues from all regions of the country to talk about media performance standards, ownership, freedom and organization.

Topic papers prepared for argument today and Sunday feature breast-beating themes about failures in service to the community and demands for corrective action.

SUGGESTS PROBLEM

Mrs. Henaut, for example, whose job with the National Film Board is to promote community involvement in communications, suggests that the bottleneck has developed because the media "are functioning now as one-way, top-down information funnels from the experts — those who have the power to master the media — to the consumer audience."

"But those people aren't just audience; they are citizens. And they want to participate . . . Until there is capacity for real citizen access to the media, the communications media are not doing their job."

Mr. Wells, free-lance writer and former editor of the Winnipeg Tribune, traces a deterioration in newspapers, partly because technology has been geared to improving advertising and paring costs rather than producing better news.

"As long as newspapers entertain the belief that society is ignorant and doesn't want to be informed they will perform only a superficial function, and they will be produced by people who are not interested in the events around them."

Donald Cameron, contributing editor of The Mysterious East, based in Fredericton, N.B., raps newspaper publishers but, more, rakes their employees for failing to assert themselves in the cause of excellence.

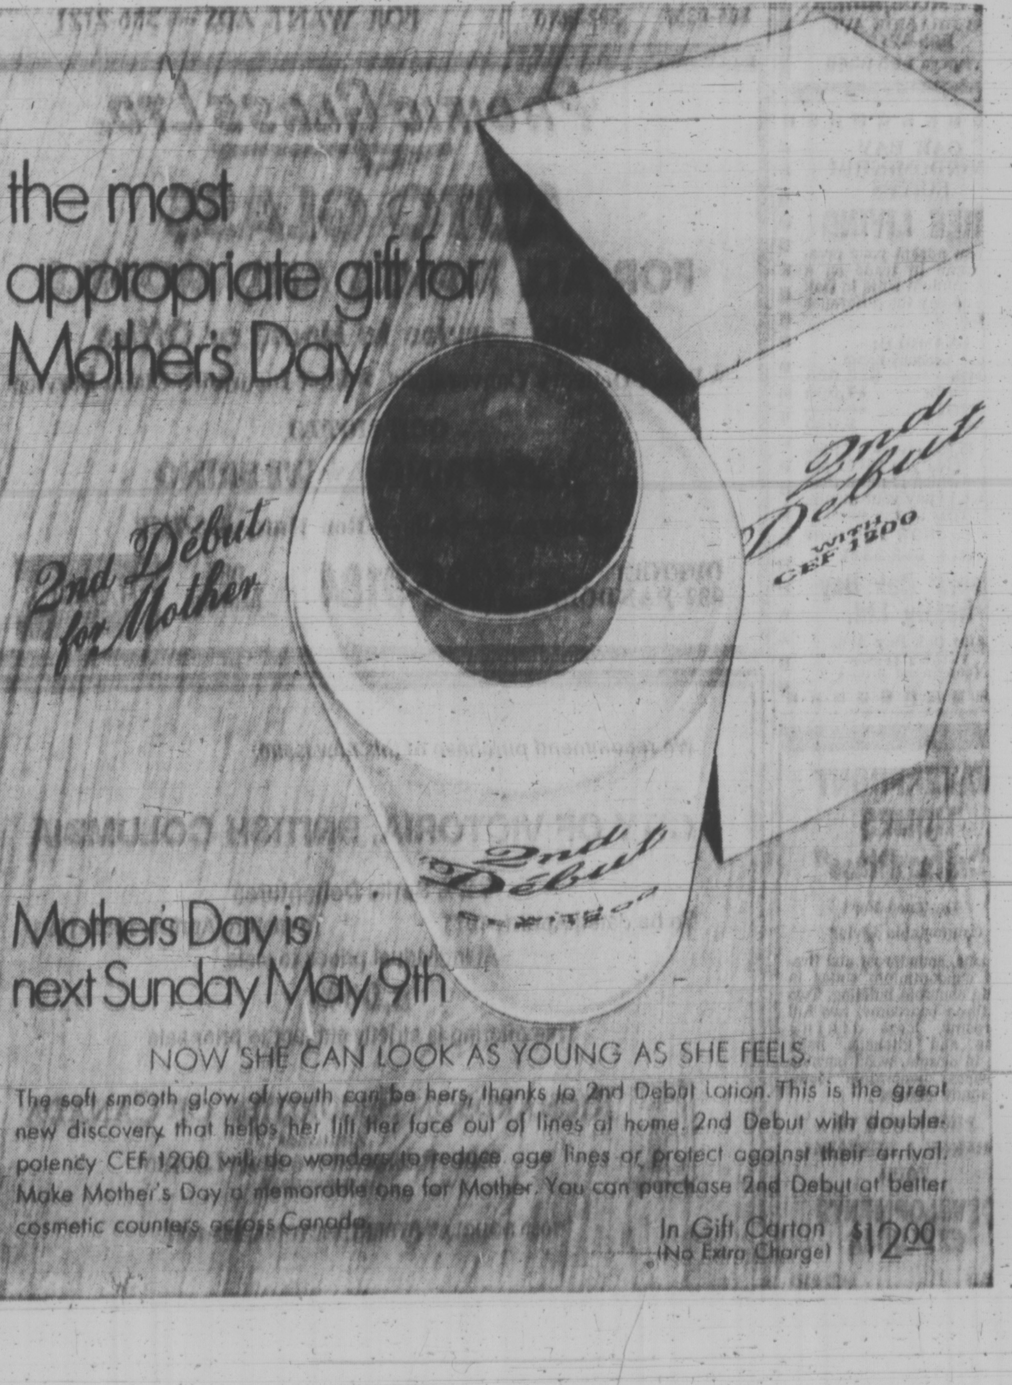
"I never saw so much cynicism and defeatism in my life as I saw among our best journalists . . . They were not only depressed; they were servile."

"Profound structural, long-range improvement in Canadian journalism is going to come from one source and only one. From journalists who demand a say in how their paper is run, from industrial democracy in the Canadian media."

MARS PROBE LAUNCH SET BACK ONE DAY

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The launch of the first of two Mars television satellites was postponed Friday from May 7 to May 8 because of an electrical problem in one of the instruments in the spacecraft.

The 2,600-pound Mariner 8, and a twin set for launch 10 days later, will attempt to orbit Mars in November and map the Martian surface, studying the seasonal changes there for at least three months.



the most appropriate gift for Mother's Day

Mother's Day is next Sunday May 9th

NOW SHE CAN LOOK AS YOUNG AS SHE FEELS.

The soft smooth glow of youth can be hers, thanks to 2nd Debut Lotion. This is the great new discovery that helps her lift her face out of lines at home. 2nd Debut with double-potency CEF 1200 will do wonders to reduce age lines or protect against their arrival. Make Mother's Day a memorable one for Mother. You can purchase 2nd Debut at better cosmetic counters across Canada.

Shell Ups Sales Revenues

TORONTO (CP) — The Steel Company of Canada Ltd. today reported record sales revenues for the first quarter of 1971, despite restricted operations in some plants because of uncertain demands in some product lines.

Sales for the three months ending March 31 were $167,382,000 compared with $161,697,000 for the corresponding period of 1970.

However, increased costs resulted in a net profit of $11,764,000 or 48 cents a share for the three months, compared with last year's $16,305,000 or 67 cents a share.

Innocent Misrepresentation Costs

By I. H. ASPER

This year's annual tax filing ritual will see about nine million individual Canadians submit their accounting to the government. There will be the usual vast number who overpay their tax and apply for a refund. By April 2 nearly half the taxpayers had filed their return in an attempt to beat

FRIDAY'S DEADLINE

Of the 4.5 million returns filed, about 2 million have already been processed by the Tax Department. Of these, over 1.7 million taxpayers were cleared for refunds, totalling over $210 million. Actually, no matter how one tends to grumble as he finalizes the annual extraction in rendering unto Caesar he cannot help but admire the almost fundamental administrative efficiency of the government processing machinery.

After the revenue officials complete the assessment of a taxpayer's return, the clock starts to tick. The government has four years after that in which to come back and issue a re-assessment. In actual fact, they have even longer because the law provides that where there has been misrepresentation of income in the taxpayer's return, the four-year time limit is extended indefinitely.

The courts have ruled, as recently as a few weeks ago, that even innocent misrepresentation will be enough to strip the taxpayer of the protection of the four year time limit during which the Revenue Department can come back and claim additional taxes. In more than one case where a taxpayer has properly reported his income and paid several thousands of dollars of tax, the rather insignificant omission of a few dollars of bank interest which he forgot about innocently, has been enough under the law to inflict all sorts of costly problems on the taxpayer.

The cost in aggravation, interest expense, penalties, and one's personal time is enough to send chills through his hand as he signs his return, but he had made a mistake and thus "mis-represented" his income.

One of the most frequent omissions taxpayers make, which send the Great Computer in Ottawa into apoplectic convulsions, is the failure to report incidental interest income.

The clasical case is the few dollars of interest one may earn on bank deposits, particularly where the bank accounts belong to taxpayer's children. Family Allowance is usually the cause. Many parents regard these payments as belonging to their children and religiously deposit the money into their child's bank account until enough is accumulated to buy a Savings Bond or similar investment.

FATHER'S INCOME

Under the tax law, the interest on this money must be declared as the father's income and he must pay the tax — failure to report it would likely constitute misrepresentation.

Another common form of income misrepresentation occurs where families have sold their homes and moved into new premises. Say they have clear title to home A and sell it, for $30,000, to a buyer who can't get it financed. He makes a downpayment of $5000 and the seller takes back a mortgage for $25,000 with interest at 9 per cent.

Most taxpayers in this position forget when they file their return that the $2250 in interest they receive is taxable, while the $2250 in interest they pay out is not deductible. In this case while the income and outgo are equal, the tax position is rather onerous and, as one taxpayer found out recently in a contested case, failure to pay the tax in this situation can be very costly, because interest is chargeable on unpaid tax, calculated from when it should have been paid, not from the date many years later when the omission is discovered.

$10,000 BILL?

In the above example, if the taxpayer's marginal rate is 40 per cent (taxable income of $10,000 plus) and the interest payments continue for five years before the Department discovers the situation, the unhappy taxpayer might very well be handed a tax bill for $10,000 when the tax, interest on the tax and perhaps penalties are added up. (The final coup de grace is administered when the taxpayer discovers that the interest and penalties he may pay on the unpaid tax aren't deductible from his next year's income.)

Then there's the taxpayer who sells his boat. The whole gear cost him $3000 and he sells it to his cashless neighbour for $2000 — $500 down and the balance payable without interest over 5 years. Now, it would seem there's nothing to declare because he's taken a $1000 loss and there's no interest on the balance.

But, the $1000 less is a capital loss — not deductible, just like a capital gain isn't taxable. And the tax law permits the government to attribute a "deemed" (imagined) interest factor to the unpaid balance. Thus on a five-year payment of the remaining $1500, the officials can and do argue that $500 or more is really interest and should be taxed as though the bulk price of the boat had taken into account a reasonable interest payment because of the extended term of payment.

If it all sounds weird, that's probably because it is.

This is not a plea for tax reform; nor is it a horror tale aimed at frightening the teen-ager who plays his guitar at church socials and forgets to declare the $10 honorarium allocated to him. The purpose of this essay, on the eve of the Great Accounting, is to deliver a message to taxpayers everywhere: before you sign, think. Remember the Computer.

Moore

Net reported was $9 million (32 cents a share) vs. $8.9 million (31 cents) a year ago. Sales were $108.88 million and $107.4 million, respectively, all in U.S. terms.

Dom. Textile

Dominion Textile Ltd. is doing considerably better business as fabric preferences change in favor of domestic weaves.

The company in the first quarter had sales of $51.6 million, up from $44.8 million, producing $1.78 million net sales vs. $967,000. In addition, the company claimed tax credit of $260,000 this year and $343,000 last year.

In the nine months just ended, the firm had sales of $137.5 million ($123 million) and before-tax credit it had operating net income of $2.87 million or $1.09 a share (2.55 million or 97 cents).

Husky

Husky oil earned $725,000 or six cents a share for the first three months of 1971, up from $249,000 (one cent) the previous year.

Sales and operating revenues were $39.44 million for the first quarter, compared with $35.22 million last year.

Earlier this year, Husky acquired 55 per cent of Empire State Oil Co., and results of Empire's operations were included in the first quarter report.

Dofasco

Dominion Foundaries and Steel Ltd. reports first-quarter net earnings dropped to $7 million or 44 cents a share from $10 million or 63 cents a share in the corresponding period of 1970.

Sales increased to $92.9 million from $89.69 million.

President F. H. Sherman says in the company report that adjustments in selling prices last year were insufficient to offset rising costs.

CIL

Canadian Industries Ltd. sales rose from $74.6 million in the first quarter a year ago to $79.4 million this year. But earnings dropped substantially, from $1.59 million (16 cents a share), to $982,000, or 10 cents a share.

N. Canadian

North Canadian Oils Ltd. improved first quarter performance this year by one cent a share, reporting 10 cents on net earnings of $559,000, from revenue amounting to $1.38 million.

This compares with $527,000 a year ago, when revenue totalled $1.26 million.

Can. General

Operating income for Canadian General Securities Ltd in the first quarter of 1971 amounted to a net $263,588 (45 cents) compared with $131,141 (22 cents) a year ago.

But the figures do not take into account extraordinary gains reported as $1.34 million this year and $3,532 in 1970.

Chemcell

Net income per share was nearly halved in the quarter ended March 31, reports Chemcell Ltd., Montreal, whose sales were off $500,000.

The company said income fell from $1.78 million (12 cents a share) to $1.1 million (seven cents), on net sales of $28.5 million. Operating income dropped from $3.35 million to $2.77 million.

AMC

The basic Javelin price drops to $2,998 from $3,365. The top-line Javelin, the AMX, will cost $3,781 compared with the previous $4,132.

A spokesman said reductions bring the selling price of the Javelin into a comparable range with Ford's Mustang.

HBOG

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. earned $4.9 million or 25 cents a share in the first quarter of 1971, up from $4.54 million (23 cents) a year ago.

The gain in earnings resulted mainly from a $2.97 million or 14 per cent increase in gross operating revenues of $24.39 million. Earnings were partially offset by additional operating costs and larger provisions for dry holes and income taxes.

Silknit

Net earnings of Silknit Ltd. totalled $129,159 or 61 cents per common share for the quarter ended March 31, compared with $41,869 or 19 cents last year. Sales at $3.79 million were 18 per cent above $3.2 million.

General improvement in operations is due to current wider market acceptance of knitted fabrics and a general increase in demand for Silknit products.

But major concern for the balance of 1971 is continuing high unemployment coupled with a rising cost of living, increased cost of operations and a high volume of textile imports into Canada, the company said.

Before the Judge

Bonnie L. Quayle, 17, of New Westminster, was given a suspended sentence Friday and placed on a two-year probation for her part in a cheque-passing spree in the city and Saanich last February involving nearly $3,600.

She pleaded guilty to 10 counts of uttering forged cheques and another count of attempted uttering.

A Victoria city policeman testified that the accused attempted to cash a Campbell River board of school trustees cheque for $418 at Eaton's department store when she was apprehended last Feb. 24.

He said investigation revealed that 50 such cheques had been stolen and the accused had cashed similar cheques at three other department stores in the city as well as six bank branches.

He added that none of the money, $3,590 in all, had been recovered.

Defence Philip Govan pointed out to Ostler that he sentenced a 20-year-old woman in March to four months determinate and 12 months indeterminate in jail for her involvement in the incident.

Ostler said both the women had been used by men who were not before the court.

He said the "contemptible and cowardly men" devised the plan and "looked for victims to carry it out."

The judge termed the older woman to whom he had given the jail term "older and more experienced" and said Miss Quayle could justifiably be given probation.

Govan had noted that Miss Quayle had no previous criminal record.

Oswald K. Underwood, 17, of 293 Atkins, was sentenced to a month in jail for uttering a forged cheque.

The charge involved a cheque he wrote and cashed at a Langford Lake store last Jan. 29.

Grahame M. Hart, 24, of Campbell River, was fined $150 for theft under $50.

He pleaded guilty earlier to taking two brass articles from a ship being dismantled at the wharves behind the Capital Iron store on Store Street.

He threw the items into the water when pursued by an investigating officer.

Brian W. Trowsdale, 17, of 2213 Millstream, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a one-year probation for taking an auto without the owner's consent.

He earlier pleaded guilty to taking a truck March 19 he found with the keys in it and driving it around until he was tired.

William W. Danyluck, 19 of 838 Craigflower, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a 18-month probation for breaking and entering with intent.

He earlier pleaded guilty to breaking into the Gorge Vale golf clubhouse April 11 about 3:30 a.m. where he was apprehended with socks, a pair of pliers and a tire iron in his possession.

Recreation Decision

A decision on recreational facilities in the Cedar Hill area of Saanich is expected to be made May 10, study committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry said Friday.

"We hope to make a decision at a meeting that day and also to appoint an architect," he said.

Among the possibilities for the $260,000 budget are an ice-skating surface and community gymnasium. Location of the project must also be decided.

JELLY BEAN PROBLEM

Edward C. Curtis of Saint John is trying to solve the sticky problem after winning one tone — that's 2,000 pounds — of jelly beans in a guessing contest sponsored by the New Brunswick Telephone Company.

The contest advertised the June opening of the new telephone tower in Moncton. Contestants were asked to guess how many jelly beans it would take to fill the communications tower.

Curtis' guess of 1,082,819,137 was closest to the correct answer and won him first prize — the ton of jelly beans.

Cheryl, 8, and Shelly, 3, are impatiently awaiting the arrival of their father's prize. "When will they be coming, Dad?" is their favorite question.

"Dad" really doesn't know when the ton of goodies will arrive on his doorstep. He wants to decide what to do with them first, said Curtis.

"The grand prize is yours to do with as you wish," a company spokesman told him, ". . . take all the time you want . . . and we will follow your instructions."

Car Companies Deny Alleged MP Deals

OTTAWA (CP) — A former Conservative MP said Friday the drive for improved car safety has been weakened by what he described as a widespread practice in which some Canadian lawmakers have been able to buy slightly used cars at "ridiculously low prices."

Howard Grafftey, Conservative party spokesman on consumer protection, told a news conference that such deals between elected officials and representatives of the Big Three auto makers are among many factors hindering the consumer movement.

He said that as an MP in 1965 such a deal was "clearly suggested" to him by Ron Todgham, president of Chrysler (Canada) Ltd. What he construed as a thinly-veiled offer, he said, was made over dinner at Ottawa's exclusive Rideau Club in July, 1965, "just when I was breaking in on the safety debate."

Following the first reports of Grafftey's comments, Todgham replied from Windsor that the company never offered to sell a car to him.

A spokesman for Ford Motor Co. of Canada said his company does not sell cars at special prices to any elected officials in Canada and added there is no auto industry lobby opposing safety legislation.

At his news conference, however, Grafftey said that while conducting a policy probe on consumer protection the last year, he came across at least a couple of instances in which Canadian legislators had accepted such deals.

He refused to name anyone involved in the deals but insisted the practice is sufficiently widespread at all levels of government "to give the auto industry enough clout to stop effective legislation on safety and quality."

"This is a practice that is not in the interest of the consuming public," he said.

Drugs Before Concert Avoided by Rubinstein

By MICHAEL BENNETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The handshake is firm, understating the power of the slightly spatulated fingers of Artur Rubinstein's right hand, and the audience with a genius begins.

Touching his surprisingly wrinkle-free brow, he ponders a headache acquired from an hour of indiscriminate television viewing and wonders if he should take an aspirin.

"I have never taken drugs before a concert," he says, arching his fuzzy white eyebrows to accentuate the statement.

"If I did, I might find myself smiling at a mistake in a passage from Chopin. That would never do!"

It's been 80 years since four-year-old Artur passed around cards reading: "Artur the great piano virtuoso" in his home town of Lodz, Poland.

He will complete a gruelling 46-concert tour of North America this year in two months, just before his 85th birthday.

"People are beginning to look at me as if I were some sort of freak," he says.

"At my age, they think it's unnatural. I do all the things I shouldn't. I stay up until 2 in the morning, smoke a good cigar, exercise every day . . . you know, running and things like that.

"If I didn't love what I'm doing, I wouldn't do it. I'll continue to play even if the people stop paying to see me."

At 11, he gave a technically difficult Mozart concert and shocked his teacher by improvising a Mendelssohn Lied Ohne Worte for an encoure.

"It's unnatural for a seven-year-old to be playing the complete works of Liszt or Beethoven — I think it must be a gland problem," Rubinstein recalls now.

"I remember a brilliant boy named Kenneth Wolfe. He was only 12 years old, but he was the best in his science class at university. Unfortunately, he lost it all by the time he was 20.

"I'm sure if the medical men were given the opportunity, they would discover something wrong somewhere."

His first public appearance in London was at Queen's Hall with his old friend Pablo Casals; he was only 20.

Rubinstein became the darling of English society, appearing regularly in The Tatler and The Sketch, but the critics refused to take him seriously as an interpreter of Beethoven.

"Audiences, especially in England, were very pedantic. They paid to hear every note and if you didn't give it to them . . . But in Russia and Poland, the Slav countries, people were more interested in the emotion and interpretation of Beethoven.

"They had a fire, a passion for the music. I am absolutely not a specialist. I fought that with a vengeance."

BORN WITH TALENT

"I was born with a talent for interpretation, not composition.

"I can change from one composer to another like a chameleon. My whole musical being is transformed.

"When I stop playing a Beethoven sonata and I have to go into Ravel's Forlana or Poissons de'Or, by Debussy, I change my whole musical nature to that of another person."

Rubinstein says the real critics are artists themselves, people who look at a concert objectively and relate to it emotionally.

"Theirs is a personal involvement. It's not just, 'Toscanini played such and such last night; the first movement was too slow and the second too fast.'

"Shall I tell you an anecdote?

"I have a friend who is a porter at the Savoy Hotel, where I always stayed in London. At least I think he liked me, although he may have liked my tips.

"The day after my concert he came up to me and said: 'Oh, Mr. Rubinstein, did you see The Daily Mail? They loved you.'

"However, when I bought a copy, I couldn't find anything about the performance.

"Are you sure it wasn't The Daily Telegraph" I asked him.

"He got me a copy of The Daily Mail and do you know what it said: 'The Old Man Jumps the Banister Again.'

"You see there were six steps leading up to the stage and I always took them three at a time, but when I read the newspaper, I wasn't looking for old men and banisters."

Manson's 'Power' Disputed

MONTREAL (CP) — Reports that Charles Manson had overwhelming control of the women members of his "family" are somewhat inaccurate, says George Bishop, author of a book about the Manson murder trial.

There were two sides to the man recently sentenced to death for the Sharon Tate murders in Los Angeles, he said in an interview.

"For as many girls who saw him as a charismatic figure, there were those who didn't.

"There were girls who told me of cruelties and sadism and pathos. He often resorted to gimmicks under the guise of sanctity and often cheated and received.

"He often pounded his girls' heads against a wall or threatened to cut off their breasts if they failed to do as he ordered. He would also express a belief or devotion to one thing, then abandon it."

Bishop, a "morning man" for Montreal radio station CJAD in the early 1950s before leaving to begin a writing career, compiled reports of in-chamber and at-bench discussions between the judge and lawyers at the Manson trial for his book, Witness to Evil.

He said he first became involved in the trial when Art Linkletter asked him to sit in and listen for a possible drug angle in the case. Linkletter has been interested in excessive drug use since his teen-age daughter, Diane, died of causes related to narcotics addiction.

"There was a drug angle to the case, but it was really overshadowed by the killings themselves."

Judge Charles H. Older, Bishop added, exercised "a distinct propriety and judicial distance" while in the courtroom.

"But in his chambers, it was a different story. He really told the defence lawyers what he thought of them and their clients in no uncertain terms."

Hospital Meeting

A sponsoring group to organize a Peninsula hospital society will meet on Monday at Rest Haven Hospital.

A. N. Howe of that hospital board will be meeting chairman.

After a licence to operate the new society is issued, a public meeting will be called to explain principles behind operation of the 150-bed acute and extended care hospital.

The public will be invited to purchase membership at $1 each and a board of trustees will include four members appointed by the sponsoring group and six elected by the membership.

F. L. Bell, administrator of Rest Haven Hospital, says that the functional program for the new Peninsula hospital has now been accepted by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, the Capital Regional board and Rest Haven board and will be in the hands of the architects Wagg and Hambleton shortly.

Tribute To Rotary

Tribute will be paid the Victoria Rotary Club Wednesday afternoon for its help in acquiring new premises for the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Mayor Courtney Haddock will be on hand for the official opening at 2 p.m. of the new branch office and White Cross Centre at 1450 Elford St.

Open house will be held from 2 to 4 p.m.

BE YOURSELF

Are you being held back by qualities or shortcomings you wish you didn't have?

If so, it may be time to learn the facts about yourself.

Where do you start? Many people are literally having their lives transformed by starting with God. They are finding that as their understanding of God grows their spiritual relationship to God becomes more apparent.

And through this they are discovering good qualities in themselves they never knew they had.

If you would like to learn what such an enlightened view of yourself can mean to your life, hear Colonel William Little of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

NO TIME FOR FRIVOLITY as these miniature musicians bear down on their pint-sized violins. More than a dozen young fiddlers appeared on stage this week in the last of Victoria Music Festival string classes. They are all students of the Suzuki method which is taking strong hold in Victoria. Tots of two and three quickly learn how to use the scaled-down instruments.

Better Weather Seen For Royal Visit

The weatherman is holding out tenuous hope for good weather during the two-day first stage of the royal family's visit to Victoria.

Rain is forecast for Sunday morning, with clearing expected in the afternoon and "fairly good weather" Monday and Tuesday.

The weatherman said today a disturbance moving across the southern part of the Island and the mainland had weakened a bit, enough to avert showers which had been forecast earlier for Tuesday.

The tour will mean a day off school Tuesday for 33,000 students and 1,360 teachers in the Greater Victoria School District. Administrative staff will be working as usual.

Welcoming fanfare will be joined by Christ Church Cathedral, which announced today that tower bells will be "sounding a joyful welcome . . . expressing loyalty and affection of the people of this city and province" when the royal party arrives Monday night and again May 11.

The possibility of trouble in Centennial Square Monday night was suggested today by the organizers of a wieners-and-beans handout in the square.

The Low Income Group, representing welfare recipients, plans to offer free food during a half-hour visit at city hall by the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne.

Walter Olszewski, president of the group, said no licence had been obtained from the city for the "poor peoples' banquet."

"If the police want to scoop us up, let them go ahead," Olszewski said.

"But if they adopt bullying tactics, there are a few members of our group who aren't going to let them get away with it. A rallying cry will go up, that's for sure."

Group volunteers planned to soak their 20 pounds of dried beans overnight tonight and cook them Sunday. The "banquet" is set for 7 p.m. Monday, about the time the Royal party leaves the Britannia for city hall.

Cadets to Preen For Iffy Visitor

The weather will be watched with mixed emotions at Royal Roads Military College next week.

Tea with the cadets is on the alternate schedule for Princess Anne if weather forces cancellation of a flying visit by the princess to Tofino to officially open Pacific Rim Park.

She is scheduled to fly by RCMP Twin Otter to Tofino and back in a quick three-hour trip that is to include a walk on the beach as well as the opening ceremonies.

If bad weather prevents that expedition, she'll join cadets and staff in a full-dress tea on the terrace at Royal Roads. If the weather's good here and at Tofino, there will be no royalty at the college's royal tea.

Little Hope Indicated To Avert City Strike

Negotiators for the city and outside municipal workers met separately in morning and afternoon sessions with a provincial mediator today in a last-ditch effort to avert a strike which could be called Monday.

The strike, which would cut such services as garbage collection, street cleaning, road maintenance, parks care and sewage and drain clearing, is threatened by members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The city was standing pat in today's talks on its final offer to the union, two wage increases of 7½ per cent each over two years. Base rate for the workers now is $2.93 an hour.

At city hall this morning mediation officer Clark Gilmour met alternately with municipal representatives in the mayor's office and with union negotiators gathered upstairs in council chambers.

Gilmour made two trips between the groups before Ald. Ove Witt announced that talks had been suspended until 3:30 p.m., to permit Victoria delegates to attend a long-planned capital regional district seminar.

NOT A GOOD IDEA

"It would not be a good idea if no one showed up for the seminar from the municipality which proposed it in the first place," Witt said.

Although union representatives remained huddled over the city's offer in council chambers, little hope for averting a strike was held by the city.

Mayor Courtney Haddock, who said he has been tied up through much of the negotiation period with preparations for the Royal visit, reportedly has prepared a final appeal to the workers should the talks fail. His appeal is believed to ask the union not to put personal interests ahead of the city as a whole.

NOTICE GIVEN

Union spokesmen declined comment on progress in the mediation attempt. The union gave the necessary 72-hour strike notice some time ago, but no strike would be legal until the mediation officer has submitted his report.

About 270 outside workers are involved in the dispute.

The city stand has been supported by Sidney council, who said in a letter to Mayor Haddock Friday the municipality was supporting Victoria and would take the same position if a dispute arises there.

A strike next week would affect the city's efforts to present a scrubbed and shining face for the royal visit, which begins Monday night.

Volunteers Needed For Crash Pad List

Anyone who will put up young travellers for one or more nights this summer can get on the Summer Crash Pad list in Ottawa.

This service will supplement hostels which aren't expected to accommodate all the youthful transients who will be on the road between June and September.

The following information is requested from people who want to get on the list: preference of male or female guest, how many nights they can stay, fees if any, telephone and complete address.

Inquiries should be sent to Summer Crash Pad Service, 3rd Floor, 102 Bank St., Ottawa.

Just over 300 names have been listed to date, according to a release, and many more are needed.

In Victoria, Cool Aid maintains a list of about 20 families where couples who don't want to be separated can be billeted. The organization would like to get more names for billets, said worker Laurie Smith.

BIBLIOGRAPHY PROJECT

Uvic Hires Ousted Librarian

LORT—
chosen from 20

His assignment — to produce a bibliography of British Columbia encompassing the years 1900 to 1965.

It is six months to the day, Nov. 1, that he was forced to resign by the library board because of his opposition to some of the recommendations made in the controversial efficiency survey made by the Vancouver management consultant firm of Woods, Gordon.

Dr. R. H. Roy, associate professor of history at the university and a member of Uvic's Social Science Research Centre, said Lort was chosen out of a field of "between 15 and 20 applicants from both the United States and Canada."

He estimates the bibliography will take at least three years to complete.

"We didn't know that Mr. Lort would be applying . . . we're fortunate to have a man with such an extensive knowledge of B.C. history."

Roy said the volume will be the third to have been initiated by the university as a centennial project.

The first bibliography, which covered the years 1849 to 1900 contained 2,200 entries. Its bibliographer was Mrs. Barbara Lowther, head of the documents-serials department of the university's library.

The second volume, covering 1748 to 1848, had 600 entries and was prepared by Mrs. G. M. Strathern, now a member of the library staff at the University of Western Ontario.

Roy said the new bibliography will be much more extensive than its predecessors because of the amount of material recorded for those years.

"It will be a tremendously useful book, both for historians and those in the social sciences."

Mrs. Margaret Edwards, who helped in the preparation of the second bibliography, will be Lort's assistant.

The bibliography will be a compilation of everything published about B.C. during the period concerned, with the exception of government documents, newspaper reports and magazine articles.

Roy said the provincial government has already compiled a bibliography of government documents.

"I was stunned to hear about a year or so ago," said Roy, "that there are 110 newspapers publishing in B.C. They need a bibliography of their own."

Since the project was started, financial assistance has been given by both the Canada Council and the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation. The latter provided $1,500 in 1965-1966 and two grants from the council in 1966-1967 contributed another $7,500.

Merger Announced By Private Schools

Amalgamation of St. Michael's and University schools here the two oldest independent schools in British Columbia, was announced today.

The school will be known as St. Michael's University School.

The union will make the school the second largest independent school in the province, said Peter Caleb, headmaster of St. Michael's who has been appointed headmaster of the merged school. St. George's in Vancouver is the largest.

St. Michael's, at 820 Victoria, has 170 students; University at 3400 Richmond has 130.

John Nation, president of the board, said the amalgamation will provide boys at St. Michael's with additional sporting facilities.

"Up to now St. Michael's has been a day school," he said. "It can now allow for boarders. They will use the dormitories at the senior school."

Caleb, headmaster at St. Michael's for seven years, said immediate plans call for the refurbishing of all dormitories at the Richmond Road school.

"Despite new classes and a new library, St. Michael's is bursting at the seams," he said.

$5,000 Damage In City Blaze

An early morning fire caused about $5,000 damage to the top floor of a four-suite apartment at 1163 View today.

A city fire department official said the blaze which broke out shortly before 7:30 a.m. was confined to the living room of one suite.

20-FOOT-HIGH REPLICA

Museum to Make 'Discovery'

The Provincial Museum this summer will launch its most ambitious project in its three years — a full-sized replica of the stern-to-midship section of Captain George Vancouver's HMS Discovery.

While it may be only half a ship, Dan Gallagher, museum curator of history, believes Capt. Vancouver would approve the museum plans.

The section will be an exact replica, more than 20 feet in height — "not a makeshift," he said. "It will be a detailed job undertaken by experts."

The stern section was chosen because it was the most interesting part of the ship, containing the captain's cabin, plus a good part of the deck.

The exhibit will tell the story of Vancouver's voyage of discovery in 1792-93-94 which included the charting of Vancouver Island and mainland waters.

His chart is considered a masterpeice of map-making.

Other areas on the Discovery will be used to display B.C.'s maritime history.

The replica will form part of the human history exhibit . . . a project featuring B.C. history.

"We hope to start the Discovery in July," said Gallagher. "It's a tremendous project and will take at least a year to complete."

Ted Roberts of Delta, who has spent years of research on the construction of the vessel and its history, will be in charge of the project.

SISTERS DONATE OLD SCHOOLHOUSE

One of the oldest schools in British Columbia will get a new lease on life.

The Sisters of St. Ann have donated to the Provincial Museum their old wooden schoolhouse built in 1858 when British Columbia was still a colony.

The school is on Humboldt facing south near Blanshard.

History curator Dan Gallagher said the building will be moved to a site in the Thunderbird Park - Helmcken House area and used as a museum classroom.

The Victoria Real Estate Board has offered to pay cost of moving.

The school, with a floor area of about 20 by 35 feet, will be renovated.

PHONE RINGS. THE call is from Portsmouth, England. For a moment, three voices volley to and fro. They belong to a male British operator, one of our Times switchboard ladies, and a third party who seems to be speaking from the bottom of a well.

Then things sort themselves out, and here's Beau Tracey of Oak Bay with a message to impart.

On Sunday, as an unofficial ambassador of goodwill, he plans to convey an advance welcome from Victoria to Prince Philip.

A nice gesture. But will Ernest J. "Beau" Tracey, who lives at 2411 Epworth Street when at home, kindly explain what he's doing in England, and how he proposes to deliver his greeting?

Tracey, voice coming in more clearly now, proceeds to oblige.

The Royal Marine Association is celebrating its 25th anniversary in Portsmouth. Tracey, a former Marine and a veteran of the First World War raid on Zeebrugge, wouldn't have missed it for anything. He grabbed a plane over.

When he learned that Prince Philip and Lord Louis Mountbatten planned to attend, he decided to offer the prince an informal salute from this city.

"I mean to pass on Victoria's best wishes and hopes for a happy visit," Tracey said. "And I don't think it would be out of line to hope that Her Majesty's cold is on the mend."

For gallant ex-marine Tracey, now a hardy 71, this will be a second meeting with Mountbatten. The first was in Belgium three years ago, at ceremonies commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Zeebrugge assault.

Only 17 marines from Tracey's platoon of 40 returned from that battle fought upon St. George's Day of 1918. Tracey, with a shrapnel wound for a souvenir, remained in the service until 1948. Then he fulfilled a long-held ambition by retiring to Victoria.

Beau wishes he could be home for Tuesday's Royal visit, but his flight schedule won't land him here quite in time. Still, to Oak Bay's self-appointed emissary go the first words of welcome!

If you belong to practically any club, association, organization or committee, there's a chance that you may one day find yourself joed to take charge of public relations. One of your tasks will then be to keep the press informed of your group's significant doings.

It's a thankless job, but here are a few do's and dont's that will make it easier for you and us.

Do supply all necessary names, places, times and dates.

Names are tricky. You may feel like an idiot when you ask John Smith to spell it out. But for all you know, he may be Jon Smythe.

Be sure to supply us with first names as well as last. Or, if the subject prefers, use his first-name initials. (Not just "Mr. Doe," or "J. Doe," but "J. W. Doe.") If he has a title — vice-president, secretary-treasurer, general manager . . . tuck that in, too, making sure you get it right.

If you don't type, do write clearly. We're pretty good at deciphering spider-crawl scribbles, but that takes time; a commodity often in scant supply.

While we're glad to offer suggestions if we have 'em, don't expect us to think up campaigns, presentations and newsworthy angles for you. That's your job as public relations rep.

If you possibly can, do your dropping in before 10 a.m. or after 2 p.m. What with a deadline to meet and a paper to put to bed, the hours between are busy-busy-busy.

Don't tell a newsroom denizen that your group has just purchased advertising space and in consequence expects a big news spread. His eyes will redden and he will begin to snarl.

And speaking of space, don't be too disappointed if your item is boiled down to the essentials. Our news columns are elastic only to a point, and the pressure on them is terrific.

That's it for this spring-scented week, and off now with kind thoughts for six senior students at George Pearkes Clinic. Working like beavers, the kids have made 60 yellow silk arm-bands to be worn by attendants on the Royal visitors.

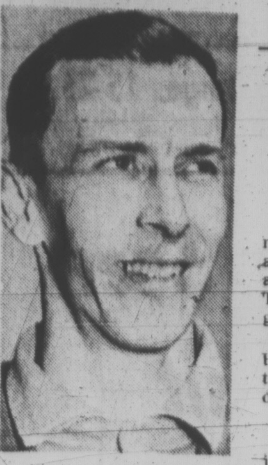
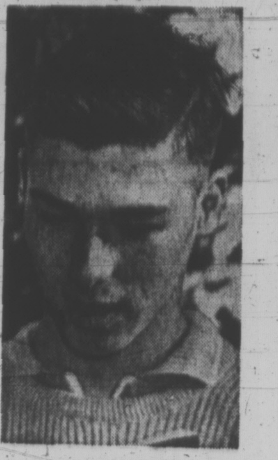
Talented Foe Just One of Rick's Worries



BOB HUNT
. . . Upland' threat



RICKY KENT
. . . back on scene

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Rick Kent admits he is more than a bit apprehensive about his second-round match against Bob Hunt in the Times Vancouver Island Open golf tournament.

Kent has great respect for Hunt's ability, but it isn't only the opposition that puts Ricky on guard.

It's also the timing.

Theirs is one of the more interesting matchups in the second round of the Island's major match-play tournament, to be playd Sunday at Glen Meadows.

Both are respected amateurs. Hunt is Uplands' scratch representative still in contention for the Daily Times Trophy. And Kent, back in competitive golf after a two-year layoff, is not without impressive credentials.

He's been trying to put his name on the Times Trophy since he was 15. Rick has qualified for match play in six of his nine starts, but his tenure in match play has been short-lived. He has yet to survive the second round.

Kent was a first-round victim on four occasions, was beaten in the second round in his two other appearances in the championship.

"You start to wonder," says Rick. "But that is what makes match play so interesting. You never know what is liable to happen."

Rick, naturally, is hoping the "right things happen" this Sunday. Reaching the third round would be a milestone for the capable Glen Meadows golfer who might have been a tournament medallist but for a scoring error in 1964.

Kent had the Island Open medal "in the bag" until a scoring error was detected. It cost him two strokes, and Uplands' Gord Pellow won medal honors by one.

Kent got a big start in his effort to claim top honors this year by knocking off Gorge Vale's Dave Mick in last Sunday's opening round at Colwood.

While Hunt and Kent are waging their duel, two youthful golfers will try to sideline the only former champions still alive in the field of 16. Cedar Hill's Jim Girard faces heavily-favored Bill Wakeham. Uplands' amateur Dave McCall is matched against Norm Boden, who, like Wakeham, is a pro and two-time champion.

Sunday's survivors advance into the May 9 quarter-finals at Gorge Vale. Semi-finals will be played May 16 at Uplands and the finals will be run off May 23 at Victoria Golf Club.

Handicap division matches will start at 10 a.m. and championship pairings start teeing off at 10:28 a.m.

BILL WALKER

DISA AND DATA — If Buck Houle takes the manager's job with the California Golden Seals, it will be a case of doing the thing that he likes best. He made that point crystal clear when he was in town last week. Still, the problem he would face isn't an inviting one. It is estimated that the Seals lost in the neighborhood of $400,000 last season, which is reason enough that Finley was quoted as saying that he was terribly dissatisfied with the club.

Then, of course, there is the question of getting hockey players. The Seals already have traded off their draft choices for the next few years and have little to show for it. However, it is known that Buck has the connections necessary to circumvent the situation, which is probably what Finley is banking on . . . experienced GMs are not that easy to come by, either.

With attempts being made to set up a super mile race between Jim Ryun, Marty Liquori and Kip Keino, it is interesting to note that a few weeks ago three Australian runners broke four minutes for the mile at an international meet in Melbourne. The race was scheduled to have Ryun as its star performer, but a pinched nerve prevented him from competing . . . The barrier-breakers were Chris Fisher, 3:59.1, Graham Crouch 3:59.5, and Tony Benson 3:59.8 . . . also from down under is the news that a 14-year-old schoolgirl, Shane Gould, is being touted as potentially Australia's greatest woman swimmer . . . Miss Gould recently became only the second Australian woman to break one minute for the 100 metres when she was timed in 59.7 . . . Dawn Fraser, the Olympic and British Empire Games star was the first.

Art Cottrell was reminiscing the other day about horse races, and spills . . . and the story that came to mind was when jockey Willie Gargan was killed at Vancouver . . . oldtimers likely will recall the incident . . . Gargan had gone down in a five-horse jam, and been crushed to death . . . Racing officials, in an attempt to make track patrons forget what had happened, started the next race 15 minutes early . . . But they forgot to tell the ticket sellers, and this caused an unusual situation to say the least . . . For a horse called Mineral Jim was still being wagered on when he was being led back to the stable area from the winner's circle . . . Mineral Jim had gone to the post about 20-1, but paid off at around $9.00 . . . There was no automatic shutoff of betting facilities in those days . . . Besides, it was probably the only case in history where punters could bet on the winner after the race had been run . . . Incidentally, the leading money-winner among jockeys in 1970 was Lafitt Pincay Jr. with earnings of $2,626,526 . . . Then there was the bettor who won $2,642.40 daily double at Tropical, invested his winnings in property at Surfside, Fla., later built a residence there and finally was elected mayor . . .

Like father, like son . . . well, almost . . when young Bob Beauchemin, 16, won medallist honors with a 68 in the qualifying round of the Times Vancouver Island Open championships at Oak Bay, father Emile certainly had every right to be proud, even if he didn't make it to the championship with his 83 . . . Besides, he could look back to when similar honors once came his way in the Manitoba junior championship . . . The following quote from the Washington Post is interesting, too, as it applies to sport: . . . "Baseball is more of a war of skills than of strength. Brute strength in one football player can, and often does, overmaster the pure science in another. In baseball, this could not possibly occur." . . . It is more interesting perhaps that the excerpt is originally from "America's National Game . . . Baseball," by A. G. Spalding. It was written in 1911. And one reason, perhaps, why Richie Allen, the controversial slugger acquired by the Los Angeles Dodgers, didn't get off to a hell-fire start, is that he was recovering from a peculiar spring-training accident . . . he had run into a palm tree!

When Jackie Parker of the B.C. Lions came off the 18th green at Uplands the other day, he got a handshake from an old friend . . . Ernie Farmer wanted to say "hello" again . . . Ernie had been manager of the West team in the East-West Shrine game which was played in Vancouver in 1956, and as such had to look after the well-being of the players . . . And what a fateful day it turned out to be . . . Football fans likely will recall what happened after the game, more than they will the score of the contest . . . For that's when a TCA plane carrying 62 passengers smashed into a B.C. mountain and killed all aboard . . . Five of those were football players, four from Regina and one from Winnipeg, and for a time it was thought that Parker was on the aircraft . . . Farmer recalled that he had driven Jackie to the airport, and Jackie remembered the event well . . . "I was on way to Knoxville, Tenn.," he said, "and it was while I was hung up waiting for a flight in Cincinatti, that I learned of the crash. I was passing a news stand and spotted a headline which said 'North Star' . . . I was about to walk on when that name rang a bell. It was the name of an aircraft in Canada. I then read of the crash and immediately phoned my folks. They were about to go crazy; they didn't know where I was, and naturally feared the worst."

Still a staunch Lion fan, a former club director, and the holder of a B.C. Lion charter membership card, Ernie asked Jackie about the prospects of cablevision for the coming season . . . "It was almost set," said Jackie, "but now is held up." The gist of the matter, Parker explained, is that TV station CTV has to give its permission, and hasn't yet . . .

Brisk Betting Action at Grand Central Terminal

No Mint Juleps, But New Yorkers Eager for Kentucky Derby Action

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nobody sang "My Old Kentucky Home" and nobody served mint juleps, but New Yorkers jammed four betting sites Friday night for as big a piece of action on today's Kentucky Derby as can be had this side of Lousiville for $2.

"Now I'll watch with more interest," a man from East Orange, N.H., said after he placed a bet at Grand Central Terminal, one of the locations for betting parlors of the city's new Off-Track Betting Corp.

"In years past, you watched the Kentucky Derby (on television) and really didn't care who won," the man said. "Maybe you picked a horse out in your mind, I'll make it a point to watch."

The man had placed a $10 win bet on Eastern Fleet and a female companion was waiting in line to bet the exacta, in which the bettors must pick the first and second finishers in order in the Derby.

OTB accepted only win and exacta bets for this first race outside New York on which it is taking wagers.

Kentucky State officials and Churchill Downs had tried unsuccessfully to prevent the city-operated OTB from taking Derby bets. They argued New York betting might cut into the wagering and attendance at Louisville. But most of the persons waiting at Grand Central had never been to a Kentucky Derby.

OTB itself was a winner Friday as it announced it has reached the break-even point after only a few weeks of operation. Derby wagering amounted to $500,000 early Friday night and OTB officials predicted another $400,00 would be taken in today.

The OTB locations originally were scheduled to close at midnight, but were kept open until 4 a.m. today.

Rangers Hope Momentum Will Carry Them to Final

CHICAGO (AP) — Cherishing a well-earned rest, Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers geared for the conclusion of their semi-final Stanley Cup series Sunday.

The two clubs, deadlocked at three games each, will clash Sunday afternoon to decide which team will advance to the finals for a meeting with Montreal Canadiens.

The game will be televised by both the CBC and CBS networks, starting at 11 a.m. PDT.

While the Rangers huffed and puffed to a 3-2 victory over the Hawks in the third period of a sudden death playoff on Pete Stemkowski's goal Thursday night, the Canadiens earned a finals berth with a 3-2 triumph over Minnesota North Stars to win the series 4-2.

OVERCAME DEFICIT

The Rangers, who had to come back from a two-goal deficit Thursday night, are confident they have the momentum to beat the Hawks on Chicago ice Sunday.

Coach Emile Francis called the triumph "the greatest performance ever put on by a Ranger team I've coached" while Stemkowski, who now has scored overtime goals for two of New York's triumphs in the series flatly said: "We're going to win Sunday and we know it."

The Black Hawks, confident they can win at home, made no bold predictions but were still lamenting their missed opportunities to end the series in the second overtime period Thursday night.

That was when Stan Mikita and Bill White swarmed over goalie Ed Giacomin but couldn't put the puck in the net. Mikita shot from 20 feet sent Giacomin sprawling. White took the rebound and shot only to hit the net post and bounce away. Mikita shot again and the puck went through the crease, hit the post and bounded out.

By this time Rod Seiling came to the rescue and fired the puck the length of the ice.

ESPOSITO BRILLIANT

Although the Rangers had 48 shots on net to only 26 for the Hawks, coach Billy Reay was disappointed to see Tony Esposito's brilliant performance in the nets go to waste.

"Tony was so great," said Reay. "It's a shame it had to end this way. You couldn't have asked for two teams to give more than these two and how it comes down to just one game . . . the 13th of the season for the two of us."

During the regular season the two teams met six times, each scoring three victories and each winning one away from home.

This has been the exact pattern of the playoffs with three of the games going into overtime.

Jockeys May Strike

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Jockeys on the Ontario thoroughbred racing circuit have announced they will refuse to accept mounts after next Wednesday if their pay demands are not met.

Tak Inouye, secretary-manager of the Jockeys' Benefit Association of Canada, served notice Thursday of the jockeys' intent to the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, the Jockey Club and the Ontario Racing Commission.

Blues Start Searching

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The search was on today for a new coach for the St. Louis Blues to replace Scotty Bowman, who led the National Hockey League team to the Stanley Cup playoffs three straight years.

Bowman ended four days of speculation and rumor Friday about a rift between himself and Sidney Salomon Jr., president of the Blues, and Sidney Salomon III, executive vice-president. He announced his resignation as coach and general manager.

Most often mentioned replacement as coach is Harry Sinden, who led Boston Bruins to the Stanley Cup championship a year ago. The 38-year-old Sinden quit the Bruins last year.

Others reported to be under consideration include Sid Abel, former coach and general manager of the Detroit Red Wings, and Dickie Moore, long-time star of the Montreal Canadiens.

Complicating the picture is the fact that the Blues already have a coach under contract. Former Blues' defenceman Al Arbour signed a two-year contract last June 5 as coach, and thus has a year to run. Arbour returned to the ice in mid-season, and Bowman took over his duties as coach.

The two jobs of coach and general manager apparently will be kept separate by the Blues. For the time being, the younger Salomon and vice-president Lynn Patrick will handle the office duties. The new coach will devote himself to matters on ice.

Bowman had three years remaining on a five-year contract.

Asked to specify the reasons for his departure Bowman said, "There are some confidence I will never reveal. I can't put my finger on the one thing that brought it about."

Hebner Bucks Odds By Belting Lefties

By The Associated Press

Baseball strategy took a couple of strange twists in National League action Friday.

Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Diego Padres 5-3 with left-handed batting Richie Hebner delivering three hits, including the game-winner, giving him six hits in the last two games, all against lefties.

New York Mets trimmed Houston Astros 4-3 in 12 innings with Ken Boswell making a dazzling game-ending catch after shading pull-hitter Bob Watson, a right-handed swinger, to hit to right field instead of left.

St. Louis Cardinals ended a four-game losing streak with a 4-2 decision over Montreal Expos as Jose Cardenal drove in the winning runs with a seventh-inning triple. No pinch hitter stirred even though until that hit, Cardenal was 0-for-17.

CUBS BLANKED

Elsewhere in the NL Friday, Philadelphia Phillies shut out Chicago Cubs 1-0, Atlanta Braves took Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2 and San Francisco Giants whipped Cincinnati Reds 7-5.

In the American League, Kansas City broke Baltimore's two-year spell as the Royals edged Orioles 5-4 on Fred Patek's ninth-inning single. It was Kansas City's first win in 24 starts against Baltimore.

Boston Red Sox checked Minnesota Twins 4-3; Chicago White Sox walloped Washington Senators 8-1; New York Yankees stopped Milwaukee Brewers 5-1; Detroit Tigers beat California Angels 7-4 and Oakland Athletics turned back Cleveland Indians 3-1 in the other American League games.

HAS THREE HITS

Hebner, freed of the platoon system he played under last year, celebrated with three more hits against the Padres, including the seventh-inning single that snapped a 3-3 tie. Earlier he had singled and doubled in Pirate rallies that wiped out a 3-0 Padre lead built on Ollie Brown's home run.

"There's nothing like playing every day," said the happy Hebner.

Hebner's winning hit brought home Dave Cash, who had singled with two out in the seventh and moved up on a passed ball. Al Oliver tripled another run home in the eighth.

The Mets built a 3-0 lead against Houston but the Astros came back to tie on Joe Morgan's eighth inning homer.

Singles by Bud Harrelson and Boswell sandwiched around a sacrifice got the Mets the go-ahead run in the 12th but Houston had two on and two out in the bottom half with Watson at bat.

CONSIDERED ODDS

"I knew I should play him to pull," said second baseman Boswell, "but he already had three hits, all to the right side. So I shaded him to right a bit. I kept saying to myself, 'I shouldn't be over this far.'"

But it paid off for Boswell when Watson lifted a soft liner to the right side and the Met second baseman made a one-hand catch to end the game.

Bowlers Decide Titles In Rolloff Play Sunday

BOWLING QUALIFIERS

Qualifiers for Sunday's Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs, listed in order of the weeks in which they qualified by winning awards in the eighth annual Times Bowler-of-the-week contest:

Only one more day of waiting remains for more than 100 southern Vancouver Island bowlers who have qualified for rolloffs in the eighth annual Bowler-of-the-Week competition.

On Sunday afternoon, 26 winners of Bowler-of-the-Week awards in each of the contest's four division — fivepin and tenpin sections for both men and women — will be eligible to match skills in battles for cash, trophies and Bowler-of-the-Year titles.

Fivepinners will step into action first, hitting the boards at Town and Country Lanes at 1 p.m. Tenpinners will start shooting for titles at 2:30 p.m. at Mayfair Lanes.

CASH FOR BONUS

Each of the four winners is the Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs will receive a Times Tropy, and any rolloff champion who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Daily Times will also collect a bonus award of $100.

Rolloff winners will be decided in three-game, scratch series rolled under tournament rules set by the bowling establishments involved. In the event of a first-place deadlock, the contestant (among those tied) posting the highest single game in the rolloff series will be declared the winner.

Qualifiers, who earned their berths by rolling leading scores in regular league play on southern Island lanes during the past season, are requested to report in advance of Sunday's starting times for assignment to lanes.

Ten former rolloff champions are listed among the qualifiers.

Owning chances to capture a second title in tenpin competition are Lorna Pollock, Muriel Dodsworth and Peggy Parsons in the distaff division and Rick Blake, Bill Burke an Henry Loo in the male section.

Bucks' Big Punch Completes Sweep

BALTIMORE (AP) — Oscar Robertson and Lew Alcindor combined for 57 points as Milwaukee Bucks trounced Baltimore Bullets 118-106 to complete a four-game sweep in the National Basketball Association championship playoff final Friday night.

The sweep was only the second in the 25-year history of the NBA, matching the one by Boston over Minneapolis in 1959.

Robertson, who had nine assists and hit 11 of 15 shots from the floor, scored 21 of his 30 points in the first half as the Bucks rolled up a 60-47 lead.

Alcindor, who had seven assists and 12 rebounds while hitting 10 of 16 field goal attempts for 27 points, also played his usual intimidating role on defense and wound up with the most valuable player award a new car from Sport Magazine.

STARS HOBBLED

The crippled Bullets took a 15-10 lead at the outset before the Bucks ran off a 12-1 string to go ahead 22-16 and remained in front the rest of the way.

The Bullets made their last gasp by scoring the first six points of the third quarter to move within 60-53, but the Bucks ran off another 10-point string to wrap it up.

Fred Carter topped Baltimore with 28 points. Kevin Loughery had 18, Wes Unseld scored nine points, but had 23 rebounds and 10 assists.

Earl Monroe, hobbled with a groin injury, scored 12 points and Gus Johnson, who faces knee operations next month, came back to action for the final game, but was able to score only 11 points.

Kershaw's Skill Gets Test Tonight

Gary Kershaw will face the first test of his car-racing skill since he roared to an upset victory in the Permatex 200 at Riverside, Calif., earlier this year during a special open super-stock competition tonight at Western Speedway.

Almost certain to give Kershaw a lot of trouble is the Portland, Ore., duo of Hershel McGriff and son Doug.

The elder McGriff won the International Driver's Challenge in 1970 and is currently campaigning on the National Associatiin for Stock Car Auto Racing's Western Grand National circuit.

Each has a main-event victory to his credit so far this season and both have an edge in horsepower over Kershaw.

Both are driving 1967 Chevelles and Hershel's is powered by a 394 cubic-inch engine while Doug's has a 372 c.i. powerplant.

Kershaw will roll out on the starting grid in his familiar yellow 350 c.i. 1965 Chevelle.

A number of Island and Vancouver-area super-stock drivers will fill out the field.

Victoria Boys Take Pin Title

A boys' team from Town and Country Lanes captured the provincial Youth Bowling Council "Jets" championship as results of the mail-in competition were announced Friday from B.C. headquarters in Vancouver.

Men's Softball Loops Raise Curtain Sunday

Victoria's two men's softball leagues take their opening swings Sunday.

Doubleheaders at Central Park and Heywood Avenue Park will herald the season's opening for the Major Men's League and the Stuffy McGinnis League.

The Major circuit, reduced from six to three teams, will open with Bates facing Seaboard Construction at 2 p.m. Bates and Strathcona Hotel will tangle in an evening game, starting at 6:30 at Central.

The McGinnis league will start with eight teams, one more than last season. The newest addition is Langford Drywall, which sponsored a Major League entry a year ago.

McGinnis teams will play most of their games at Heywood, but a number of contests also are scheduled at William Head and at Sooke Athletic Park.

Sunday's openers will pair Century Inn against Labatts at 2:30 p.m. and Gilmour Construction against Bell's Men's Wear at 6:45.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: Don't get upset

BELIEVE ME, THAT WAS A GREAT SHOT FOR A 15-HANDICAP GOLFER...
NOT EVEN THE BEST GOLFER IN THE WORLD HITS MORE THAN, SAY, FOUR PERFECT SHOTS A ROUND. WHEN YOU HIT A THREE-WOOD CLOSE TO THE GREEN, THAT IS A GOOD SHOT. STOP IT ANYWHERE ON THE GREEN AND YOU SHOULD LOOK UPON THAT AS A BONUS!
IT IS IMPORTANT TO APPROACH THE GAME IN THE RIGHT WAY. IF YOU MISS THE GREEN, DON'T GET UPSET, BECAUSE THAT CAN AFFECT YOUR NEXT SHOT. JUST REMIND YOURSELF THAT YOU ARE EXPECTED TO HIT 15 BAD SHOTS A ROUND

ONE WORLD MARK FALLS

Canadian Squad Surprises

LONDON (CP) — Australian swimmers broke one world record and tied another Friday night at a 14-country international meet billed as a curtain-raiser to the 1972 Olympics.

Canadian swimmers surprised many experts by climbing into third place in the standings at the end of the first day of the two-day meet, behind Australia and the United States.

Karen Moras of Sydney broke the world 400-metre freestyle record with a time of four minutes 22.6 seconds, clipping more than a second off the record held by Debbie Meyer of the U.S.

EQUALS RECORD

Shane Gould, also from Sydney, clocked 58.9 seconds over 100 metres to equal the seven-year freestyle record held by Dawn Fraser, also of Australia.

LONDON (AP) — Shane Gould, 14-year-old Australian schoolgirl, smashed the world 200-metre women's freestyle record with a time of 2:06.5 today at a 14-country swimming meet in the Crystal Palace pool.

The six-member Canadian team picked up two first-place scores under the point system limiting each team to four scoring competitors. They also took four fourths.

That gave Canada 38 points. Australia leads with 61 points. Then it's Sweden (34), East Germany (30), Russia (28), Great Britain (26), Spain (19), Czechoslovakia (17), Austria (15), West Germany (15), Holland (14), Norway (13).

Bill Mahony of New Westminster, B.C., registered one of the two nine-point, first placings in the 200-metre breaststroke. Byron MacDonald, a Canadian living in Chicago, got the other in the 200-metre butterfly event.

Mahony, gold medalist in the 100- and 200-metre butterfly at the 1970 Commonwealth Games, finished second to Rick Colella of the U.S. But the American was not one of his team's designated scorers, and the U.S. is second with 58.

Mahony's time was 2:32.7 against the winner's 2:27.5. Steffan Kiriechbaun of Austria was third in 2:33.6.

MacDonald finished in the butterfly behind Ross Wales of the U.S. and John Mills of Britain, both non-scorers. MacDonald's time of 2:12.85 was good enough for nine points. Wales was first in 2:10.33 and Mills was timed in 2:10.7.

Freestyle specialist Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., and George Smith of Edmonton in freestyle and medley each picked up two fourth placings for a total of 10 points apiece. Miss Coughlan was fourth in the events in which Miss Gould and Miss Moras equalled and set world records.

In the 400-metre individual medley, Smith finished sixth but took fourth-place points because of two non-scorers in the event. Colella won the event in 4.43.93 and Graham Windeatt of Australia was second in 4:45.26. Atthais Pechman was third in 4:50.88. Smith's fourth-place time was 5:01.89.

Smith picked up his other fourth in the 200-metre freestyle. The event was won by Greg Rogers of Australia in 1:58.0, but he was not a nominated scorer. Kinsella was second in 1:59.6, Brian Brinkley of Britain third in 2:01.1, Hans Lunbgerg of Sweden fourth in 2:01.8. Smith's time was 2:02.5.

Colwood Pairing Tops Foursomes

The Colwood pairing put the finishing touches on Vancouver Island's largest distaff tournament by defeating Gorge Vale's Gert Pumfrey and Peggy Matthews, two up, in Friday's final at Colwood.

Medallists Anne Thomson and Anne Shields of Colwood won the medallist flight with a two-up triumph over Evan Mackie and Betty Stoneham while Glen Meadows' Joanne Morrison and Betty MacDougall of Gorge Vale captured consolation flight honors.

Highlight of ceremonies was presentation of an orchid to Maida Criddle, 86-year-old Glen Meadows' golfer who lost out in the third round of the third flight.

Other final results:

Consolation flight — Joanne Morrison (GM), Betty MacDougall (GV) defeated Bev Berkey, Mary McAra (Cow) one up.

Second flight — Helen Matthews, Mildred Stelck (RC) defeated Jean Kerrone, Louise Tassin (RC), four and three.

Third flight — Terese Todd, Hazel Burt (RC) defeated Yvonne Ceton, Maureen Bridge (GV) three and two.

Fourth flight — Lee Budden, Olive Holman (Cow) defeated Onie MacMillan, Trudy Panteluk (GV), three and two.

Fifth flight — Lyn Williams, Jocelin Dickson (V) defeated Sydney Boyd, Marjorie Cameron (V), three and two.

Sixth flight — Lil Thirlwell, Jean Christie (U) defeated Marg Robertson, Chris Byrne (GM) two and one.

Seventh flight — Elizabeth Smith, Margaret Briggs (U) defeated Ida Wickham, Anne Hayes (MB), three and two.

Eighth flight — Phyllis Coxworth, Lorna Rooper (U) defeated Helen A. Rodgers, Jean Stokes (RC), four and two.

GILES, PEARCE REACH FINAL

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Vinny Giles defeated United States amateur champion Lanny Wadkins, 2 and 1, and Eddie Pearce edged Bill Campbell by the same score in Friday's North and South amateur golf tournament semi-finals.

The 36-hole title match will be played today.

Even with a Big Load It Still Drives Like a Grand Prix Car

The Fiat 124S Station Wagon can carry 300 pounds and four big adults, or up to 750 pounds with just the driver. Yet it still has the wheelbase, the same sure-footed handling, the same powerful 1438 c.c. engine and powerful assisted disc brakes and all the same Italian sports car qualities that the Fiat 124 Sedan has.

So just because your payload weighs down your car, it doesn't have to weigh down your spirit, too.

Britain Ousted

By The Associated Press

Yugoslavia eliminated Britain in the first round of the Davis Cup tennis competition Friday in European Zone B.

The Yugoslavs won when their doubles team of Zeljko Franulovic and Boro Javanovic defeated Gerald Battrick and Stanley Matthews in five sets after being down 2-1. The scores were 7-5, 5-7, 0-6, 7-5, 6-0.

The victory at Zagreb gave the Yugoslavs a 3-0 lead in the best-of-five matches and made the two remaining singles matches today meaningless.

ITALY IN LEAD

Italy took a 2-0 lead over Bulgaria in Perugia, Italy, in their first-round match, the winner of which will meet Yugoslavia in the zone quarter-finals.

A sit-in on the court by about 400 gymnastics students after the first singles delayed play for several hours. The students were demonstrating for full-fledged gymnastic facilities in universities.

In the European Zone A Greece led Belgium 1-0 at Athens, where the second match was unable to be finished because of darkness.

Grand Theft Charged In Computer Espionage

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — No one took particular notice of the deck of 515 cards that had spilled out of the computer at Information Systems Design Corp. here.

After all, the computer lives on the seven-by-three-inch cards. They are the key to its electronic secrets.

Routinely, a courier took the cards to an ISD customer, the Shell Development Corp., because they carried a notation from the computer indicating that Shell had ordered the information on them by telephone.

The cards stayed at Shell in Emeryville, Calif., a little more than two weeks until, early in February, a routine check showed that the company had never ordered them.

Back went the cards from Shell to ISD and that's when the alarm sounded as ISD surmised it had been the victim of the newest form of industrial espionage—theft of information from a computer by telephone.

With help from the records of the very computer that had been victimized, ISD reconstructed what had happened.

On Jan. 19, 1971, at about 6:15 p.m. California time, someone picked up a telephone hooked into his own computer and dialed an unlisted number which was answered automatically by ISD's multi-million-dollar Univac 1108 computer in Oakland.

ISD, a computer service company with customers all over the country, has several such numbers for customers to plug themselves directly into the ISD computer.

The caller then dialed a series of numbers which identified a specific program stored in the ISD's computer's memory bank. The computer zeroed in on the program, stored on a large rotating gold-colored drum.

The caller then used cards at his computer to ask questions about the particular program. The computer answered.

The key thing that had been taken was a program which enabled a computer to produce diagrams, charts or graphs on any subject in a customer's office via telephone lines.

For instance, if an aerospace company was designing a jet engine and wanted a picture of what it would look like, they could put the specifications into the ISD computer. The computer would then send back to the requesting company electronic signals which would draw a real picture of the engine.

ISD's main customer for the program is Aerojet-General Corp. of Folsom, Calif. and out of that connection arose a criminal charge of grand theft and a $6-million civil damage suit, both hitting at an ISD competitor.

In papers filed in connection with the court actions, ISD President George T. Steeley said that the University Computing Co. of Palo Alto, Calif., also supplies computer services to Aerojet-General.

Steeley's court declaration said: "In recent months, UCC has been attempting to take the Aerojet business from ISD.

"Personnel of ISD who often visit Aerojet have reported to me that Mr. Hugh Jeffrey Ward II, an employee of UCC, was assigned by UCC to develop programs for UCC which would allow it to provide the same kind of remote services which ISD's existing programs allow it to provide."

Probation Office For Sidney

The first probation office to be located outside the headquarters for Greater Victoria opens in Sidney next week on Third Street.

Probation officer Brian Malen says there is a tremendous work load in this area which includes Central and North Saanich, as well as Sidney.

Malen, who arrived in Canada 18 months ago from England where he served as probation officer, says that the largest number of his cases are in their late teens.

Uvic Faculty Rejects Partridge Probe Call

The Faculty Association at the University of Victoria Friday rejected a move by president Bruce J. Partridge to establish a tribunal to investigate a contract and tenure dispute with three professors.

Partridge announced earlier in the week that Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the B.C. Supreme Court had been asked to nominate three men to examine the cases of Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and Toby Graff.

The names of the nominees have not yet been rleased.

CENSURE THREAT

The Canadian Association of University Teachers had threatened Uvic with censure if an impartial external tribunal was not appointed by the university administration.

The tribunal called for by Partridge, however, differs substantially from the proposals of the CAUT, which recommended a neutral chairman and representatives of the disputants.

In separate ballots both students and faculty voted solidly in support of the CAUT recommendations.

The Faculty Association strongly criticized the president's tribunal in an afternoon press release that listed seven points of objection.

"The Faculty Association executive notes that the board of governors at the university admit the need for an outside review of the cases . . . ," the release says.

"Despite the fact that on several occasions a large number of faculty has voted that the university accept the CAUT recommendations for review (at last vote 180 so voted), the board has instead accepted a proposal endoresed by 26 professors."

The release, signed by past president Don Harvey and new president Dr. Charles Doyle, said the executive "must reject" the proposal.

The association objected that while it had already been "established to our satisfaction that natural justice has not been done," the proposed panel's terms of reference did not include "investigation of the substantive issue" — that is, whether or not tenure should be granted to Goede and Jain and Graff promoted.

NO COMMENT

Meanwhile, the CAUT's executive secretary Alwyn Berland declined to comment on the Partridge proposal or a rebuttal by the president to a report harshly critical of himself and the board.

"CAUT has just received president Partridge's comments on the CAUT report, including the proposal to appeal to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of B.C. to nominate a panel of enquiry into recent events on campus," a news release signed by Berland said.

"We have not yet had time to study president Partridge's comments."

CRYSTAL BALLS JUST DON'T SEEM TO GRAB US
We read a good deal about advertising research and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation—figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.
What ever happened to the good old how-many-copies-were-really-sold counts? That's the kind of stuff advertising rates are based on!
And it's just for that reason we have a no-nonsense, no-mystery ABC audit report of our circulation audience.
If you aren't strong on crystal balls either, just ask to see a copy of our latest report from the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

A TALK WITH DORIS LESSING

'We Must Try to Avoid Chaos'

By LEE LANGLEY

LONDON — Doris Lessing's serene white brow crinkles into irritation when people confuse her with her own characters — easy to do sometimes, when the character in question is an independent-minded, divorced, dark-haired, attractive Socialist who spent her childhood in Africa, lives in London and writes.

But Mrs. Lessing agrees that she does put a lot of herself into her characters. In her own words, "we are all aspects of each other," and what she is particularly concerned with in her work is the shutting off of one part of life from another.

The only time the critics have upset her was with the reviews of "The Golden Notebook," a superbly achieved Chinese box-puzzle of a book where the subject-matter broke through the form itself to create a new form. Too many critics treated it as a statement about the situation of women.

Besides "The Golden Notebook" she has written "The Grass is Singing"; a vast, five-volume work "The Children of Violence," "Retreat to Innocence," "The Habit of Loving," "In Pursuit of the English," "Going Home," "A Man and Two Women," and "Particularly Cats." Her new novel, "Briefing for a Descent into Hell," has just been published by Jonathan Cape.

Politics in Air

When she is called a "political" writer she is surprised, because, for her, politics is not separate from life; being brought up in Rhodesia she finds she cannot remember a time when politics wasn't in the air; people never stopped talking politics.

She arrived in Britain in 1949, having lived in Southern Rhodesia since she was five. She was born in Persia, in 1919, where her father was a bank manager, having left Britain in a fit of restlessness after the First World War. "My poor mama; in Persia she found her ideal . . . musical evenings, servants, the diplomatic and military social round . . . she loved every minute. He hated it, so one day she found herself sitting in the middle of the bush in a thatched hut, with her visiting cards and her piano and her curtains from Liberty's. It wasn't until much later that I realized how unhappy she was."

Officially Doris was educated at a convent, "but I was always being neurotically ill, because my mother wanted me to be brilliant. I went underground to save my soul. I suppose altogether I really only spent about 18 months in the classroom."

Learn the Tools

She doesn't think she missed much though: "I think all one should be taught is mathematics, languages, and how to use a library. The tools; that's education as far as I'm concerned."

In Rhodesia she was married twice, and had three children, and today she lives alone in a flat at the top of a suburban villa in Kilburn, with a large and beautiful cat. She says she has been happier living with someone than being married; marriage is terribly difficult.

Although Africa figures so prominently in her writing, in her surroundings it is Persia that immediately strikes the eye; on every wall, posters of Persia; on the floor, comfortably worn Persian rugs. Around the living room there are hospitably sagging sofas and low divans covered with Oriental rugs. The corners of the armchairs have been shredded by cats' claws.

She'll be moving on in due course, as she always does — "I don't seem able to stay in one place long, I don't quite know why . . . surroundings don't seem to have much importance for me."

When I recall her minute descriptions of surroundings in her books, she agrees with slight surprise that, after all, surroundings must matter. "I suppose I'll write about . . . this, with passionate detail some day. Now I hardly notice it."

Mrs. Lessing is a bewitching talker. Her light, pretty voice carries you along fascinating avenues you had not intended to explore. She tends to go off at a tangent and you find it hard to get back to the main stream of questions.

In "Briefing for a Descent into Hell," she has moved beyond politics and the book is at once more interior and more impersonal than her others.

Its central character is a middle-aged classics professor whose breakdown provides the basis of the story, as in his imagination he lives a journey as fantastic as Gulliver's, though in his case it is his mind that is tied down and gradually rendered impotent by the pygmy creatures of the medical profession, which is roughly how Mrs. Lessing sees doctors.

"If you actually examine the training of doctors," she says, "it's a training in conformity and orthodoxy. We train them to be technicians, and then expect them to be men of compassion and wisdom."

She has said elsewhere that schizophrenia is the name of our blindest prejudice: now she says, "This society is not, as we fondly imagine it, a free and permissive society, we're very conforming, frightened of being 'different.'"

A Social Fear

"In another society people who break down might be tolerated, surrounded by the love they need. Yes, that too carries dangers, but for all that one has got to take risks. I think most of the attitudes towards mentally sick people stem from straightforward social fear of people unable to tolerate non-conformity. We tolerate drunkenness simply because it's familiar, we're used to it."

She is outraged by the increase in the administering of drugs that cow and subdue; "what goes on in mental hospitals is a crime; and as for ECT (electro-convulsive therapy)" — she jumps to her feet and disappears into the next room, reappearing with type-written sheets of paper: an extract from a book, a piece from "New Scientist," both containing scarifying statistics about mental treatment. "Are you interested? Look, read this . . ."

Psychoanalysis is another bugbear: she herself once had psychotherapy which she said she found useful, but she considers she has had some lucky escapes: "Luckily I found someone who didn't do me any damage; Freudians are the worst, getting people hooked for life . . . an orthodox Communist, compared to a Freudian, is a raving liberal."

She used to call herself a Marxist. Now she wouldn't, but her ideas haven't changed. I recall something from "The Golden Notebook," something said by Anna, who is not Doris Lessing. She said: "We have to admit the great dream has faded and the truth is something else: that we'll never be any use."

Bleak Outlook

The author agrees: "Well yes. Paradise on earth through socialism, that's over. But I still think the only rational society is a Socialist one. My view of the future is another war, mass famine and catastrophe of all kinds. To talk about socialism at such a time is almost frivolous. It's perfectly clear that the world is in the melting pot now; we should be trying to prevent . . . chaos, that's what we ought to be doing."

We talk about Africa, and young people, and the book she is working on now, which she intends to write in serial form for "Ink" magazine and is very excited about, and all of it is interesting; but walking away from the Tube station, there is a sense that Mrs. Lessing has not been pinned down. Perhaps, after all, what she is has been most accurately distilled into the pages of her books, rather than saved up for journalistic chats.

Doris Lessing

Disturbing in Its Truth

By ANTHONY JENKINS

Anyone who has read Mrs. Lessing's five-volume novel, The Children of Violence, will be aware of the change in her interests and the widening of her range during the ten years it took her to write the books. By the end of the sequence, the central figure, Martha Quest, had been taken from her childhood in South Africa to the brink of a science-fiction world in the future breakdown of what we like to call civilization.

Not surprisingly then, this new novel begins where the Martha Quest books left off. At its centre is Mrs. Lessing's belief that what we call madness might, in fact, be the signs of some superhuman illumination which will enable mankind to rebuild after the holocaust.

But the new book is also a breakthrough. By the end of The Children of Violence Martha Quest the individual had become buried under the the many social issues that now press so urgently on Mrs. Lessing's conscience. In this latest book, she has found a way of integrating her new interests around a character whose whole life is bound in by and explained through them. The result is disturbing in its truth and forcefulness.

BRIEFING FOR A DESCENT INTO HELL, by Doris Lessing. Clarke Irwin. $6.50.

Mrs. Lessing has written what she herself calls a piece of "inner-space fiction." Charles Watson, a successful professor of classics, loses his memory and spends two months in a hospital ward trying to reclaim it. But the things he recalls in a series of dreams are not what his doctors expect. His truth is not their truth.

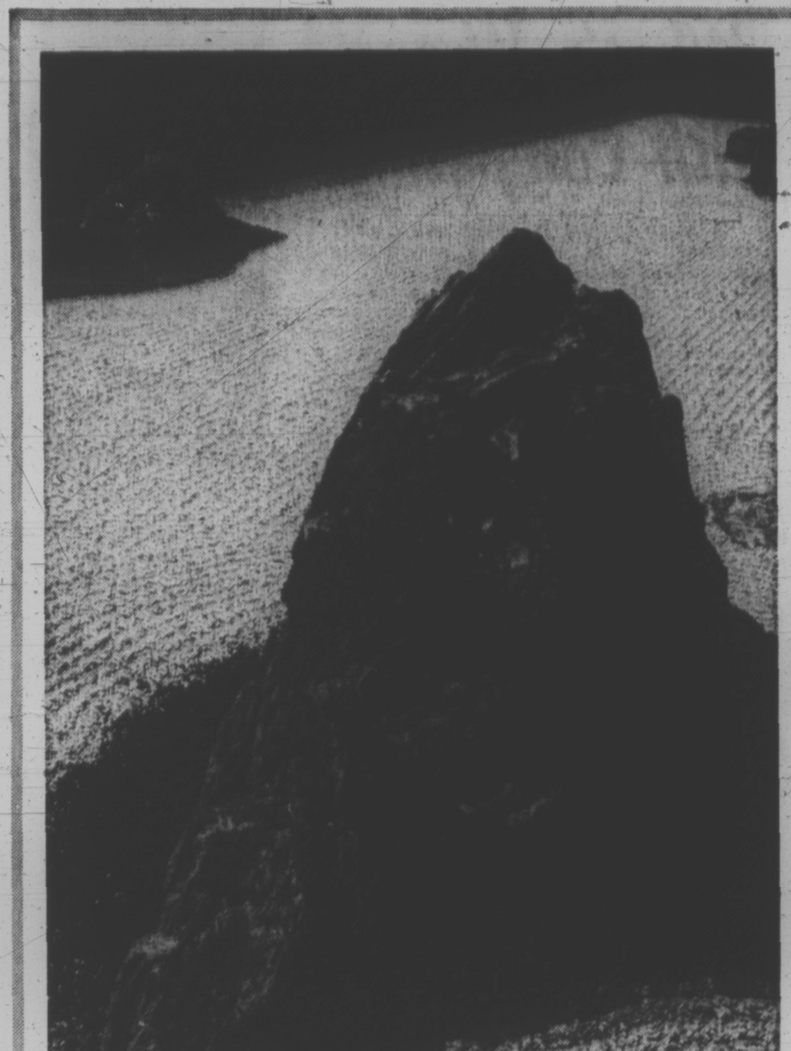
Watson sees himself drifting endlessly on a raft in a southern sea, wanting to join his friends who have been enveloped by a mysterious crystal ball. Then, presumably under the influence of the drugs he has been treated with, he finds shelter in a land of forest and waterfalls. In his journey up to a high plateau, he is followed by two peculiarly beautiful yellow panthers and eventually finds himself in a city inhabited by strange hybrid animals. Then he awaits the crystal ball.

The achievement of the book stems from Mrs. Lessing's methods. The images she uses to describe Watson's journey have tantalizing echoes from epic literature and from a Jungian dream world, so that each reader begins to participate emotionally in Watson's mind. For a page or two we are as adrift as he is, and then we reach a clearing of recognition, especially in the Swiftian city of the animals.

Whether or not one can share Mrs. Lessing's suggestion that Watson is one of a select few who have been sent to save the human race and that his "madness" is his attempt to remember the details of his mission, will depend on each individual reader. But her second point, the fact that man knows so little about himself and his world and yet acts as though his present knowledge is superior to the last generation's and inevitably more correct, will surely disturb everyone. And this is worked out most dramatically in the conflicting opinions of the two doctors who are in charge of Watson's illness.

If this synopsis of the book tends to stress ideas rather than character, let it be said that there are also a number of letters and statements from people who knew Charles Watson before he lost his memory, and that these are both highly comic in the way that they reveal the character of each writer and are germane to Watson's problems. The result is satisfying as a novel in its satirical picture of our present society. However, it is a satire which stems from Mrs. Lessing's urgent concern for the direction in which our society is moving.

It's a book that requires work on the part of the reader, but it's a labor that will both move and stimulate. It is surely Mrs. Lessing's most complete achievement to date.



Stones That Make Gardens

By DAVID DUNSMUIR

Gardeners with an urge to stop fighting Victoria's greenery can retreat without losing face. No seeding, no pruning, no mowing — just a life of quiet contemplation, broken only by jealous murmurs from other slackers and from neighbors who know a trend when they see one.

First, though, there's a little matter of spading out the whole area to a depth of three and a half feet and slinging in a few boulders (none heavier than two tons, please).

JAPANESE STONE GARDENS: How to Make and Enjoy Them, by Kazuhiko Fukuda. M. G. Hurtig. $27.

Results will be best for those with an inbred knowledge of the 1,400 years of tradition behind Japanese stone gardens. Failing that, it helps to have read Kazuhiko Fukuda's new book on the subject.

This hefty and attractive work devotes 200 pages to photographs and plans of a generally unfamiliar art form, with a lucid text on its symbolism.

Examples range from a stark Zen arrangement that covers only 260 square feet to a Taoist "paradise garden" more than 200 times larger. Size hardly matters. The important features are internal harmony and a pleasing relationship with natural or man-made surroundings.

The author, a prize-winning industrial photographer, has an eye for detail as well as the ability to project in-the-round impressions.

Photographs in velvety gravure bring out the texture of moss and weathered rock, of a frozen surge of pebbles forming a mountain stream. Sand patterns, recreated each day for centuries, depict storm-clouds or tranquil seas.

Comments on even the most majestic groupings are offered sparingly. Instead of dragging sermons from stones, Fukuda describes underlying religious beliefs in general and lets his camera do the rest. It speaks with great eloquence.

As Others See Us

By JAMES McCOOK

To see ourselves as others see us is a useful experience, particularly when the observant eyes are those of Jay Walz, the New York Times' man in Ottawa, and his wife Audrey.

Canada comes out of the examination pretty well. Amid all the fussing about whither-Canada and the hazards of the future, the Walz conclusion is that the "Charter Peoples" — the French and English — have kept power in their own hands and the British influence, in the way of doing things and honoring tradition, is so all-embracing that it isn't noticed. They find that Ontario is neither English nor American but, in its way, is the very essence of what Americans think of as "Canadian."

PORTRAIT OF CANADA, by Jay and Audrey Walz. McGraw-Hill. $7.95.

Their book is addressed primarily to American readers and the authors state.

"The defection or secession of Quebec would lead to the fall of Canada as our northern neighbor. Alone, Quebec would have to lean for economic and political support either on France or the United States.

"Any idea that France, for all of General de Gaulle's words of affection, would take a fledgling Quebec under her wing runs counter to 250 years of history. If France could afford such a move, would the United States, under the Monroe Doctrine, tolerate such interference on this continent?"

Should a Canadian breakup come, what of British Columbia? This province could become "British California," the authors suggest. They comment that "British Columbia, which used to be very British indeed," has lately been responding "so strongly to Columbia's influence that its separatists think B.C. should become the 51st American state."

American tourists who take Canadian friendship for granted are warned that "David is still very wary of Goliath." Mr. and Mrs. Walz contend the task given Canadians is to join together in developing earth's last great frontier into a country that will endure and could become one of man's finest achievements.

All this is well said but many an American — and many a Canadian — will eagerly turn from the perpetual war dance of Canadian issues to the pleasure of scenery and entertainment well described in Portrait of Canada.

The authors have been in more places in Canada than the average Canadian. Here's a gull, they report, tapping on a window of the Empress Hotel demanding a share of a guest's breakfast; here's the charm of Montreal restaurants they recommend; here's the delight of Canadian winter sports and the music, painting and other arts now fostered after long neglect.

One or two quibbles — Canadians used to singing about going over the sea to Skye will be surprised to see it called "Over the Water to Skye"; the RCMP will be shattered by the note on Page 327 that the coast guard took the "St. Roch" through the Northwest Passage, but be relieved to see they are given proper credit on Page 373; C. D. Howe's renown as an engineer was won not by small prairie grain elevators depicted here but by the massive terminals he designed and built.

Extending the Bounds of Science Fiction

By STEVE HUME

Robert A. Heinlein is the old trooper of traditional American science fiction.

His novels, and there are 37 of them to date, make mostly for light reading in the subgenre known as space opera. That's like soap opera with a healthy dash of technological imagination. The plots are never too intricate, and there's plenty of science available to flip characters from one dimension to another or to speed them to the surfaces of distant planets.

I WILL FEAR NO EVIL, by Robert Heinlein. Longman. $7.95.

Heinlein's books have long been a favorite with the juvenile crowd — there's lots of dash and drama, an imagination that fairly prickles with new ideas, and characters that may seem a little stereotyped to the jaundiced eyes of adults who have spent too much time listening to critics tell them what fiction is important.

The ethic has always been conservative, slightly imperialistic even. Bright-eyed young men with one eye on their honor and the other on the future; courageous actions spurred by a love of service. Very romantic conservatism.

Not unnatural from a graduate of Annapolis naval academy whose collegiate sport was swordsmanship rather than football.

But lately the old trooper has been acting a little strange — chafing at the trusty formula plots, edging his way beyond the romance and into the universal.

Stranger In a Strange Land was a very strange book indeed. An investigation of the sociological dynamics of religion and population density. Perceptive echoes of what is happening in the United States of America.

It was a disturbing consideration of the madness that goes increasingly by the name of faith and worship in these trying days at the beginning of an even more trying decade.

That was five years ago. Heinlein's latest novel, I Will Fear No Evil, transcends the traditional bounds of science fiction even more:

It is a major book for 1971. A stunning evaluation of the kinds of social problems and moral dilemmas that are just beginning to emerge from the fabric of contemporary society to confront the inhabitants of the technological jungle.

The characters move through a frightening landscape in the not too distant future. It is a high relief landscape with a social geography of the very rich and the very poor — no in-betweens.

Cities have decayed from the centre; social outcasts live in anarchy in the abandoned areas; the poor dwell in ghetto-like highrise tenements.

The rich live in armed enclaves beyond suburbia, insulated by dogs and fences and little private armies from the harsh reality of their environment.

Bodyguards and bullet-proof cars are the norm and not the exception. Violence and death are as inevitable as taxes and welfare payments.

Using Smith as his instrument, Heinlein conjures some of the chilling possibilities upon which tomorrow's man might have to make moral judgments.

He raises the problems of psychology, eugenics and medical science — then twists them all into moral knots that are difficult to unravel.

Smith is the rich man who cheats death. He taxes medical science to the end of its tether, then when life-support systems have replaced almost all his tissues, he undergoes the ultimate operation. His brain and nervous system are transplanted to the body of a donor.

The donor is his secretary and his new body is female. He awakes from prolonged anaesthesia to the problem of menstruation.

It is here that Heinlein begins his strange investigation of the male-female roles. A male personality transplanted whole and mature to the body of a female — there is the conflict of the understood role and the role expectations of those around an individual.

Heinlein investigates the pressures of the social group. He shows us how the mind is molded by the way we are. It is thoroughly scary.

But the plot is not complete, there is still more wrenching and distortion to follow.

Does the relationship continue on a physical level? What are the implications for the previous friendship of the intellects? Can the two relationships be maintained separately and simultaneously? Heinlein probes all these complex issues with wit and intelligence.

Then, almost with tongue in cheek but with enough serious intent to be truly horrifying, he poses the ultimate moral problem of the book.

The new female body of Smith is impregnated with sperm provided by his previous male body: the man is both father and mother to his own child.

TAKE WITH BEER

By WALTER McKINNON

Take that insidious Communist plot to dominate the world, a couple of hypersensitive, super-secret United States security forces, a presidential candidate cut from the same cloth as Herbert Hoover, assorted Russian spies, enough armament to launch a war, and one witty, handsome, intelligent young secret agent.

THEIR MAN IN THE WHITE HOUSE, by Tom Ardies. McClelland and Stewart. $4.95.

Mix well.

Serve up on a quiet evening at home with a box of beer on the side.

The first ingredients you will find in Tom Ardies' novel, Their Man in the White House. If you need instruction on location of the second ingredient you probably wouldn't enjoy it so substitute warm milk laced with scotch.

Their Man in the White House takes a wildly preposterous situation — an attempt by those terrible Russians to get a spy right into the White House — and weaves it into a mildly entertaining tale.

As novels of this genre go, it is proficiently executed. And Ardies slips in a trick ending that almost makes the exercise worthwhile.

More interesting than the novel is the fact Ardies is almost a local boy.

He was born in the United States but has lived most of his life in Canada. He worked for newspapers and wire services in Vancouver, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa and at present lives in Greater Vancouver, where he's working on another novel.

He also worked in Honolulu and spent two years as a special assistant to the governor of Guam.

What's Wrong With Competing?

sounding board

A group of wise, educated 20th century youngsters sits in a festival hall, having performed en mass in a band, orchestra or folk dance, and hears the adjudicator award them a "1" which means "excellent."

Or maybe a 2 which is good or a 3, very good. Or perhaps they didn't do well at all (and they know it as a rule) and so they are given a 4 which means satisfactory. Or even — oh, horror — a 5 which by equivocation, means fair.

On another day another group which has performed in some private studio ensemble class is awarded 89 marks. Below them other groups receive perhaps 87, 85, 84.

Now will some clever person please explain to me whether there is some subtle psychological difference between winning with a 1 for excellent or a straightforward 89, or coming at the bottom with a 4 for satisfactory, or a mark of 84.

I'd like to know who is kidding whom. One thing is certain, it's not the kids. They shout for joy when they get a 1 or 2 and trot up for a certificate.

And those that receive a 3 or a 4 are momentarily disappointed but they soon bounce back and are ready for another crack next time around.

There are exceptions no doubt, but I strongly suspect that most of the negative reactions are the result of brainwashing by parents, maybe even by some teachers.

Generally youngsters are instinctive good sports in competition unless they have been inoculated with the wrong ideas at home or somewhere else.

However, if competition is seriously deemed to be a bad thing for youth by persons with more scientific training than I possess, then let's simply put an end to the evil.

There could still be adjudication without committal of any sort, without certificates and without awards.

It might be pretty tame but at least it would eliminate the inept juggling with words in an attempt to construct a grading system that softens a presumed competition trauma.

"The experience of public performance is an added dimension and a broadening one. And it is available to the student nowhere to the same extent that it is available in the festival."

Both adjudicators agree that measuring up to one another is an equally important experience for the student. They found the competitive atmosphere at the Victoria Music Festival an especially healthy one.

But before it closes there is an observation that should be made concerning the behind-the-scenes organization.

There are a lot of people — hundreds in fact — whose names deserve to be preserved in some hall of fame for the selfless and voluntary work they have done to keep the festival running for 22 years.

One cannot name some of them for that would be unfair to the rest.

But one couple whose dedication is almost beyond belief should be named.

They have not only spent themselves unstintingly in the service of the festival every year since they participated in its formation in 1948, but have drawn to the movement other enthusiastic and capable people. They have served this community consistently as few people have done.

They are Fred and Ada English.

Without them we probably would not have a 22-year-old, financially solvent, artistically expanding festival.

In fact we might never have had a festival at all. Long may they be spared and persuaded to reign in that area back stage.

PAUL HORN

Guest Artists For Symphony

A variety of international soloists promises an exciting season for Victoria Symphony Orchestra patrons, starting in early October.

Spanish, Russian, Japanese, American, Mexican and Canadian artists will parade across the symphony stage at the Royal Theatre in the 10 regular concert pairs, and two special events which will take place between October and mid-March.

The presence of Laszlo Gati, the symphony's popular musical director and conductor, on the podium to begin his fifth season, will assure the continued progression and dynamism of the musical organization.

Guest artists appearing with the orchestra will be pianists Gyorgy Sandor and Ronald Turini; violinists Gyorgy Pauk and Masuko Ushioda; a quartet of harpists from the Soviet Union; cellist Tsuyoshi Tsutsumi, the Paul Horn Quintet and the Daniel Llords Marionettes.

There will also be a concert with choir and soloists in the regular season, two extraordinary concerts — the Romeros who are returning by wide public demand, and Fiesta Mexicana, a ballet and folklore group.

Recitals at the McPherson Playhouse will be given by Sandor, Turini, Ushioda and Chitiri Harpi, the harp quartet.

This year for the first time student rush seats will be available at $1 for any seat available 15 minutes before curtain time. Students also have the privilege of advance booking at half price.

The box office is now open for renewals and advance reservations only. On May 17 all seats not reserved will go on general sale.

Hours for the box office at Eaton's are 10:15 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A Need to Take Risks

looking at art

Myfanwy Pavelic's exhibition of drawings opened this past week at the Print Gallery. Strong classical drawing is rare stuff. There are works in this show that could have been contemporary with the old masters and worthy of an old master's respect.

Two Rocks is an old master drawing in which the choice of subject matter, described adequately by the title, succeeds with base simplicity.

And yet having powerful resource in draftsmanship, a charcoal stick in hand, and suitable paper, what will the artist draw? There are traditions of subject matter, still life, landscape, figures, portraiture, abstract composition.

Myfanwy seems to choose the safest of these traditions for her attention. And her choices are restless, jumping from one subject to another, from a rendering that stresses the academic to a rendering that accents surface pattern, from an expressionism that is composed of strokes of charcoal to a photographic realism that relies on the grain of paper. And yet for all this restlessness, she is not restless enough to take risks.

Sea shell, barnacle, landscape rocks, dandelion puffs, driftwood, while excellent compared to other drawings of similar content, still embody tired sentiment. Of the many things to be seen looking over a drawing board, why these?

The dichotomy of form and content should be unnecessary. Brought together in good drawing, any discussion of this gift is ridiculous. And yet looking at this show, the concept of such a division is more than convenient.

The medium of drawing exists to embody ideas, as a vehicle. Skill is necessary only to the extent where it does its chosen work economically and well. And skill that is in pursuit of some purpose develops, adopts new forms dictated by the new work it must do. Form is subordinate to content.

In a series of portraits Myfanwy has found a focus more important than the restless need to make another drawing. Her portraits carry an insight into the psychologies of those sitting for her. And then her skill becomes valuable; it becomes the capacity to record her unique experience of these people and her fascination with them.

There are portraits of Maxwell Bates, Richard Ciecimara, and Nita Forrest that present an essence beyond resemblance. There is study here that is beyond the thinking required to construct a drawing. The portrait entitled Max must be seen.

The generalized figures where the personality, if any, is secondary are not so successful. In the place of striving analysis and fascination with subject, is a preconceived idea of emotional effect.

One drawing entitled despair would symbolize that powerful emotion. A figure hangs its head over a table; the hands reach up to push with tense fingers through dishevelled hair. But the drawing could denote a dandruff problem as well as exposing problems below the scalp.

This drawing was made slowly and studiously by an artist who must have worked through a large portion of that constellation of emotions that comprises human consciousness. One emotion isolated has got to be a surface of emotion, a concept, a symbol, not a record of the actual experience of creating.

Emotion resounds when two praying hands break their cat's cradle string bonds and separate to catch a glowing light radiating from above. The string bonds, frozen in new slackness, hang in mid-air. Why does the artist try to symbolize the religious experience of awe when her portraits instil the actual feeling in the viewers' minds?

In another drawing, a white-haired woman in black collapses on a white desk; the figure's despair is deep enough to call forth the apocalypse. But Myfanwy Pavelic has left out the wry, secret smile that is an expression of immortality, which somehow makes despair endurable and would make this drawing complete.

Good drawing, yes, even excellent, but for the most part without fresh concept or experience. Certainly every drawing carries the stamp of the artist's education and nervous system, the organization of internal elements embodies this, but artists like everyone exist in a field of experience beyond themselves and beyond their capacity to completely understand. And that is the task, rather than relaxing into a developed skill, pushing it farther, where it might discover and record.

This exhibition continues until May 20.

MINSTRELS ENTERTAIN AT MUSIC FUND PARTY

Minstrels Colin Griffiths, Penny Chalk and Patsy Pang will provide entertainment at a coffee party, Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Harvey, 378 Newport Avenue.

The affair has been arranged by the Victoria Chapter, Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto Alumni.

The Emphasis on Music

The quality of the Greater Victoria Music Festival this year was generally such that keeping the gala Festival highlights concert within the two-hour limit became an almost heart-breaking problem.

In order to offer more music to those attending the concert at McPherson Playhouse Tuesday evening, and to give more of the outstanding performers a chance to be heard, the awards ceremony has been drastically reduced.

Bursary and scholarship prizes are being mailed to the recipients and only such awards as the Rose Bowl and Medallion will be presented during the evening.

A full list of those receiving awards will be inserted in the programs.

The highlights concert will begin at 8 p.m. with the Arion Male Choir singing the Soldiers Chorus from Gounod's Faust.

To close it the fine young pianist, Kwok May-Ling, who received a standing ovation for her performance in an open class last week, will repeat her brilliant interpretation of the Choping G minor Ballade.

In between there will be piano solos by Geoffrey Jay, Roger Scobie, Walter Prossnitz and Jocelyn Abbott.

Vocal numbers will range over a wide area from Rose Bowl winner Nan Long singing Haydn's With Verdure Clad to musical comedy artist Eric Roberts singing If I Were a Rich Man from Fiddler on the Roof.

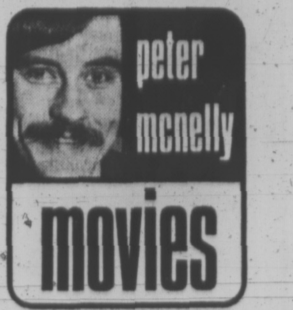
Raquel Welch

A Souped Up Film on Familiar Western Theme



'Valdez Is Coming'

Somewhere out there in Marlboro Country the deputy sheriff turned in his badge and went gunning for justice.

He wanted Frank Tanner to pay $100 to the Indian woman whose husband had been murdered. The deputy, whose name was Valdez, figured Tanner was responsible.

Tanner thought the suggestion was ridiculous. After all, the dead man was only black, and the Indian could go back to the reserve. Besides, Valdez was only a Mexican. With what gall did he tell Tanner how to spend his money?

Valdez kept popping up like a guilty conscience, hat in hand, asking about the $100. Well, Tanner fixed him almost.

Valdez Is Coming, for the most part, tells a pretty clever story on the old themes of humiliation and revenge. The movie's been souped up with some modern angles on racism, but basically it's a familiar tale.

After Tanner humiliates Valdez into silence by tying him to a cross and letting him find his way home, the deputy stops asking and starts taking.

He kidnaps Tanner's girl and leads Tanner's posse on a bloody chase. The deal? Return of the woman for $100.

Venerable Burt Lancaster turns in a strong, comic performance as the gentle deputy. Lancaster, always a big man, looks here to weigh about 220 middle-aged pounds.

Hard to imagine him as a Mexican, but the make-up crew did a presentable browning job on his skin. Though for some unforgivable reason Lancaster looks darker in some scenes than in others.

This unevenness is matched by a script which is alternately witty then dull as dialogue from Bonanza. Tanner's number one gunman El Segundo (Barton Heyman) fires off some of the best one-liners in the film. And a young actor named Richard Jordan does his best to upstage Lancaster as a parasitic coward who would rather switch than fight.

As the plot develops, Valdez shows he can outgun and outfox Tanner's men. Lancaster is a more intriguing outlaw than civil rights lawman, and this explains why the second half of the film is so much better than the first.

The ending shines with ironies. Maybe Valdez doesn't get the $100, but maybe Tanner doesn't get his woman back. From an acting point of view, Tanner won't lose much. His girl, Susan Clark, appears destined for obscurity.

Jon Cyper as Tanner also puts in only a routine job, but that may be the character's fault, not his.

Valdez Is Coming surpasses the sum of its erratic parts. But without Lancaster, I'd be hard put to tell anyone why they ought to see it.

New Canadian Film Doesn't Measure Up

By VICTOR STANTON

TORONTO — Add one female — the first — to Canada's growing list of native movie makers.

Her name is Sylvia Spring and her first movie, Madeleine Is . . ., opened last week at Toronto's New Yorker cinema, preceding openings in Montreal and early this month in Vancouver where the film was made.

Miss Spring, 28, a native of Galt, Ont., who moved to Vancouver three years ago "to get away from the speediness of Toronto," co-authored, directed and co-produced the 90-minute color film which stars Vancouver actress Nicola Lipman in the title role.

Madeleine Is . . ., which Miss Spring has said is "partly autobiographical," tells the story of a girl living in a hippie environment trying to discover herself and escaping from too-harsh realities in a childhood fantasy involving a clown.

The possibilities in this, which have been developed by other film makers, notably Italy's Federico Fellini, have eluded Miss Spring, both as a writer and as a director.

She introduces a character or sets up a mood then doesn't sustain or develop it. The result is a picture of little artistic or entertainment merit, relying on a lot of cliched outdoor shots to pad a slight story and thin characterizations.

But the film's shortcomings don't quite cloud the fact that Miss Spring has chosen her cast well.

Miss Lipman, in her first movie role, displays a talent for underplaying emotions effectively, but because of the limits of the script and Miss Spring's direction, her Madeleine never develops as more than a celluloid character.

Wayne Specht, playing the double role of David and the clown, on occasion could do with some of Miss Lipman's restraint and subtlety, but as David provides some of the movie's most enjoyable moments.

John Juliani lacks the sinister quality needed by the character of Toro, Madeleine's self-styled radical boyfriend who exhibits his power over her by insisting she never wear panties, but this again is more the failure of Miss Spring than that of the actor.

Miss Spring shot the movie in 30 days on a budget of $100,000, $15,000 of it a grant from the Canadian Film Development Corp. and most of the remainder provided by Glen Warren Productions Ltd., the producing arm of Toronto television station CFTO.

Madeleine Is . . . will be an entry in this year's international film festival at Cannes, France.

In an Age of Sex Who Needs Symbol?

By MICHAEL BILLINGTON

LONDON — Crouching on the floor of her caravan clad only in the figure-hugging vest and shorts of a soccer player, Raquel Welch pulled a gun from her holster, pointed it at me and fired. And if this sounds like the erotic fantasy of a masochistic soccer buff, I can only assert that every word is gospel truth.

For currently Miss Welch is playing the gun-toting heroine in a Burt Kennedy Western, "Hannie Caoulder," being made in southern Spain and she was proudly demonstrating her speed on the draw. The soccer gear? This was to oblige a photographer and to demonstrate her newfound passion for soccer.

Never having met a sex-goddess before I was a little unsure what to expect. In fact, Miss Welch turns out to be a bright, strong-willed, conversationally fluent girl who justifies her own observation, on an American David Frost Show, that "The female mind can be an erogenous zone."

Physically, also, she's not unremarkable: The high cheekbones, the leonine hairstyle, the slightly wild eyes suggest she might conceivably have emerged from the real jungle as opposed to the showbiz jungle. It may be a paradox that in an age when sex is as much a part of cinema-going as a packet of peanuts we still have a universal sex-symbol; but who cares about paradoxes?

Raquel Welch was born in Chicago of a Bolivian father and part-English mother, moved to La Jolla in California at the age of 2 and says that she wanted to become an actress from the age of 5.

"I never wanted to be a nurse or a social worker. But, coming from a town without any theatre, I got involved with movies early on. They became the source of my fantasies and I created my own little world around them. I was also sent to ballet classes, chiefly so that I should keep out of trouble. Later on I studied drama at San Diego State College but when I came to Hollywood I had no more experience than that of a naive little small-town girl diligently pursuing a hobby."

She made amazingly rapid progress. She made a teen-age pop movie, "Swinging Summer," that hand "50,000 other people and a story that could have been written on the back of a Band-Aid." She and her husband, Patrick Curtis, formed their own company; and she was spotted by Twentieth Century-Fox executives at a ball.

There quickly followed her first important film, "Fantastic Voyage", in which she and a team of scientists made a 60-minute journey through the human body in a miniaturized submarine.

She doesn't seem umbilically attached to any of her early movies. She recalls one western, "100 Rifles," in which the plot required her to be sprayed with a hose before filming. "I wouldn't mind suffering for the cause of art," she observed, "but not for 100 Rifles." But it was only with "Myra Breckenridge" that she got her first major lead role.

I asked if, given the benefit of hindsight, she would do "Myra Breckenridge" again:

"Under the circumstances, yes. The only thing that worried me about it was the amount of preparation involved; but I dutifully went back and read about the lives of the 1940's stars and saw as many of their films again as I could. The film was a very good thing for me personally but the script might have made Myra a much richer, fuller character. But there are plenty of subjects I wouldn't do. For instance, 'Valley of the Dolls' and 'Beyond the Valley of the Dolls,' both of which were pushed vaguely in my direction. I pushed them right back again."

In the past Hollywood's sex queens have, once dethroned, come to notoriously sticky ends; but somehow I can't see this happening to Raquel Welch. She gives the impression of being much too self-aware not to quit while she's ahead of the game.

JUST OUT OF JAIL, OH NO, NOT AGAIN?

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Angry Horace Allen of Sarnia returned home Friday after spending five days in jail for refusing to pay a $20 traffic ticket for going through a stop sign.

He was convicted of the charge Monday after a policeman testified he went through the stop sign at "walking speed." Mr. Allen claimed he came to a full stop and went to jail rather than pay the $20.

When he got home after losing a week's wages, Mr. Allen found he had some mail — a ticket from the police department for the same traffic violation.

It turned out to be a clerical error. The department ticketed him twice.

Movie Banned

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — The movie The Liberation of L. B. Jones has been banned from U.S. armed forces theatres in Europe because of its inflammatory effect on race relations, the army said Thursday. A spokesman said the film, dealing with an inter-racial divorce case in a small southern U.S. town, "appeared to be inflaming both to whites and blacks."

Stove Plug Step Long Overdue

Introduction of heavy duty electrical outlet plugs province-wide in Ontario July 1 is welcomed here as a step toward complete stove and dryer portability.

The move is called for by Ontario Hydro in all new residential construction, and will provide for 50-amp stove receptacles and 30-watt dryer outlets.

By having several installed with the house wiring at the time of construction, a householder may select alternative locations for these heavy appliances without calling an electrician or risk a rewiring error if he chooses to move his own stove.

In Ontario, householders with existing heavy wiring may buy a receptacle kit to convert service to plug-in type. The cost will be about $14 a kit.

"People in the electrical industry have been hollering for it for years," commented Victoria electrical inspector M. F. Schwartz, who noted that in B.C. each local jurisdiction is responsible for adopting its own electrical regulations.

Each province is autonomous in deciding its electrical standards, but often industry associations influence the form of regulations.

Schwartz said the Canadian Standards Association has been responsible for creating the Canadian Electrical Code, which may be adopted by provincial orders-in-council.

The heavy duty receptacle rule will be part of the CSA code when it is revised in 1972.

Eventually, it will be possible in Ontario for homeowners and apartment dwellers to move from place to place without the need of an electrician, being able to plug in heavy appliances as if they were a lamp or vacuum cleaner.

But, of course, the heavy duty plugs carry higher voltage and withstand heavier loads than conventional outlets. To avoid the chance of ruining a lamp or small appliance by plugging it into the heavy receptacle, a specially-shaped plug with four prongs is required. A 110-volt two or three-pronged plug won't fit.

Schwartz commented the suggested Ontario price of a conversion kit is "not too bad," considering the cost of hiring an electrician.

It's a Sheer Lack of Thought To Push Aside Fading Daffs

By JACK BEASTALL

Bread and cheese, bacon and eggs, coffee and donuts, spring gardens in Victoria and daffodils — natural combinations, things you expect and take for granted.

Some gardens still have varieties of daffodils that were popular more than 50 years ago, indicating their ability to reproduce with the minimum of attention. Their thin twisted petals (perianth segments look frail and distorted compared with the firm substance and size of today's newer varieties, but we cannot say as yet whether these perfections of hybridizing will be continuing without attention a half century from now.

We do know that all narcissi make next year's flowers between the fading of this year's blooms and the time the foliage dies naturally in early June.

To prove this we can conduct an interesting experiment, one to delight the children and often amaze the home gardener.

Take a flowering size bulb after its leaves have dried, cut it in half from tip to base, and you find a yellowish-green centre to the bulb. Pulled apart under a powerful hand-glass it proves to be the flowers the bul bwould have produced, at present in a rudimentary form.

Any action or condition that prevents the bulb from maturing naturally has an effect on next year's flowers.

Food, water, and careful preservation of the leaves are three essentials often disregarded in the home garden. Once the floers are over there seems to be an impatient desire to remove all traces of the plants and forget the bulbs, then express concern when flowers are few and of poor quality.

Many gardeners who insist on growing spring flowering bulbs refer to their foliage as a nuisance once the flowers are finished. This attitude results from poor planning before planting.

It is sheer lack of thought when the gardener plants daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and bulbous iris in a bed or border that is to be changed to bedding annuals in early May. The bulbs will occupy the bed from early September through June, and the annuals will have to wait until July, which is too late.

Some feel they can beat this problem having read the bulbs may be removed and heeled-in on a vacant part of the vegetable garden.

In this case heeling-in means transplanting, that is, lifting the bulbs complete with soil and not exposing the roots to air. If air reaches the roots, or the roots are damaged, they will die and the bulbs will not continue to mature. They must be moved as any living plant is moved during its season of growth.

This applies to all bulbs whether they make a flower within the present bulb, make a new bulb after flowering, or simply replenish their vitality for next year's efforts.

Green leaves are essential to the manufacture of food reserves that carry the bulb over its resting period and start the leaves and roots the following season. As long as a leaf is green it must be preserved, or the plant will suffer.

Tips for The Home Gardener

Spring bulbs should always be planted in beds to themselves, or in areas where they may remain untouched until the growth cycle is completed. In such beds or areas they must not be forgotten when the blooming season ends, for that is the critical time.

Here are the basic rules to follow if you would have perfection of bloom year after year:

- Remove the flower and the seed pod just before the flower fades to prevent waste of vitality in producing seed; this applies to daffodils, tulips, bulbous iris and hyacinths.
- After heads are removed water deeply and apply a light dressing of fertilizer. Not a general fertilizer, but a specific mix for bulbs and potatoes, one with an analysis near 4-4-10 (low nitrogen, low phosphoric acid, and high potash).
- Dampen fertilizer and leave over night for crystals to dissolve. Water thoroughly and deeply next day to carry plant food down to the root area.
- Water as needed through late April and during May until the foliage shows signs of losing its intense green and becoming yellowish-green. Then stop watering and allow the bulbs to remain perfectly dry for the summer resting period.

Here again we see why the bulbs should never be among plants requiring watering during the summer and fall. The rest period in dry soil is essential to good growth and flowering the following spring.

Narcissi need lifting when they produce lots of foliage but few flowers; about every fifth year. Tulips should be lifted every year, cleaned and stored in wire-mesh trays or mesh sacks in a cool dry place. Hacinths and bulbous irises may remain until soil needs replenishing.

An excellent book on bulb gardening will appear around September written by an experienced local grower of bulbs. Exceptionally readable and full of facts for this coastal area, it is the kind of book home gardeners have long needed.

Gray Campbell of Sidney is the publisher. Rosemary Owen the author, and it will be in the $4 bracket. Watch for it, or better still, place an order now with your bookseller.

WORK FOR WEEK

By JACK BEASTALL

Feed all daffodils and hyacinths as they finish blooming. Remove heads and seed pods promptly.

Finish planting of conifers, evergreen shrubs and trees immediately. Delay into dry warm weather brings problems. Surface mulch all newly planted small shrubs with thoroughly dampened peatmoss.

Gradually harden off all bedding plants outdoors before planting. A degree or two of frost will spoil ageratum, red salvia and zinnias, whereas snapdragons, alyssum and lobelia are more resistant if they have been outdoors in the flats.

Set out plants of lettuce and summer cabbage, three to six at a time according to your weekly needs. Use dusting of lime in each planting hole for all cabbage family to prevent club-root, and stamp ground firmly around roots.

Check logans, boysens and blacks to see all canes are firmly tied to supporting wires. Remove all young growths at base not needed for tying-in next year.

Last chance to sow lawn seed; will need constant care through summer. If area not properly prepared, better to wait until September.

Spectracide.
All you need to control virtually every insect in your garden
Sure your garden is crawling with a great variety of insects. But you don't need a great variety of insecticides to control'em: In fact, in most cases all you need is one . . . Spectracide.
Spectracide [with Diazinon] controls virtually every important insect known to gardens. Mites, ants, chinch bugs, aphids, leafminers are just a few examples.
Protect your lawn, shrubs, flowers, fruits and vegetables with Spectracide.
Spectracide®
Spectracide® Contains Diazinon
Available in liquid concentrate, granular or pressurized spray, wherever fine garden supplies are sold.

Here's where a little thinking can save you a backache... weeks from now.
There are two basic ways to fertilize a lawn. The standard heavy-weight, short-term method, or the long-term Lawn Green method.
Lawn Green contains a balanced formula with special UF nitrogen that releases slowly into your grass. That way it keeps on feeding your lawn for weeks after initial application. You get a greener, better nourished lawn. And you get to spend more sunny afternoons with a caddy cart than your fertilizer spreader.
Another thing to remember is that 22 lbs. of concentrated Lawn Green equals 40-80 lbs. of conventional fertilizer. And one 22 lb. bag of Lawn Green covers a full 5000 square feet. So Lawn Green makes light work of things.
It's your summer. Enjoy it.

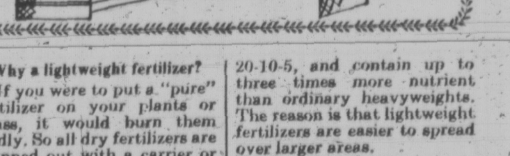
LAWN AND PLANT CARE



Why a lightweight fertilizer?
If you were to put a "pure" fertilizer on your plants or grass, it would burn them badly. So all dry fertilizers are thinned out with a carrier or "extender". The choice of thinner is pretty important.
Sand vs. vermiculite
Sand is cheap. And it is used in many heavyweight fertilizers to provide bulk—at about 80 lbs. per bag. If you have the muscles for it, fine. On the other hand, fillers such as vermiculite do the same job (or better) at 20-25 lbs. a bag.
Easier to spread
In fact, most lightweight fertilizers are highly concentrated, with analyses like 20-10-5, and contain up to three times more nutrient than ordinary heavyweights. The reason is that lightweight fertilizers are easier to spread over larger areas.
Buy coverage
It's all very simple. Weight is not a good yardstick to use when buying fertilizers. Instead, go by convenience and the "coverage area" of the fertilizer.
Buy results, not dead weight.
For Flower Beds
After transplanting annuals, wait 2 weeks until they become well established. Hoe to remove any weeds, then treat with Granular Weed Preventer containing Trifluralin.

The Organic Revolution: Sniffing Manure With New-Found Zest After a Taste of Supermarket Vegetables

By PAT MUNSON

There's a booming trade in natural foods this spring as Greater Victoria shoppers eye with increasing suspicion the gaily-packaged mass produced foods products full of customer appeal, preservatives, colorings and other additives.

The dissatisfaction has spread even to the produce department where poly-ported thousands of miles, are arranged in appetizing mounds.

These vegetables have often been chemically treated to mature faster, grow larger and withstand pest attacks. For the big producer to make money, the land must be forced beyond its natural capacity to produce as many as four crops per year.

bagged vegetables, trans-

Somewhere in this prcess, the rare taste treat of a naturally-grown vegetable, picked at the peak of perfection, has been lost.

There is nothing new about organic gardening but, suddenly not only "health food nuts" but just about everybody is sniffing the fragrance of barnyard manure and a well-rotted compost pile with new appreciation.

Several newly-opened natural food stores have commissioned their own growers of organically-produced vegetables for those who lack the necessary garden space.

Roadside stalls on the Saanich Peninsula, in particular, are beginning to display the "organic" sign and one of the best known producers in this line are James and Mary Cooper on the East Saanich Road.

Cooper is acknowledged by other local farmers as the "grandfather" of the movement. For years his roadside display laden with bright green peppers (which grow 30 to a bush), zucchini squash, cucumbers and tomatoes has been the pleasant object of a Sunday drive.

When he came here 23 years ago from the Rossland-Trail district where he was a pharmacist, James Cooper was in revolt against chemicals in the air, on the ground and (pill-wise) in the body.

Using manure, compost and seaweed fertilizer, he gradually built up five acres of rich soil on which he grows fruit, vegetables, pastures goats, raises chickens and keeps bees.

"It takes at least five or six years to make the transition from chemical to organic farming," says Cooper. "But when the crops start producing, the yield is much more concetrated one acre of vegetables grown organically will equal five acres of crops grown the modern way."

Crops must be rotated, above ground plants changing places with root vegetables. "It is more work to farm organically," admits Mary Cooper, "but people will eventually have to do it this way."

Chemicals, she points out, do not make good earthworm fodder ... "they need decaying matter, the soil must be alive with minute bacteria."

Martin Woodford of Sidney Seaweed Products is also an active proponent of organic gardening. Part of his interest is vested in his seaweed fertilizer, Alginure, which is used in large quantities across Canada.

In Ontario, an organic farmer named Alvin Filsinger is one of Woodford's best customers, using the liquid seaweeed to spray his 4,000 tree apple orchard.

In Nova Scotia, the department of forestry is using the same product to stimulate reforestation. But in B.C., provincial agriculaturists have not, as yet, been persuaded to try seaweed fertilizer.

"Most of my time is spent fighting big fertilizer companies whose money is in pesticides," says Woodford.

One the new natural foods stores recently opened in Victoria is Earth House Hold in Oak Bay whose proprietor, Jo Blake, recently met 150 gardeners to arrange a supply of organically-grown summer produce.

"Many of our customers are housewives who are frightened by what they have read," says Blake whose store has a homespun atmosphere, filled with the scent of herbs, stone-ground wheat and unusual teas.

On the notice board are cards advertising land plots available for organic farming, equipment for rent, rooms in exchange for work and commune invitations.

In Sooke, young proprietress Wendy Bender opened a natural food store last week, "Sooke General Store" in a log cabin beside her home at 7103 Grant Rd.

Turner Wants Results From Talks

The federal-provincial constitutional conference in Victoria June 14-16 must achieve results — if for no other reason than to encourage Quebec moderates, federal Justice Minister John Turner said Friday.

Turner met Premier Bennett for 90 minutes to "isolate areas of disagreement" on issues to be discussed at the conference. He will meet all 10 premiers on the same basis before June 14.

"I think it's important for English Canada that we achieve some concrete results in order that the discussions become credible," Turner said.

"In the case of public opinion in Quebec, it also is important to achieve results so that the moderates who support Premier Robert Bourassa and federalism can be encouraged and show it isn't necessary for Quebec to separate."

Waterfront Lease Curbs Announced

New regulations governing the leasing of waterfront acreage were announced Friday by the provincial lands and forests department.

The new policy, intended to tighten control of waterfront land use, will emphasize a recent trend toward development of waterfront summer residence subdividisions by the government in areas where public interest is high.

It will tend to cut down "haphazard" granting of applications for individual waterfront leases which have been reduced substantially in recent years in any case, an official said.

Instead of making an actual application to lease land, individuals or companies seeking waterfront sites will file a "statement of interest."

These will be reviewed probably once a year by the department with a view to subdivision developments following consultation among various resource departments to determine the best use for the land in question.

The preservation of land for public recreational use will be a major aim of the new policy but land use priorities will be balanced among a variety of other uses such as wildlife protection and industry.

The department said strict control will be exercised to see that logging doesn't damage the values of lakes or neighboring properties.

In dubdividision developments, lots will be disposed of by public caution on a leasehold basis with no option to purchase.

As of today, all crown lands within 660 feet of lakeshore and all islands in such lakes will be reserved by the Lands Service or the Forest Service under the new policy.

Library Conference Starts on Monday

British Columbians from many walks of life will gather at the Provincial Museum Monday for the British Columbia Centennial Citizens' Conference on Libraries.

Arranged as a special centennial event, the conference is the first of its kind to be held in Canda.

Beginning at 9 a.m., the delegates will be welcomed by Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, Provincial Secretary W. D. Black and Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Theme of the conference is Libraries Vital to Tomorrow's World.

Between 9:30 and 10:45 a.m. Miss Enid Dearing, chief librarian of the North Vancouver Public Library, and Harry Newsom, associate professor of the University of Alberta's school of library science, will discuss the prospects of more co-operation between libraries.

Representatives of industry, education, labor and government will take part in a panel discussion at 10:45 a.m. The subject will be Future and the Challenge. Moderator is Dean W. Halliwell, head of the University of Victoria's library and panelists are Gordon Draeseke, John Church, John Fryer and C. H. L. Woodward.

Between 2:30 and 4:15 small discussion groups will be held, the theme being Where It's At — Where it Should Be. Directions will be given by R. L. Davison, secretary of the board of examiners for the certification of professional librarians in B.C.

HARD LOOK

Roy Stokes, director of the University of British Columbia's school of librarianship, will speak on A Hard Look at Today, A Bold Look at Tormorrow at 4:30 p.m.

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland will be master of ceremonies for a luncheon to be held at the Empress Hotel at 12:15 p.m. The guest speaker will be MP Paul St. Pierre, author of many books and creator of the television series Cariboo Country.

Alan Emmott, Burnaby alderman and former mayor, will be guest speaker at a dinner to be held at 7 p.m. in the hotel. Mrs. Ella Pretty, conference chairman, will be master of ceremonies. Robert Ferguson, chairman of the Library Development Commission, will speak on Tomorrow's World.

Saanich to Build Low Rental Homes

Saanich council has initiated steps for the building of 60 units of predominantly two-bedroom housing for rental to low-income families.

Ald. Edith Gunning, chairman of lands and housing committee, announced Friday the municipality has made application for this to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell under Section 35A of the National Housing Act.

When tri-government approval is reached, Saanich will advertise for proposals for construction of the accommodation, which would be in small groupings of no more than 20 units and preferably fewer in a group, she said.

"There have been recently several attractive small developments of attached dwellings planned or built in Saanich. These are based on the concept of the intermediate density zone which was introduced into the Saanich zoning bylaw last year," she said.

"I would like to promote this sort of thing as one alternative to the single-family residence and as being more suitable to some areas of Saanich than larger complexes."

Saanich has provided 35 family housing units and 81 senior citizens suits in its housing plan.

Under Section 35A of the National Housing Act, the federal government pays 75 per cent of the capital cost and the provincial government 25 per cent.

The rent subsidy, which includes maintenance and amortization, is split between the three levels of government, with Saanich paying 12½ per cent. However, it receives full taxes on the houses.

Judge Orders Censor View Nudie Films

VANCOUVER (CP)—The director of film classification for B.C., Ray McDonald, was instructed Friday to view three of 12 nudie movies alleged to be obscene.

Provincial court Judge Maurice Mulligan issued the instructions during the the trial of five men charged with possession of obscene films for the purpose of publication, distribution and circulation.

The order came after McDonald, a defence witness, said he had viewed the films April 14 but said he was unable to state which of them "could stand editing," and which he would pass unedited.

Charged in the case are Jack Jung, Yue Get Jung, Jack Yau, Chuck Quon and Foon Jack Jung.

Movies Said Cruel

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One U.S. and three foreign-made movies have been rated unacceptable by the American Humane Association because of "objectionable animal treatment."

The association said Friday the films, A Gunfight, Waterloo, The Lawman and The Hunting Party appear to show mishandling of animals. A Gunfight was produced in the United States.

The films, the association said, show horses stumbling and falling over a wire, a bull being "tortured," and the apparent killing of a snake.

Producers of the movies were not available for comment.

The Mobile Home: A Stable Answer to Housing Crisis?

WINNIPEG — A majority of Canadians will support mobile home communities as an answer to the country's housing problems.

This was disclosed at the recent annual general meeting here of the Canadian Mobile Home and Travel Trailer Association.

The association made public the results of a market survey conducted across Canada which showed that 57 per cent of the public view the mobile home as an answer to the housing problem. Among owners of mobile homes, the percentage rises to 86 per cent.

In addition, the survey showed a rising demand for recreational vehicles such as travel trailer and truck campers. The association said it will bring this to the attention of regional governments and persons interested in establishing more parks to cater to such travellers.

Dan E. Johnsen of Calgary, president of CMHTTA, said the survey results "strongly support our contention that the public is ready to make greater use of mobile homes if community acceptance and financing is more readily available."

Mobile homes offer the advantages of both low cost and mobility, the survey by Elliot Research Corp. revealed. But although an identical share — 38 per cent — of both mobile home residents and Canadians generally cited mobility as an advantage, the average mobile home owner tends to stay put. Seventy-two per cent of mobile home owners have not moved in the past five years.

Most mobile homes are shipped directly from the factory to their site. Seventy-four per cent of owners rent their site, and of renters two-thirds of them occupy lots in mobile home park communities.

Other advantages listed by mobile home owners are ease of maintenance, ownership, economy, convenience and privacy.

Families living in mobile homes are representative of the public as a whole, the survey found. Fifty per cent of owners are under 35 years of age, and 69 per cent have a high school. technical or business college education.

Occupations range from executive to professional, sales, skilled and unskilled, and retired. Fifty-two per cent of the families have children. However, mobile home owners tend to have smaller families than other Canadians. Fifty-five per cent of mobile home families have incomes between $5,000 and $10,000.

Sixty-one per cent of mobile home owners reported they financed their purchase, 48 per cent through banks. Eight out of 10 mobile home owners, and 67 per cent of all Canadians, feel NHA financing should be made available.

However, 37 per cent of mobile home residents said they feel local governments discourage establishment of mobile home communities.

Johnsen emphasized that this is because "too many local governments are still thinking in terms of the ancient trailer park image instead of the modern mobile home community, professionally designed and managed."

Johnsen said the recent adoption by the industry of production standards will ensure higher quality manufacturing of mobile homes and trailers in the future.

The CMHTTA recently asked that the CSA standards be used as the basis for accepting mobile homes as housing under the National Building Code.

Johnsen said that about 90,000 Canadians now live in mobile homes and that sales of new units are averaging between 12,000 and 15,000 per year.

Contrasts of Snow, Sand and Greenery Provided by Mysterious Canary Islands

By BENOIT HOULE

LAS PALMAS (CP)—The origin of the Canary Islands may be a geological puzzle, but for the tourist they signify an oasis of a thousand contrasts, where lush fertility lies next to utter desolation and snow-covered summits dominate virtual deserts.

Situated at the crossroads of four continents—the Americas, Europe and Africa—the Spanish-owned islands know neither the cold of winter nor the excessive heat of summer. Since antiquity they have been called the Islands of Fortune.

The exact origin of the islands is not known, although their existence has been traced to the tertiary geologic age. Some geologists believe them to be a continuation of the African plateau; others say they are the summit of the lost continent of Atlantis.

SHAPED LIKE SHELL

Because of an exceptional geographical location and the constant presence of the trade winds, the Canary Islands have a privileged climate for some 1,500 species of trees, plants and flowers.

Lying in the Atlantic Ocean off Africa, the archipelago of the Canary Islands consists of seven islands, the principal one being the Grand Canaria.

A miniature continent by reason of the diversity of its flora, fauna and landscape, the Grand Canaria extends, in the shape of a shell, some 45 miles, and is 35 miles wide.

Surrounded by fine sand beaches, traversed by deep ravines, it also rises to an altitude of almost 6,000 feet above sea level.

In the centre of the islands are two impressive volcanic craters, Ti rajama and Bandama, as well as tall imposing rocks which are the pride of the islanders.

On the Grand Canaria are also the capital city of Las Palmas, an important international airport and one of Spain's foremost seaports.

The third largest island in size, the Grand Canaria boasts a total population of 460,000. Of the 180 urban centres on the island, only three have more than 25,000 inhabitants: Las Palmas, with a population of 190,000, Telde with 32,000 and Aracus with 26,000.

TOMATOES GAINING

The economy of the Canary Islands is based on agriculture, and the production of bananas constitutes the most important resource. About three million bunches, or 400,000 tons, are exported each year.

The production of tomatoes has gained importance in recent years and now is the second greatest source of wealth on the island.

Small zones are set aside for the production of tobacco, sugar cane, cotton and fruit trees, including avocado, orange, lemon, date and mango trees. Potato cultivation is also assuming ever-increasing importance.

The Islands of Fortune were widely spoken of in antiquity, but it was not until the beginning of the 13th century that navigators dared the ocean in the region of the archipelago.

Normand Jean de Betencourt is credited with discovering the islands in 1402. Since 1479 they have remained under Spanish rule.

COLUMBUS RECALLED

Christopher Columbus, with the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria, also landed on the Canary Islands on Aug. 9, 1492. From there he undertook the expedition to America, on Sept. 6, 1492, which was to give him his place in history.

The governor's palace where Columbus stayed at that time and on his three subsequent voyages to the Canary Islands—in 1493, 1498, and 1502—carries the name Columbus House and now is a museum.

The original inhabitants of the island were among the few peoples to practise the art of mummifying their dead, which they did by drying them in the sun and air and then oiling the bodies with fats and herbs.

The island boasts its own folklore, costumes and customs, including cock fights and an ancient form of wrestling. The language spoken, however, is Spanish.

$10,000 For Bank Loot

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Bank of Montreal offered a $10,000 reward Friday for the recovery of $327,000 taken in the armed robbery of its Vancouver General Hospital branch Tuesday.

After the robbery $1,500 in coins was recovered by police in a getaway car ditched by the robbers, but the rest of the money, in bills, still is missing.

Kenneth John Harber, 27, and Norman Kenseth MacDonald, 31, both of Haney B.C., and Joseph Robert Belec, 34, of Burnaby, B.C., are charged in the robbery and have been remanded in custody to Thursday.

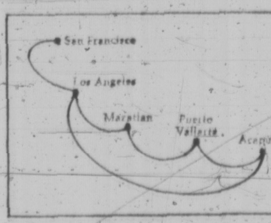
Winter 1970-71. Remember?

Remember this winter? Rain. Cold. Snow. Watery eyes. Sniffles. Greasy-looking skies. A week or two of warm weather would have done wonders for you then. What if you could have afforded it, and didn't know?

Acapulco, The Panama Canal, The Caribbean.

Next winter, P&O will be making two cruises to Acapulco, Mazatlan, and Puerto Vallarta, and two more cruises on through the Panama Canal to St. Thomas, Barbados, Curacao and other ports of the Caribbean. There'll be guaranteed sunshine, tropical scenery unlike anything you'll ever see at home, and a lively shipboard social life. The Mexican Cruises are as short as a week, the Caribbean Cruises as long as four. A typical First Class cabin on our Mexican Cruise would cost $850 per person. To the Caribbean $1770. All things considered, you probably couldn't choose a better way of keeping last winter from happening to you again.



Two Mexican Cruises. From US$ 385 to US$ 1560.

INDIANS DON'T WANT TO LEARN FRENCH

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Indians called on the Quebec government Friday to stop forcing their children to learn French.

At the final session of the second annual national conference on Indian culture, a resolution, passed after hot debate, asked the federal government to intervene and tell Quebec to give its Indians the right to be educated in the language of their choice.

One delegate from Quebec said the Quebec government was forcing its Indian children to learn French, making it impossible for Quebec Indians to communicate with Indians in other parts of Canada.

Alanis Obomsawin, another Quebec delegate, told the conference, the resolution might be interpreted as discriminating against those Indians in Quebec who already speak French.

STOLEN GOODS

A resolution calling for the return of Indian artifacts now in museums also received strong approval. It referred to "stolen goods" and asked an end to "white exploitation of Indian culture."

The motion was aimed specifically at artifacts taken from the Kwakiutl coast Indians of B.C., in the 1920s which now are in the national museum in Ottawa.

Another resolution calling for an end to federally-funded programs to collect Indian artifacts especially criticized the excavation of Indian graveyards.

Education was another central topic with delegates passing resolutions that called for a greater participation by Indian parents in their children's education and special courses on Indian history and culture.

Sevigny Qualifies As a Candidate

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Sevigny, former associate defence minister in the Progressive Conservative government of John Diefenbaker, has qualified as an official candidate for the leadership of Quebec's Union Nationale party, a spokesman for Mr. Sevigny said Friday.

He said 100 delegates have agreed to sponsor the former federal cabinet minister, allowing him to take part in the UN leadership race.

Mr. Sevigny announced last month that he would seek the party leadership but the UN's convention committee informed him he would not be officially considered until he obtained the signatures of 100 delegates willing to support him.

Mr. Sevigny, 53, resigned from the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1963.

Later the same year, he was implicated in the Gerda Munsinger sex-and-security scandal.

RCMP said Miss Munsinger, described as a prostitute, was a security risk and a frequent companion of the minister during his last year in office.

A government report later said there was no evidence that any security breach had resulted from the relationship.

Mr. Sevigny was a decorated Second World War veteran and had a leg ampitated as a result of a shell wound.

Mario Beaulieu, Gabriel Loubier and Marcel Masse, former cabinet ministers in the previous UN government of Jean-Jacques Bertrand, and Andre Leveillee, a former UN member of the national assembly, are also seeking the party leadership.

Marvin Chosen For Movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Marvin will star in Prime Cut for Cinema Centre Films, it was announced.

Marvin, 1965 Academy Award winner for Cat Ballou, will portray a Kansas City racketeer in the contemporary melodrama of gangland.

Beach Prepared For Princess

ROCKFACE at Long Beach is smoothed by workmen (left) for the plaque which Princess Anne will unveil Tuesday. Ceremony will mark inauguration of the new national Pacific Rim Park and will include symbolic transfer of land deed from British Columbia to federal government. View (below) of preparations also shows work under way to prepare park for summer visitors. Tuesday afternoon's ceremony will take place at Green Point, midway between Ucluelet and Tofino. Princess' visit will last just over an hour.

Strawberry Problems

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal agriculture department says it has already made recommendations to deal with an import threat to the $3-million-a-year strawberry business in the Fraser Valley of British Columbia.

Harvey Pudwell, executive assistant to Agriculture Minister Bud Olson, said Friday the recommendations will be discussed in cabinet in the next day or so. They will not be made public until after the cabinet meeting.

The growers say that unless there is duty protection, they will plow under 13 million pounds of strawberries or allow them to rot in the fields.

Mr. Pudwell said the department recognizes the Fraser Valley growers have a serious problem, but added that any solution the government finds must take into account the international trade problems a higher duty could cause.

Provincial Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said the federal agricultural trade policies are "disastrous."

"These growers have a really serious problem, but it's the same kind of problem that is faced by other industries too," he said.

"We certainly don't want to lose the industry. This is the kind of problem that should be coming up at the federal-provincial ministers' conferences. They don't.

"Instead they are just shadow-boxing with nothing."

He said the government's policy is one-way, allowing fresh and frozen produce in from countries that won't accept Canadian goods.

Accord at CP Air

VANCOUVER (CP) — The vice-president of the transportation and communication division of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks announced Friday agreement has been reached in a dispute between the union and CP Air.

R. C. Dick Smith, who is also chairman of the associated non-operating railway groups, said the new one-year contract covers dispatchers, agents, teletype operators and ground hostesses employed by the airline.

He said the settlement calls for wage increases of from 10 to 23 per cent, depending on years of service, effective May 3.

Improvements were also achieved in overtime rules, group life insurance and shift hours.

Mr. Smith said the new contract includes a technological change section which provides for relocation expenses, layoff benefits, severance pay and advance notice of any innovation or new procedures likely to have adverse effects on employees.

Under the new agreement, the wage scale for a six-year man goes from $642 a month to $712.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my deep gratitude to my many friends for their kind expressions of sympathy in the recent loss of my dear husband Fred. Also to the doctors and nurses of the Veterans Hospital, McCall Bros. and the Pro Patricia Branch of the Legion. Mrs. Marjorie Durick

We wish to express the sincere gratitude in our hearts to relatives, friends and neighbors for their cards, letters and flowers received during the recent loss of my dearly beloved husband and sadly missed Dad, Col. Doulas Gasse. Special thanks to Dr. J. L. W. McLean, Rev. B. Mallory and choir members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Laura Gosse, Sally and Steve.

Words can never express the kind thoughts and sympathy extended on the death of Mother and Dad, Marie and Walter (Frank) Wainwright. Special thanks to Dr. Butler and Dr. James and to all who generously donated to the B.C. Heart Fund. Son Roy and Grandson Ken.

I wish sincerely to thank my friends for their kind expressions of sympathy and for the beautiful floral offerings in my recent bereavement in losing my dear husband Alex Ross. Also many thanks to Rev. Peter Wilkinson. Helen Ross.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HOLLAND, F. George who passed away May 1, 1968.
We do not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you often, and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be
But dear to our memory you ever will be.
Loving remembered by Mary and family.

THE MOST SPECTACULAR VIEWS
IN THE UPLANDS
Are yours from practically any point in the fully sprinklered grounds of this modern bungalow or from most of the rooms in the house. Main floor accommodation consists of sunken living room, dining room and kitchen with full house length sundeck overlooking the Yacht Club, plus master bedroom, bathroom and small den. An open stairway leads down to the lower level with recreation room and three bedrooms, all facing the water and having ground-level access. This is not a large home and may well be on the small side, but the setting is such and the site so superb and beautifully landscaped that the value has to be in excess of the asking price of only $55,000. For a personal tour call JACK MEARS 598-3321.

FRESH NEW LISTING
ARBUTUS — CADBORO BAY
DISTINCTIVE AND UNIQUE
This lovely modern home set amidst green lawns and fruit trees, has 3 bedrooms plus large study plus large sewing room, which could make 2 more. The interior floor layout is on 3 levels and presents the perfect pattern for simultaneous formal and casual activities. The rear garden is fully fenced, beautifully lawned and has a comfortable secluded patio. The double garage is attached and the driveway is extra wide with parking apron to one side. Cadboro Bay and Telegraph Bay Beaches are within easy strolling distance as are schools and village. The kitchen is a pleasure to work in with far more than the usual number of cupboards plus homemaker's office, plus garburator, plus built-in dishwasher, stainless steel double sink, large breakfast nook and a complete utility room off. There are 3 bathrooms conveniently situated and room in the bright basement for rec. room. In addition — a brand new SAUNA room! This ad merely inventories the accommodation because I lack the space and the words to adequately describe the distinction, charm, warmth and value of this delightful property, well priced at only $47,900. BEN FRANKLIN'S

UNUSUAL COPY

Benjamin used advertisements for everything and anything. This amusing example, from the July 14, 1737, issue of his newspaper, The Pennsylvania Gazette, illustrates his unusual copy.

"TAKEN OUT OF A PEW IN the Church some months since, a Common Prayer Book, bound in red, gilt, and lettered D.F. (Deborah Franklin) on each cover. The who took it is desired to open it and read the eighth Commandment, and afterwards return it into the same Pew again, upon which no further Notice will be taken."

THE WEATHER

Today marks the hundredth anniversary of the Canadian Meteorological Service but the weather refuses to co-operate with celebrations of this nature and the day has dawned dull and wet in most parts of the province with only the south-eastern interior due for sunshine today.

A backward look at April indicates that B.C. was generally dry last month. Wet areas were along the outer coast and the southeastern interior. Vancouver airport was about a third of an inch short of its normal April rainfall at two inches of rain for the month.

The storm giving rain to southwestern B.C. this morning is centered off the south Oregon coast. So far over an inch of rain has occurred with this system along the outer coast and the rain is likely to persist all of today and into Sunday morning. Cloud and showers with this disturbance will gradually spread into the interior tonight. Partial clearing is likely in its wake along the coast late Sunday.

3 Remain In Hospital

David Alvin Smith, 21, of 2517 Wentwich, is in fair condition with multiple fractures and internal injuries he received in a two-car collision about 7 p.m. at Millstream and the Trans-Canada Highway Thursday. He was the driver of one car.

Barry McCowan, 24, of 440 Simcoe, the second driver, is in good condition with a broken leg.

Eric McFadyen, 1845 Hollywood Crescent, is in fairly good condition with head and face injuries. He was the driver of a car that collided with a trailer-truck on the Malahat, two miles north of Goldstream Park about 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

WOMAN STARTS JOB CO-OP

A North Saanich woman has started a job co-operative to provide part-time work for students and unemployed young people.

Mrs. C. H. Smith of 507 Downey Rd. said she decided to start the non-profit co-op because her two sons had more part-time jobs than they could handle.

"People who have had my sons work for them often say they don't know who to get in touch with," she said.

Mrs. Smith will take calls from anyone in North Saanich or Sidney with household or gardening work. Her phone number is 656-3395.

Young people who register with the co-op will be charged a 50-cent fee to cover minor overhead costs.

Cruises to Alaska Start This Sunday

Seattle-based West Tours Inc. will sail two Alaska cruise ships from Victoria this summer, starting Sunday and closing the season with a final arrival from the north Oct. 13.

Each ship will make 20 trips, the last departing Victoria for Prince Rupert, Haines, Skagway, Juneau and Ketchikan Oct. 5. Trips are four days each way, or eight days turn-around.

Orpheus, with 304-passenger capacity, will be first to go into service following a winter schedule between Los Angeles and Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

West Star joins the service May 6, with nine new cabins to raise capacity to 220 persons. It has a Canadian captain and crew, while Orpheus, leased from a Greek line, has Greek captain and crew.

Between them the ships are expected to carry up to 18,000 passengers, who will spend a minimum half-day ashore in Victoria.

Base of operations will be CPR Belleville Street docks, where many of the tour passengers will disembark from the CP ferry Princess Marguerite, which began its Victoria-Seattle summer service this week.

Legislature Opening Film Part of Trial?

A CBC film of the opening of the B.C. legislature Jan. 21 could become part of a trial that started in Victoria provincial court Friday.

Prosecutor John Macintyre, however, told Judge William Ostler he and defence counsel Peter Leask of Vancouver will view the film to see if it provided evidence for the whether it is evidence at all." Crown, the defence "or Paul Watson, 23, of Vancouver, is charged with assault causing bodily harm to legislative attendant George Mackay during a demonstration at the opening of the house.

Macintyre said CBC headquarters in Toronto had "resisted" defence requests for the film and Leask had obtained a county court order demanding the CBC hand over the film.

Macintyre Friday presented evidence of the five crown witnesses and Ostler adjourned the case to June 9.

Mackay testified along with fellow attendant Joseph Parsons, both retired RCMP superintendents, as well as two RCMP officers and a Legislative Buildings' electrician.

Mackay said he was hit in the face near the left eye twice by Watson with a closed fist during a scuffle.

He said he suffered two small cuts and a black eye.

First Sunset Ceremony Set

The honor guard and band of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Rainbow" will perform the first Sunset Ceremony of the year on the Legislative Buildings' grounds Monday at 8:30 p.m.

U.S. Social Security Expert Here

A field representative of the United States' social security administration will be in Victoria May 10 and 11 to assist Vancouver Island residents eligible for payments.

Everett Rightmire of Bellingham, Wash., will be at the U.S. immigration office, 254 Belleville, from noon to 4:30 p.m. May 10 and from 8:30 a.m. to noon May 11.

The visit is to help people now living on the Island who have been employed in the U.S. and who wish to inquire about their status under the U.S. social security program.

Monthly social security benefits may be payable to retired people of 62 years or more, widows and children of deceased workers, and people who have been forced to stop work due to a disability before reaching the age of 65.

The benefits are payable to both Canadian and American citizens if they have worked long enough under the social security or railroad programs.

POLICE THANKED WITH A CHEQUE

A $1,000 cheque in appreciation of police action in a bank robbery last September was given to the Victoria Police Mutual Benevolent Association Friday by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Banker W. M. Armstrong handed the cheque to Sgt. Edward Hardy, president of the benevolent association, in a city hall ceremony attended by Mayor Courtney Haddock, Chief J. F. Gregory and detectives Einar Hemstad and Douglas Sleivert.

The Sept. 24 affair included a bank holdup, two woundings, followed by a car and boat chase.

Hemstad and Sleivert were the two men wounded.

The bankers earlier presented $750 to the Saanich police department in a similar gesture.

Correspondent Freed by Cong

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Catherine M. (Kate) Webb, United Press International bureau manager in the Cambodian capital who had been missing for 24 days and feared dead, was freed today by Communist-led forces along with five other persons.

"I am very glad to be back and very glad to be alive," the 28-year-old New Zealander said on her arrival in Phnom Penh in a Cambodian government helicopter. "I am very thankful that the Viet Cong treated us well and chose to release us."

Also released were Toschiichi Suzuki, a Japanese film cameraman with Nihon Denpe News, and four Cambodian drivers and interpreters.

They were freed before dawn near the town of Trapeang Kralang, 40 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. Miss Webb said, after they were marched an estimated 30 miles through jungles and brush in the last two days to get them to the release point.

GIVEN WHITE FLAG

After their capture, Miss Webb was dressed in black pyjamas and the others were given military fatigus worn by the Viet Cong, she said. Just before their release, she said, they were given back civilian clothes and a peace of white parachute cloth to use as a truce flag. A Cambodian infantry vehicle picked them up.

Miss Webb and the others disappeared during heavy fighting April 7 on Highway 4 about 56 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

She said she and the others, all in a group, were not captured on that day but escaped into the jungles and spent nearly 24 hours wandering through the jungles before they were captured near a bunker.

Mis Webb was reported to have been found dead last month.

BODY IDENTIFIED

A human body identified as that of the 28-year-old UPI bureau chief in Phnom Penh was discovered beside a highway southeast of the Cambodian capital last month and cremated at a military burial ground April 20.

A Cambodian officer identified the body as Miss Webb by the color of her skin and general build and said she had been shot through the chest.

The body identified as that of Miss Webb was examined by a government pathologist before cremation. He said it corresponded to her height and build. UPI correspondent Kim Willenson said at the time "the evidence is fairly conclusive."

Born in Christchurch, Miss Webb has worked for several years in Vietnam. She became UPI bureau chief in Cambodia following the disappearance and death last year of former chief Frank Frosch.

Eight correspondents have been killed in Cambodia since the Indochina war began and 18 are missing.

Jumps For Millions

Miles for Million contestants will drop from the sky tonight.

The Victoria Skydivers Club members decided to jump for their pledges rather than walk.

Jumping at 3,000 feet, about eight members will attempt to hit a target in a 50-foot radius in the playing field beside the stadium at the University of Victoria at 6 p.m.

"Accuracy is a major part of skydiving," said club member George Bissenden, "but we're only accurate to a degree."

Some will be jumping in war surplus chutes others will wear para-commander chutes that glide around between 12 to 14 miles per hour. Bissenden said the jumps will take between 15 and 30 minutes.

People interested in sponsoring a skydiver can call Joan or Bill Blaauw at 656-3936. They are donating the use of the aircraft from the Victoria Flight Centre, for the jumps.

The Occult 'Religion Of Future'

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Balderstone, self-styled psychic consultant, predicts that in another few years local newspapers won't carry anything on their religion pages except stories on psychic phenomena and the occult.

Balderstone, in an interview, called occultism "the religion of the future."

"It's what the kids today want," he said. "They are searching for something, and organized relgion just hasn't given it to them."

Balderstone said he has been working with psychic phenomena for more than 40 years.

He conducts classes in tarot — a system of card-reading prognostication — and for 15 years has operated a store here where every conceivable type of psychic contrivance, from "astral goggles" to cystal balls, is sold.

"There's a sort of do-it-yourself religious searching going on today," he said. "People want to investigate things for themselves, and psychic phenomena rate high on the list."

IT'S RESPECTABLE NOW

Books on the world's religions, books on metaphysics, on teacup reading, astrology, ghosts, yoga, Tibetan gurus, Zen Buddhism, astral projection, I Ching and witchcraft — you name it, he sells it, and the public buys.

"Subjects that once attracted only the fringe element now are appealing to people of all ages and classes," he said. "Occultism has become respectable."

His view is shared by Peter J. Thompson, minister of the First United Spiritualist Church here.

"The old taboos are ending," the minister said. "So many people today are interested in Spiritualism that we're going to have to build a new church."

A down-to-earth Australian, Mr. Thompson dislikes the word supernatural.

"There is no such thing," he said. "Nothing exists outside natural law. What we call the spirit world is simply an extension of life."

The major difference between spiritualism today and that of a half-century ago was that now it is attracting "increasing numbers of educated, professional people."

St. Joseph's Lifts Ban

St. Joseph's Hospital has lifted the visitor restrictions imposed two weeks ago to protect patients from a flu outbreak.

The hospital imposed the visitor ban after flu also produced heavy staff absenteeism but a week ago the restrictions were eased to permit next-of-kin to visit if they didn't have cold symptoms.

A hospital spokesman said Friday the administration appreciated the co-operation I received from the public in protecting patients.

Motorcyclist Tried To Avoid Collision

The motorcyclist killed Sunday in a collision with a car at Cook and Pandora accelerated and swerved in an attempt to avoid the car, a coroner's jury was told Friday.

Terrance McGee, 28, of 1048 Pandora, told the inquest into the death of John Marshall Fox, 23, of 1857 Fern, he estimated the rider increased his speed from about 35 miles an hour to more than 40 before the crash with the car driven by Mary Adele Holtby, of 1025 Sutlej.

McGee said the car paused before making the left turn from Pandora on to Cook and continuing. He didn't think the woman saw the motorcycle.

The car was moving very slowly when it struck the motorcycle, he said.

Another witness said he believed the car entered the intersection before the motorcycle and Victoria police Constable Peter Bridgewood said he had interviewed Mrs. Holtby who told him she hadn't seen Fox until her car hit him.

Bridgewood said there was a lot of glare from the sun looking west down Pandora at the time.

A mechanic testified that Mrs. Holtby's car and found it in excellent shape.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre adjourned the inquest to Wednesday.

Vic West Community development association will meet Tuesday, May 11, at 8 p.m. in St. Savior's Parish Hall.

Building Activity Picks Up

Construction activity picked up in Saanich during April, but remained down for the first four months of this year.

Permits worth $1.3 million were issued last month compared with $729,616 in the same month last year.

So far this year, permits worth $4.4 million have been issued compared with $5.6 million in the same period last year.

Hospitals Want More Welfare Aid

In telegrams to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi the B.C. Association of Private Hospitals says:

"Reductions of staff, fewer social welfare patients and definitely an immediate reduction in the number of non-ambulatory patients will be among recommendations of the association to members if no immediate response is received or if a negative or non-committal answer is received by the association."

Association president R. J. Shepherd said private hospital operators must be assured at once they will receive at least the same percentage increases granted to community care facilities.

A rate of $12 a day for welfare patient grants should be established immediately, he said.

The grant allowance is currently $9.25 per day.

Shepherd pointed out that rest home operators recently received two increases in grants for welfare patients while none has been given private hospitals.

Welfare rates paid private hospitals have risen from $5 to only $9.25 in the past 20 years, despite far larger increases in the cost of living.

The association represents about three-quarters of B.C.'s 61 private hospitals, a total of 3,100 beds. Of these about 40 per cent are occupied by welfare patients.

Fire Kills 4 Children

BIRCH RIVER, Man. (CP) — Four children died when fire swept through a home shortly after midnight Friday night on the Birch River Indian reserve, about 250 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Three other youngsters were taken to hospital in Swan River, 35 miles south of the reserve, and a fourth, whose condition was described as guarded, was taken to hospital in Winnipeg.

RCMP said the dead and injured were 10 years of age or younger.

Their names were not immediately known.

Bapco Head Named

Robert Law, assistant manager of Canadian Industries Ltd. in Toronto since 1969, has been named president of Bapco Paint Co. in Victoria.

He succeeds David Fraser, who is moving to Vancouver to be western manager of CIL for the four western provinces.

Fraser came to Victoria as Bapco president from Hamilton when the company was bought from the Pendray family in 1965.

Priority Given Woman's Role

Esther Greenglass, a professor of psychology at York University, is one of the three women appointed to set priorities on the recommendations made by the royal commission on the status of women. (CP Wirephoto.)

TORONTO (CP) — The threat of over-populating the world is one indication that society must change, says one of three women with a say in in which recommendations of the royal commission on the status of women will get first attention from Parliament.

Esther Greenglass, a professor of psychology at York University, said in an interview:

"A consequence of promoting feminity, motherhood and homemaking as the most desirable and only appropriate roles for females is that it guarantees that a female child will grow up determined to marry and have children.

"Such ambition may have been appropriate when it was necessary to motivate every young person to produce as many children as possible to offset the high mortality rate.

"Today, when the population explosion is regarded as our single most urgent problem, it would be better for women to be procreationally underemployed."

Dr. Greenglass is one of three women who will spend the summer sifting through 167 recommendations made by the royal commission to set priorities so that at least some of them can be brought before Parliament for implementation.

She was chosen together with Jan Steele of London, Ont., and Marie Gibeault of Ottawa by the Liberal party in March.

In October the three will present their priorities to the party's consultative council in a report written by Dr. Greenglass.

Expert Claims Social Acceptance of Drugs Leads to Misuse

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Cigarette and alcohol advertising should be stopped, aspirin should be sold in a plain brown wrapper under its generic name and advertising of medicines should be strictly truthful, a convention of Ontario nurses was told Friday.

Dr. Andrew Malcolm said these are among the things that should be done to prevent drug use and social acceptance of it from doing irreversible social damage.

Dr. Malcolm, a psychiatrist with the Addiction Research Foundation, was addressing delegates to the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

Mr. Malcolm said that despite some opinion to the contrary, statistics show that the use of drugs and attitude of tolerance toward it is a serious, growing problem.

Talking about what should be done to stop it, he identified eight groups who, he said, contribute to the problem.

He said the only ones he would like to pillory are the "great men," the "learned students of the subject and the celebrated consumers of the drug."

"Both scholars and idols must become more responsible. They have created the myth that the enlightened member of society is a multiple drug user."

He said it would be a bad thing to control the work of chemists because of the threat this would carry for other kinds of free enterprise.

He said governments "must sometimes do unpopular things and the control of intoxicants is among them."

He suggested that both medical personnel and the public need more education on the subject of drugs.

Dr. Malcolm said medical schools are not educating doctors about drug habituation. He said it is true that doctors sometimes follow fads in prescribing drugs, sometimes hand out pills too readily, and are so busy they have difficulty keeping up with the latest knowledge in the field.

He suggested a reverse advertising campaign, using money, imagination and prime time, to show that people who smoke, drink beer and take pills are not automatically glamorous, sexy and relieved of all their discomforts.

"Then attitudes would gradually alter."

He also said advertising and promotion should be controlled.

In response to a question, he said he does not believe marijuana should be legalized, but the lack of time and the complexity of the problem would not let him explain why.

For the same reason he said he could not fully discuss what will happen to users. He said the young and psychologically ill are most vulnerable to damage from drugs.

Doing The Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Amalfis put Spring in your step . . .

Hello . . . Fine time for us to be whisked off to hospital just when spring was starting to bust out all over in the stores! . . . Anyway, we're home now and raring to tell you what's new . . . Springtime is walking time . . . and Munday's have a beautiful selection of walking shoes . . . particularly those woven leather ones by Amalfi, whose main feature . . . apart, of course, from impeccable good looks . . . is their softness, comfort and "coolth" . . . "Sardo" is a favorite T-strap model in white bone, navy, tan, black or red. Then there's "Mellini" . . . a low-heeled pump with square front, in white or biscuit . . . "Burina" is a brand new pattern this season . . . Like the others it's woven leather . . . white, biscuit or black . . . with mid-heel and wide strap buckled at the sides . . . "Foplino", another favorite, has an open back and plain leather sides . . . biscuit and white . . . and may be had in sizes right up to 11 . . . Another well-fitting pump is called "Invita" . . . comes in white, bone and navy . . . Prices from about $32 to $37 . . . See the group of new Amalfi soft kid shoes too . . . Three smashing models . . . "Lanzara" with crepe sole and flat heel in red, yellow caramel or green . . . "Fallo", a high-fronted pant shoe . . . and Baghera", high top with side gorings . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 388-2211.

Norell's new clothes are cut full instead of straight like his evening dresses with full taffeta skirts in school-girl ribbon plaids.

"No Name Store" . . . a new mecca for the young . . .

On our first sortie downtown last week . . . we made a bee-line for Miss Frith's whose new "No Name" store we'd been reading about in advertisements . . . What a fresh, exciting, colorful, completely "with it" store this new baby of Miss Frith's is! . . . It features junior sizes from 5 to 15 . . . in fashions and sportswear . . . Styles that appeal to the young . . . though quite frankly there are things any woman of any age could wear if she happens to have the right kind of figure! . . . We'd been taking a rather dim view of hot pants until we saw the dozens of simply adorable hot pants outfits at Miss Frith's . . . Cute little dresses with the pants underneath . . . not really naughty but terribly nice . . . in fact we now much prefer them to miniskirts of yesteryear . . . They come in cottons, arnels, crimplenes, basket weaves . . . just about any fabric you can name . . . "The Weekender" caught our fancy . . . Consists of mini dress, shorts and long pants in various styles . . . There are pant suits galore . . . dresses with the new London look . . . long slinky banlon knits with hoods . . . "Granny" gowns with their frills and ruffles are too sweet for words . . . Big floppy straw hats to complete the picture . . . If you haven't seen Miss Frith's new store yet, we promise you it's well worth a visit . . . In a short time now it should be receiving a name of its own because the naming contest closes this weekend . . . Miss Frith Fashions, 1619 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Mors Dag 1971 . . .

That's Danish for Mother's Day and it appears on Bing & Grondahl's new collectors' item . . . their Mother's Day plate which arrived at Montague Bridgman last week . . . These plates were started in 1969, through Bridgman's unfortunately were unable to obtain any of that first year's output . . . But would you believe it, these 1969 plates which sold for $7.95 are now worth $250? . . . Just goes to show how rapidly values increase in these collector's items . . . Quantities are limited each year, you see, so demand is much larger than supply! . . . The 1971 plates cost $8.50 . . . and would make as delightful Mother's Day gifts as we can possibly imagine . . . Plate is about six inches in diameter . . . has holes in the back for a wire so it can be hung on a wall if desired . . . and the illustration . . . all in shades of blue . . . shows a mother cat with her kitten beside a bowl of milk . . . The whole thing is quite charming . . . If you're one of the many collectors of rare plates, do start collecting these beauties . . . Start a collection for your mother by presenting her with the 1971 Mother's Day plate on May 9 . . . Not only a lovely gift, but one whose monetary value will increase by leaps and bounds . . . Do go have a look at them at Montague Bridgman's this coming week! . . . Montague Bridgman Ltd., 811 Government St., 383-0821.

A multi-colored patchwork calico shirtdress has a flounce around the ankle-length skirt.

It's a great year for blouses . . .

There never has been such a spring as this for blouses . . . they seem to have taken on a life of their own and you'll be wearing them with suits . . . with skirts . . . with pants and pantsuits . . . and later on with shorts! . . . They were just unpacking some new blouses when we visited Wilson's early the other morning . . . These were Carnaby knit sleeveless shells in all sizes, and a good gamut of colors which include white, bone, navy and grey . . . Well-cut and classically simple, they're the perfect suit blouse . . . just right for when you want to slip off your jacket . . . Completely washable, of course . . . We saw a good selection of banlon shirts in white and navy . . . Long cuffed sleeves and a good length to wear with pants . . . Some stunning polyester knit tunic tops in abstract designs with front lacing . . . extra long, are with narrow belts . . . Exciting color combinations . . . There are printed nylon tops with turtle necks . . . a good selection of white blouses in polyester or pure silk . . . Smart shirts with mandarin or regular shirt collars that can be worn either tucked into a skirt or outside . . . Hot pink, grey, beige, white and navy . . . There's a stunning of a polyester lacey knit see-through shirt-style blouse in a printed design . . . Some smart long-sleeved blouses with ascot tie necks in white with navy, black or purple patterns . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Numerous Cruises to Alaska this summer . . .

You've all heard the saying "See Naples and Die" . . . Well, judging by what our friends who've been to Alaska tell us, the phrase could apply equally well to that exciting country north of us . . . where some of the most magnificent scenery this continent has to offer is to be found . . . And all this on our own doorstep, so to speak! . . . We've just been drooling over some color brochures put out by five different lines which have Alaskan cruises this summer, and given to us by Paulin's who are busily taking bookings for all of them . . . P & O has four sailing of the "Arcadia" . . . in May, June and July . . . Naturally there's a big demand for this one, so if you'd like to cruise aboard the big, beautiful Arcadia, better see Paulin's pronto! . . . Other Alaskan cruises are West Line's "West Star" or "Orpheus", Bergen Line's "Meteor", CPR's "Princess Patricia" and CNR's "Prince George" . . . All of these have sailings running from now on through September or October . . . All cover more or less the same territory . . . and all may be boarded in Vancouver or Victoria, returning to Victoria . . . Paulin's will be happy to give you information about rates and dates . . . and book you on one of these truly delightful cruises . . . See Alaska this summer . . . it's an adventure not to be missed . . . and one you'll probably want to repeat! . . . Paulin Travel, 1006 Government St., 382-9168.

Charles appointed Style Director of H of G . . .

This is the weekend that House of Glamour's Charles Locker returns home . . . after spending five weeks in England visiting leading beauty salons including Alexander's and Sassoon's . . . and from now on he'll have a new title because prior to his departure, Danny Hajnal appointed him Style Director to the House of Glamour . . . Charles is going to be busy training the entire H of G staff in the latest styles and techniques he's acquired during his British sojourn . . . and we can hardly wait to see what he comes back with! . . . If you want to be first with the latest in hairdos . . . House of Glamour is certainly the place to go . . . As we write this, still no definite word as to when H of G moves to its new location in the new Bank of Commerce Bldg., but it will be real soon . . . preparations for the move have been going on for some time now and everyone is very, very excited about the glamourous new look in store for H of G . . . Meanwhile let's all think about fundamentals . . . like getting our head in shape for these lovely new hair styles . . . Dairy Pops are ideal for kids . . .

We really shouldn't refer to the friendly fellow who drives our Northwestern Creamery truck as the "milkman" anymore . . . True enough he carries what we personally consider the freshest, most delicious milk in town . . . but he also has no end of other things . . . both edible and otherwise . . . which he delivers right to your door from what amounts to a supermarket on wheels! . . . This month of May he's featuring Dairy Pops . . . Now to be quite honest, we've never eaten one of these, but if our young nieces and nephews are to be believed, they're something better than mere yummy! . . . Sort of popsickle affairs in a plastic tube, they come in assorted fruit flavors . . . 36 to a bag which sells for just 99c . . . less than 3c each according to our shaky arithmetic . . . You keep these in the freezing compartment of your fridge ready to be handed out to the kids as the occasion demands . . . (Could be you'll be sneaking the odd one yourself) . . . they're so cool and refreshing . . . Just freeze and eat, we're told . . . Dairy Pops are handy, convenient, healthful treats for the kids . . . ideal for after-school snacks or whatever . . . so how about getting a bag from your Northwestern Home Salesman? (Yes, that's his proper title) . . . Banana Split is the Velvet Ice Cream feature flavor for May . . . and jolly good it is, too! Serve it often for quick, delectable desserts . . . Northwestern Creamery Ltd., 1015 Yates St., 383-7147.

Vatican Says Wedding Marches Belong in Theatres, Not Churches

By BARRY JAMES

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — No longer will Roman Catholic girls trip down the aisle on their wedding day to the tune of, "Here Comes The Bride" — that is, if the Vatican has its way.

Nor will they sail out proudly on the arms of their new husbands to the sonorities of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Nor will their exchanges of vows be followed by a soprano warbling Schubert's "Ave Marie."

The Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship has advised against the use of such music and its replacement by something more sacred.

"These pieces properly belong in a theatre, not a church," said a spokesman of the congregation, which controls Roman Catholic liturgy.

The congregation urges national conferences of bishops around the world to establish the music which should be sung or played at weddings and other functions. Their choice should favor a "full, active and communitary celebration of the faithful," the congregation said in its monthly bulletin "Notitiae."

The congregations' advice is not binding, and some bishops' conferences may decide to continue allowing "profance" music to grace their churches.

A spokesman for the Italian Conference of Bishops said: "Such music should have disappeared from churches years ago. We will take a decision at our next meeting about what to put in its place."

The congregation said it consulted nine musicians and four liturgy experts before issuing its views, but did not identify them. They considered the wedding march which Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy wrote for his incidental music to a "Midsummer Night's Dream"; Richard Wagner's wedding march from "Lohengrin" (the famous "Here Come The Bride"); the Largo which George Frederick Handel wrote for the opera "Xerxes," Gounod.

The congregation said the experts considered this music "not suitable for liturgical use . . . even if such musical and the "Ave Marias" of both Franz Schubert and Charles exerpts have with use and time obtained a certain sacred character, it is dutiful and necessary to favor melodies which encourage true communitary participation and are not merely for listening to . . ."

Msgr. Lavinio Virgili, a composer and expert on liturgical music, disagreed. He said of the unfavored wedding marches: "One can say they were not created for sacred purposes, but at least they are real music compared to some of the things heard in churches nowadays."

Local Ministers Stick to Custom

Roman Catholic brides in Victoria may still be married to the tunes of "Here Comes the Bride" and Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Father Joseph Jackson, chancellor of the diocese, feels that local custom must be considered. Catholic churches here will not forbid the traditional tunes in spite of advice against the use of profane music at weddings from the Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship.

Beale Thomas, director of music at Christ Church Cathedral, said that the Anglican Church does not forbid such music but tries to talk brides into more appropriate tunes like Jeremiah Clark's Trumpet Voluntary or Purcell's Trumpet Tune.

Thomas pointed out that the rector of each church is the ultimate authority where music is concerned.

"The rector decides what music will be played in his church," Thomas said.

Wedding Etiquette Experts Explain Who Pays for What

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thanks to accepted traditions there's no need for the bride's family to flip a coin with the bridegroom's family or draw straws to see who pays for the wedding expenses.

Etiquette experts years ago drew lines that still stand and it's not a 50-50 proposition, his family versus her family. It's still the father of the bride who pays the most.

Here's the way the paying goes:

● Bride pays for her trouseau, wedding ring for her bridegroom, wedding gift for her bridegroom, presents for her attendants, personal stationery and calling cards, her medical examination. (If she is financially independent, the bride may assume any other of her family's traditional fiscal responsibilities connected with the wedding.)

● Bride's family pays for wedding invitations and enclosure cards; announcements; engagement and wedding photographs; rental for church; fees for organist, soloist and sexton; aisle carpet; flowers for church; bridesmaids' bouquets and flower headdress; gratuity for traffic policeman; transportation for bridal party from house to church and to the reception; bridesmaids' luncheon; entire cost of reception.

● Bridegroom pays for bride's engagement and wedding rings; the marriage license; gift for the bride; his medical examination; bride's bouquet and going-away corsage; boutonnieres for men of wedding party; flowers for the two mothers; gloves, ascots or ties for the men in the wedding party; gifts for his ushers and best man; accommodations for his best man and ushers; fee for the clergyman; the wedding trip; flowers to the bride's mother after the wedding, accompanied by a warm thank-you note.

● Bridegroom's family pays for clothes they wear to the wedding, any travelling expenses and hotel bills, wedding gift for the bride and bridegroom, the dinner preceding or following the wedding rehearsal — unless the bride's family elects to stage same. Either family may pick up the tab for this event.

She Who Seeks to Know the Future Drinks Many Cups of Tea

By ANN DUNSMUIR

The wheel of fortune is missing some of its spokes as far as Victoria is concerned.

A week-long hunt by a fortune-telling addict turned up two teacup readers and a practitioner of I Ching. For someone raised in downtown Toronto where the gypsies wintered, the situation here amounts to a psychic famine.

The quantity may be small but the quality seems high.

The first teacup reader looked in the cup and said, "I see an American eagle flapping all around you."

She said that the present was a waiting period but that a change would come in the fall.

"You are trying to make a decision about signing a paper," she said. "Sign it and push it away."

Her last prediction was depressing. She saw a move to the north and east, "back to a place you call home."

Back to six-foot snow drifts and all those relatives!

People who give predictions like that should provide something stronger than tea.

Psychic Gift

The reader said that she became aware of her psychic gift when she was a child but had only read professionally for 10 years. She refuses to read books about the occult. She is afraid they might influence her interpretations and she could "lose the gift."

While the first reader had nothing to say about character, sticking to present events and the future, the second gave what amounted to character analysis based on astrology.

Her readings take half an hour or more, and she talks a blue streak. She has little to say about the future but can certainly judge character.

"If you don't like someone it is written all over your face," she said. "You can't hide it." And, "Your big mouth is going to get you into trouble."

The words sounded terribly familiar. Parents and teachers through the years said the same to little effect: "I know you don't like Aunt Mae but nice little girls don't scowl."

The reader is probably a genuine clairvoyant but can't always control it to predict the future on demand. She has had many warning dreams and visions that have come true.

I Ching

Finding a practitioner of I Ching would have been hopeless without the help of a leading member of Victoria's Chinese community. The Meu Jook was not happy about casting for a stranger, but felt he couldn't refuse someone with such excellent references.

I Ching does not attempt to predict the course of the future. It is an ancient method of petitioning the gods for the anser to one specific question.

It involves an impressive ritual with incense, candles and many small cups of tea that represent the judge, petitioner and guards of a court.

The faithful believe the future disguised as a few damp leaves lies at the bottom of the cup.

After invoking the gods the Meu Jook casts more than 100 small wands. Their relative positions indicate one of the sections in the Book of Changes. This reference is interpreted to answer the question asked by the petitioner.

Asked whether I should sign a certain paper the wands indicated section 22 in the book. It tells of a warrior battling through a great forest who wins in his endeavor through help from the gods.

This was interpreted as a signal to go ahead and sign the paper.

No Norman

The teacup and I Ching readings seemed to exhaust Victoria's psychic resources. There appeared to be no one like Norman, a Toronto seer, who advised generations of worried businessmen and frantic students.

Using the Tarot he predicted that I would move "as far west as you can go and still be in Canada." At that time B.C. was nothing but a political joke as far as I was concerned.

He also eyed my thumb and said, "That is a very dominant thumb. You are obviously the boss in your marriage." Protesting did no good, "Thumbs don't lie," said Norman.

The only possible way to settle the argument was to produce the other, all conquering, dominant thumb.

My husband, feeling very foolish, entered the cubicle and said, "My wife wants you to look at my thumb."

Norman was a good sport.

He came out, gave a little bow and said, "My apologies Madame."

Occult Science

A newspaper advertisement proved Victoria wasn't as barren as it had seemed. The advertiser specializes in cartomancy and palmistry by appointment. She hates the term fortune teller, preferring to be called a practitioner of occult sciences.

She advertises only when she feels the powers are strong. She explained that the readings are very tiring and if she worked every day she would soon "be completely drained" of her powers.

She looked at my palm and said, "you are closely connected with medicine in some way."

She was speaking to the one black sheep in a line of physicians that goes back to a barber surgeon present at the conquest of Wales.

Like the first teacup reader she described the present situation as a stalemate, a time of waiting. She also predicted a move in the fall but was kind enough to omit the northern location.

In cartomancy she prefers to use the Tarot cards explaining that she works better with them than an ordinary deck.

The Tarot deck consists of 78 cards containing the Minor and Major Arcana. The 56 cards of the Minor Arcana are in four suits, the ancestors of modern playing cards.

Magical Symbols

The Major Arcana is supposed to derive from a book of magical symbols belonging to Hermes Tismegistus, a councillor at the court of Osiris, King of Egypt.

The oldest known Tarot deck in existence today dates from 1390 AD. References to the Tarot cards date back long before the fourteenth century, and they are believed to be associated with the Kabbalistic magic of the ancient Hebrews.

When the cards were laid out cups, wands and pentacles predominated — all good omens. They predicted a happy and financially successful life — somewhere else.

Another Tarot reader agreed to a consultation.

She laid out 12 cards from the deck of 78. Six had turned up at the first reading in identical positions. The odds against this happening on two successive readings are more than 65 million to one.

Her interpretation was much the same as the first. A happy and successful life after a move far away and to the north.

It must be fate — why else would we own a Siberian Husky?

'People Who Are Desperate . . . Are Poor Fighters'

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — In 1964, Joe and Doreen Kronick began working to organize parents and professionals to get help for a group of children for whom there had been little help.

When you do that, Mrs. Kronick says, you must first tell people about the children, make them understand, sympathize and then help. It takes a tremendous effort.

"The association took over my life for a few years."

In the Kronicks' case, the work began after they had looked for services for a son with a learning disability.

"We started the association after most of what I was seeking for myself was over. People who are desperate for things for themselves are poor fighters. If you really want to bargain for something, don't take along someone who needs it."

In the early 1960s there were few services for children with learning disabilities. They were often mis-diagnosed as deaf, retarded, emotionally disturbed, or as bad kids.

Theirs is a complicated problem involving damage to the nervous system that shows in a variety of learning difficulties. The disability interferes with the victim's perception, his ability to make sense out of things.

The Canadian Association for Children with Learning Disabilities began in 1964. It now has 54 branches, with two more forming, and is in every province but Prince Edward Island.

"For several years I cooked meals with the telephone receiver dangling from my ear," Mrs. Kronick recalls. "It reached the point where there weren't enough hours in the day."

Kronick, who is a summer camp director, formed Integra Foundation to direct services to the children. It now is funded by the province. Mrs. Kronick spent one summer directing an Integra camp now run by professionals.

Then she took three years off and used the time to write two books about learning disabilities and one on integrating the handicapped into non-specialized camps.

She is president of the association now, but she says she picked up some other threads during those three years and began going to concerts and travelling again.

She says there are some tricks to winning the public and professional support necessary to make such an association work.

"It's okay to be angry parents for a while, but if you keep it up, you may turn the professionals hostile."

In Edmonton, professionals donated time to talk to student teachers about the problem. Members there spoke to medical association lunch conferences.

"You try to get five minutes in schools and try to get the staff interested so you are invited back for a longer time.

"We tried to teach every parent to become a one-person pressure group to get services. If a child needs special classes, we tell them to call the principal and tell him you're going to call special education and ask for a class. This is an important step because you can't antagonize the principal.

"You talk to special education and talk to your elected trustee. Ask him if you can make a presentation to the school board. We have a brief ready and slides and films to show."

Mrs. Kronick says the association urges more-extreme measures if they become necessary.

"People are sometimes afraid that if they do something the child will suffer, that educators will take it out on the child, but we find that never happens."

Group efforts at all levels go on at the same time. The association now is working with the Canadian Commission on Emotional and Learnisg Disorders, trying to get their recommendations implemented.

Mrs. Kronick says the work is "never roses all the way." There are still services she feels are lacking or are inadequate.

Some parents work hard for an association and get help, but not for their own child. Why has she done it?

"Somehow injustices don't sit well with me, and it's a tradition too. I like to think it's a Jewish tradition. In our family, it's our thing, if you can help make people's lives a little more livable."

Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Risely celebrated their golden wedding recently with a reception in the roof lounge of the Villa Royal.

Members of the family and 100 guests were present for the occasion. A toast to the anniversary couple was given by a long-time friend James Stephen.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Risely gave a dinner for family at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Later in the evening the couple were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Little.

Risely was ticket agent for the CNR for many years in Edmonton, Winnipeg and Victoria. The couple were married April 7, 1921 in Edmonton.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Learned Lesson

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For five years, Tex (not his real name) accepted expensive gifts, hundreds of meals and a lot of money from me. Also my love and devotion, which he said he wanted for the rest of his life. He said marriage was out because he had been hurt by a former wife. I accepted that.

Suddenly Tex turned up married! He explained that several months prior he had gone to Las Vegas with a woman and he suffered heavy gambling losses, which his female travelling companion made good. Soon she began pressuring him for repayment. Having no funds, he offered her marriage and she jumped at the chance.

Since he was heavily indebted to me, too, I demanded payment, whereupon he went to the county attorney and informed him that since I was a consenting female over 21 that he (Tex) did not "twist my arm," and was not indebted to me for anything. Thus he cleared himself.

For me to have been publicly condemned as an immoral person by one who had taken everything a woman could give was indeed a humiliating experience. I am hot asking for advice or consolation. Abby. I have learned my lesson. I just want to pass it on to other women who may find themselves in the same situation. Sign me . . . Used.

DEAR USED: There are two lessons to be learned here. A gift is a gift, and a loan without an "IOU" may as well be a gift. Also, she who sleepeth with dogs shall get up with fleas.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you've heard everything by now, so this won't shock you. I am a 23-year-old woman. Last year I took all my savings and had an augmenting mammaplasty — a breast impvant of silicone.

I was sick of being flat-chested and wearing padded bras. I have no regrets, as I now feel so much more womanly and self assured. I see nothing wrong with people having their noses bobbed, or wrinkles removed if that's what makes them happy. Same for silicone breasts.

I am now engaged to a wonderful man. I fear that he would feel gypped if he knew my breasts were filled with silicone. He is sure to find out because they are very hard and some scars remain.

Is there any way to have the scars removed? Or should I swallow my pride and confess before we're married?—Marriage or Bust

DEAR MARRIAGE: Confess. And get the opinions of several top notch plastic surgeons with regard to the scars. Some scars can be removed.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I have been planning our wedding for several months. We have set the date and arranged for the church and even set up our vacations from work. Everything was perfect until my mother and sister announced that they wanted it to be a double wedding!

Up until now, my sister and her boy friend never even talked about marriage. I'm sure my mother is the real force behind this as she likes to outdo everybody and this is her chance to put on a big show.

My fiance and I want our wedding to be "our" day, and we don't want to share it with another couple. My dad plus my sister's fiance and his family are all for the double wedding, so we are outnumbered.

I had planned on paying for my own wedding, and Dad was paying for the reception; now Dad says he will pay for double wedding with my sister.

Originally my sister was going to be my maid of honor. Now she wants to be a co-bride. Whose side are you on, Abby?—Blue Bride

DEAR BRIDE: Yours! (I am not opposed to double weddings. I had one!) But such double-headers are only for those who want them.

ASPARAGUS WITH WATER CHESTNUTS . . . quick-fry method

New Ideas for Asparagus

The unique spring vegetable, fresh asparagus, is arriving in local markets now. Here's an easy way to serve it to family or friends.

ASPARAGUS WITH WATER CHESTNUTS

2 pounds fresh asparagus
¼ cup salad oil
1 clove garlic, mashed
1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, sliced
Freshly ground black pepper

Wash asparagus, snap each stalk and discard tough end. Cut each stalk diagonally into 1-inch pieces. In large skillet, heat ¼ cup of oil with garlic. Remove garlic and add asparagus slices; cover. Shake pan every so often. Asparagus will be tender in 5-7 minutes. Add sliced water chestnuts. Toss lightly and serve immediately. Makes six servings.

For a variation place some cooked asparagus stalks on toast and top with cream sauce to which you've added chopped sauteed mushrooms and sliced stuffed olives.

Swiss cheese combines well with asparagus.

Cook asparagus whole, until barely tender. Arrange on baking dish. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and grated Swiss cheese. Drizzle with butter and brown quickly under the broiler.

One of the quickest ways to cook asparagus is to put two cups of water, ½ teaspoon of salt in an electric frypan or regular skillet. Bring the water to a boil. Fill the bottom with a layer of asparagus. Put the lid on and cook over medium heat.

Check for tenderness in about four minutes, but it may take two or three more minutes. Most western asparagus will be tender crisp with green color and delicious flavor within five minutes. There is no set time because each batch of asparagus will vary.

FRESH ASPARAGUS CANTONESE

2 tablespoons oil
1 clove garlic, pressed
2 pounds fresh asparagus, sliced on diagonal
Salt and pepper

In frying pan heat oil almost to the smoking point. Stir in garlic. Then add asparagus. Cover. Then, like popping corn, shake pan rather vigorously for 3 to 5 minutes. Asparagus should be tender crisp. Season with salt and pepper.

today's recipes

ASPARAGUS VINAIGRETTE

3 tabelspoons sweet pickle relish
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup vinegar
¾ cup salad oil
Pepper to taste
1 bunch fresh asparagus, cooked and chilled
Pimiento

Combine all ingredients except asparagus. Shake or beat dressing until blended. Pour over asparagus in shallow dish and marinate in refrigerator for several hours. Garnish with bits of pimiento.

ASPARAGUS-HAM ROLL UPS

1 pound asparagus
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon bottled steak sauce
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
4 slices cooked ham
4 slices processed cheese
4 frankfurter buns
Foil

Cook asparagus; drain and chill. Combine mayonnaise, steak sauce, and instant onion. Arrange cheese on ham slices; spread with mayonnaise mixture. Top with a few spears of asparagus. Roll up like a jelly roll. Place in frankfurter buns. Wrap in foil. Bake in 375 degrees F. oven for 10-15 minutes until warm. Serve.

Brigadier Gerard Captures Guineas

NEWMARKET, England (CP) — Brigadier Gerard, an 11-to-2 shot, galloped up the final hill at Newmarket today to win the Two Thousand Guineas horse race by three lengths from favorite Mill Reef.

My Swallow was third, three-quarters of a length behind Mill Reef.

Mrs. Charles Engelhard's Minsky, full brother of the fabulous Canadian-bred Nijinsky, ran a disappointing race and finished fourth. British champion jockey Lester Pigott had turned down an offer to ride My Swallow to take a chance on Minsky.

Pair by Spring Helps Oil Kings

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — Two goals by Dan Spring enabled Edmonton Oil Kings to tie Flin Flon Bombers 5-5 Friday night in the third game of the Western Canada Hockey League final.

Both clubs have one victory to their credit in the best-of-seven series, with the fourth game scheduled here Sunday.

Dave Hryskow, Tom Baldon and Darcy Rota scored single goals for the Oil Kings while Flin Flon got goals from Dave Shardlow, Al Hillier, Chuck Arnason, Gene Carr and Jim Collins.

GOVERNMENT'S OFFERING . . . . . . 'CHICKEN FEED'

Cricket Struggling for Funds

LONDON (CP) — A politico-sports event, or non-event, of the summer of 1970 is still bouncing around the cricket pitches of England.

It was the much-disputed Test that was to have been played here with the all-white South African team but which was called off because of uproar raised by haters of the color bar in sports.

An impromptu organization called Stop the Seventy Tour threatened massive anti-apartheid demonstrations at games and mustered so much support that the British cricket rulers finally called off the tour under some pressure from the Labor government of the day.

Because of the government's interference, cricket has been looking for reimbursement from the treasury.

Most of the clubs, even in the first class county game, are perennially broke or close to it. They look forward to each year's Test to reinforce their dwindling normal gate receipts. The Test take is spread around among the teams.

But last summer's fiasco reversed this. Clubs that would have had the South Africans playing in their grounds actually were out of pocket after laying out money for security precautions.

Cricketing officials asked the government to put up £200,000 as compensation. The Conservatives recently acknowledged that the government was morally bound to contribute something, but its proffered £75,000 has produced much grumbling.

"Chicken feed, peanuts, cheese-paring," were some of the comments of Wilf Wooler, secretary-treasurer of Glamorgan, which topped the big league in 1969 but lost about £10,000 last summer.

Some of the other clubs are as badly, or worse, off.

Nottinghamshire, which has one of the greatest attractions of cricket in Gary Sobers, the Barbados wizard who is perhaps the world's best all-arounder, says it went £10,000 in the red last season.

Notts says it will have to raise money by selling its Trent Bridge grounds, scene of test matches for more than 100 years, unless a current drive to double the club membership of 5,500 pays off.

Another outfit that claims to be in the £10,000 loss bracket for 1970 is Leicestershire. Secretary Mike Turner says the Leicester share of the treasury payout won't cover the loss by half and the club is "disappointed."

The ruling Cricket Council —which won't share in the money—says it falls well short of expectations though the council adds it appreciates the government's difficulties.

Hubert May Be Green But He Has Ambition

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Golf rookie Hubert Green has a new ambition, and he may be in position to fulfil it.

"When I first came out on the tour," the 26-year-old Green said, "I just hoped to be able to make a living the first year, maybe get into the top 60."

"But then Buddy Allin, another rookie, won a tournament. So I thought that if he can do it, so can I. So now I'd like to win a tournament or two."

Green vaulted into a share of the first-place lead in the $125,000 Greater New Orleans open golf tournament Friday when he cut three strokes off par with a 69.

That put him at 137 and a tie with the 40-year-old defending champion, Miller Barber, who had a 67, the day's best round. Both he and Green played before a high wind blew up on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

The wind helped send scores much higher.

HOLD SLIM MARGIN

Green and Barber held a one-stroke margin over Kermit Zarley and Jacky Cupit, tied at 138.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, 73, John Lotz, 69, and Larry Ziegler and George Johnson, each 71, followed at 139.

Lou Graham, tied for the first-round lead at 65, went 10 strokes higher. He still was tied for the lead until he went to the final hole, where he went three over par to drop into a big group at 140, three strokes off the pace.

Among those making the cut were Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver with a 69 Friday for a 141 total and Ben Kern of Toronto with a 71 for 143.

PEACE WORKER QUESTIONED

SEATTLE (AP) — Leslie Bacon, the 19-year-old peace worker arrested in connection with the March 1 bombing of the United States Capitol, resumes testimony before a federal grand jury today. Her lawyers said earlier questions had no connection with the bombing.

She answered 45 to 60 questions in a 2½-hour session Friday afternoon and "if there is any connection between the bombing of the Capitol and this proceeding, I've been unable to perceive it," said Jeffery Steinborn of Seattle, one of her lawyers.

On each question put to her by the grand jury Miss Bacon came out of the courtroom to confer with Steinborn and Michael Fayad, her Washington, D.C., lawyer.

She would repeat the question, they said, tell them her answer, be advised and return to the grand jury to give her reply.

"As far as I'm concerned," Steinborn said, "she gave a straight answer" to each question.

Fayad said they couldn't discuss the questions, until they checked possible legal technicalities.

PROMISE RELEASE

The government promised Miss Bacon would be released from the current arrest warrant, naming her as a material witness, when the questions were finished, her lawyers said.

But another arrest warrant could be issued resulting from answers to the grand jury, Fayad said. Should that happen, the government promised that the round of legal proceedings through which she was brought to Seattle Thursday after being arrested Wednesday in Washington, D.C., would start anew, he said. The warrant and $100,000 bail were upheld by two federal courts in the District of Columbia.

Reports here indicate the government will try to prove the bombing was planned in Seattle in February.

The government has not named Miss Bacon a defendant and so far has not explained why the Seattle grand jury is looking into the bombing.

Holdup Shooting 'Justified'

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Friday that the death of suspected holdup man Earl Beamish, shot by Burnaby RCMP officer, was justifiable homicide.

The jury commended Constable M. E. Riou for his courage and ruled he acted to protect his own life.

Beamish, 27, died early Monday after an exchange of gunfire with Riou following an armed holdup in which nearly $1,000 was taken from a Burnaby taxi company office.

A second man was arrested and later charged with two counts of armed robbery and the attempted murder of Riou. The money was recovered.

Bob Dudley Gets Jobs For the Unemployable

As a taxpayer and property-owner Bob Dudley would like to see various levels of government do more for employable welfare recipients than just give them a cheque.

As Vancouver Island's only fulltime rehabilitative psychologist he believes the means exist to find meaningful jobs for people who now are unemployed because they lack education and experience or because they simply dont' know what they want to do.

Dudley's work as a rehabilitative psychologist consists mainly of placing people who normally would be considered unemployable. He does what is called a vocational assessment, which includes batteries of tests to measure intelligence and pinpoint aptitudes and interests.

The assessment also takes into consideration such factors as education, previous experience and medical history.

In a given year he might do vocational assessments on 250 people, between 80 and 100 of them mentally or physically handicapped. For placement purposes he has on file descriptions of 30,000 jobs.

Despite the current, high unemployment Dudley has been able to place three or four out of 10 handicapped clients.

He believes, therefore, that an even higher number of unemployed people would find jobs if they had access to the kind of vocational counselling available at his office.

The money to get people off welfare and on to a federally-subsidized vocational program is there. But municipalities, burdened with heavy welfare budgets, have not taken advantage of it.

The federal government will pay tuition fees for anyone who decides to seek training at a vocational or technical school, Dudley said, and students with dependents can receive a living allowance of up to $114 a week — considerably above current welfare rates — for two years.

At the suggestion of a city alderman, Dudley last November submitted to city council a brief which proposed a program to move people on social assistance into vocational programs.

The plan hasn't been adopted or even discussed, but Dudley is still hopeful it can be put to some use.

"I made this primarily because as a taxpayer I'm getting a little tired of more and more money being spent just to keep people inadequate. I want some money spent to move people into some sort of meaningful activity," Dudley said.

"Sure, it's going to cost money to train people and it's going to cost money to do creative job searches. But I'm for spending large sums of money in the short run to make these people productive in the end run."

He Wants Money Spent 'to Move' Not Waste People

Dudley doesn't accept the argument that current high unemployment is mainly due to economic conditions, because it hasn't stopped him from finding jobs for handicapped and non-handicapped persons alike.

During 10 years in Victoria, Dudley spent 4½ years as executive director of the Mental Health Association, another 4½ years as director of personnel and rehabilitation for Goodwill Enterprises, and just over a year in private practice.

He believes people on welfare would prefer to be working, but social workers, overburdened with heavy caseloads, can't possibly do the kind of intensive testing that's necessary to draw up a vocational program, or find meaningful work for each individual.

"Only once in the last five or six years have I met anybody who wants to be on social assistance. I think we spend too much time worrying about the guy who's freeloading, because he's a pretty insignificant statistic in the over-all picture.

"I don't just want them to hand out cheques, I want them to give some hope to the people who are getting the cheques."

One criticism Dudley has of schools is that they don't allow students to discover where their talents and interests lie. He says vocational counselling is "pretty well non-existent".

"One of the reasons people are out of work is that they don't know where to look and they don't know what they're looking for."

Recently he tested 10 young people (average age 25) who were referred to him by Manpower because they were considered especially difficult to place.

Their job preferences in order of priority included social services (helping others), the arts and the outdoors, all areas with few chances of eventual employment or government support, Dudley said.

He also found the young people were likely to have a negative attitude toward activities in the clerical, computational and persuasive fields, "and that includes damn near every business activity."

"They have little time for anyone who sells anything, and for that reason they have little time for anyone who sells ideas, like teachers.

"I thought many of them had dropped out before they achieved their academic potential, and I thought this said something for the relevancy of lack of relevancy in the education we provide.

OUR ANCIENT THRONE

Though a growing number of years now separate us from the event, nevertheless, by thinking back, most of us can recall many interesting articles about the Royal Family and the coming Coronation, which appeared in our newspapers and magazines in the early part of 1953.

Some of these dealt with the every-day life of the Queen and some with her official duties and responsibilities. Others described various aspects of the Coronation — the Procession, the Participants, the Pageantry, the Regalia, the Symbolism, the Abbey and the Ceremony.

Yet, informative as these articles were, they overlooked the most interesting and vital point. They told us nothing of the origin of this ancient Throne or why, in an age of falling Thrones, it remains steadfast.

Most people know that our Royal Family and Throne have existed since Saxon times. Some, too, are aware that the Royal Family can trace its descent far beyond Saxon times to the Kings of Ancient Britain, and that the Throne, as an institution, has been in existence since Brutus, the Trojan, founded the Kingdom about 1100 B.C.

What should be more widely known, however, is that the Royal House of Ancient and Saxon Britain was the stock into which was grafted something of far greater importance, the Royal Family of ancient Israel called the House of David.

Genealogical records kept through the ages show the descent of our Royal Family through the Kings of Scotland from the ancient Kings of Ireland. Further, these records, as well as the most ancient Irish ones, show the descent of the Irish Kings from Tea Tephi (Tamar), eldest daughter and heir of Zedekiah, last King of Judah. As the Royal Family of the Kingdom of Judah was the House of David, it follows that in its descent from Tea Tephi, our Royal House is the continuation of the House of David, and, consequently, our ancient Throne is the Throne of David.

Such a continuity of David's House and Throne is absolutely essential to the Word and Honor of God. This is clearly shown in that ancient challenge: "Ought ye not to know that the Lord God of Israel gave the kingdom over Israel to David for ever, even to him and to his sons by a covenant of salt?" (2 Chr. 13:5).

In ancient times a covenant or promise, made sacred by the sharing of salt, was irrevocable, and for any man of honor to break it was unthinkable. Thus the Honor of God is irrevocably bound to the continuance of the House and Throne of David.

We should also remember that it was God Himself who chose David to be King of Israel, and that He gave him this UNCONDITIONAL promise: "Thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever." (2 Sam. 7:16).

About 500 years later this promise was repeated through the prophet Jeremiah: "Thus saith the Lord: David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel . . . If ye can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, and that there should not be day and night in their season; then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne." (Jer. 33:17-21).

From the words of this promise there is no escape. We are still having day and night in their regular order. Consequently, somewhere the Throne of David must still be in existence today, and a descendant of King David must still be reigning from it over the people and nation Israel.

In the 89th Psalm this promise is again made a matter of God's Honor: "I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations . . . My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me." (Vs. 3, 4, 34-36).

To fulfill the requirements of this Covenant, AND OF GOD'S OATH, both the House and Throne of David must still be in existence today and, further, they must have had a continuous existence since David's time, a matter of 3,000 years. This requirement, in itself, identifies the House and Throne of David, for, of the Royal Houses and Thrones now in existence, ours ALONE is old enough to qualify.

When this is considered in the light of the fact the genealogies of our Royal House trace its descent from King David of Israel, and when to this we add the fact that its heraldic emblems declare its Davidic origin, the matter is beyond question. Our ancient Throne IS the Throne of David.

But even the recognition of this great Truth does not reveal the full status of our ancient Throne, for the Throne from which David ruled over Israel was not his but the Lord's, Who said when He formed Israel into a nation: "Ye shall be unto ME a kingdom." Thus Israel was God's own kingdom-nation; He was its King and therefore the Throne was His.

Recognition of this was expressed by the Queen of Sheba when she saluted King Solomon: "Blessed be the Lord thy God, which delighted in thee to set thee on His throne." (2 Chr. 9:8).

David himself recognized this relationship for, speaking of God, he said "He hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel." (1 Chr. 28:5). Then in 1 Chr. 29:23 we read: "Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as King instead of David his father." Note the wording: "ON THE THRONE OF THE LORD."

Further, it is definitely stated in the prophetic Scriptures that this Throne is to be occupied eventually, by the Son of God, who would come into the world through the medium of a virgin of the Royal House of David. Thus He would be both the Son of God and the son (descendant) of David.

This brings us face to face with a tremendous and awe-inspiring fact for, as it is certain that our British Throne is the continuation of the Throne of David, it follows that it is, therefore, the Throne of the Lord, from which Jesus, the Christ, will yet reign over Israel and the world.

This was clearly stated by the angel Gabriel when he said to Mary: "Thou shalt . . . bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus . . . And the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob (Israel) for ever." (Luke 1:30-33).

How great then is the blindness and the folly of those who would end our connection with the Mother Country and break our affegians to the Throne. Not only are they opposing the declared Will and Purpose of God, but they are inciting rebellion against the Throne which He Himself established over Israel, and from which His Son, Jesus, our Saviour, is to reign.

A Bag of Grain or Democracy If You Were Starving to Death?

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

For the majority of the people in the world today the great dominating problem is not a cold war in danger of becoming a hot one: for them the great dominating problem is a cold, empty feeling in the pit of the stomach which seems unlikely ever to become a warm, full feeling.

Democracy's greatest enemy today is not communism: it is the acute, nagging, dehumanizing poverty of so many of the world's people. Hunger is the stimulant of the revolutionary discontent which can bring total war in our time. If food does not cross frontiers, bullets will. The external aid programs of our government can be, in the long run, far more significant for our national security than all that can be done by the department of national defence.

What kind of political decisions would you make if you and your family and most of the people in your community suffered from chronic malnutrition?

As Bertrand Russell once asked, "If one man offers you democracy and another offers you a bag of grain, at what stage of starvation will you prefer the grain to the vote?"

If you and your children were destined to go through life with that cold, empty feeling always in the pit of the stomach, would you see any real significant difference between the democratic style of life and the communist or other totalitarian style?

And here our calculating self-interest is not enough — although political realities and psychological insight demand that we do not sentimentally dismiss the power of such motivation. Compassion — literally, "suffering with" — must always be a dimension of our nation's foreign policy.

There is, of course, already a good deal of compassion in our foreign policy, but it must be sharpened and widened. And to do that we may have to sacrifice a little of our national affluence; we may have to take a few raisins out of our fruitcake in order to show constructive compassion.

In these times a nation's foreign policy without a dominant strain of compassion in it is both evil and foolish. And the individual citizen must not try to get himself off the hook by assuming that the matter is just too big and too complicated for him to worry about, unless he has a position of great influence.

He can and must make known his support of his political leaders as they seek to express compassion in their policies and programs. And he can bring pressure to bear on his leaders when he thinks their policies and programs are inadequately compassionate: politicians are highly sensitive to bugging from the electorate on significant issues.

And we can all exercise some constructive compassion through our support of the agencies of world-wide compassion, the mission programs of the churches and the work of the great international charitable organizations such as Oxfam and CARE.

Christians can find their guideline here in that awkward passage in Matthew's 25th chapter which is known as the Parable of the Last Judgment and sometimes as the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats.

The Lord is pictured sitting in final judgment on all men, sorting them out as "sheep" and "goats," as "the blessed" and "the damned." He says this, among other things, to the blessed: "For when I was hungry you gave me food." And he says this to those whom he damns: "For when I was hungry, you gave me nothing to eat."

"For when I was hungry, you gave me nothing to eat." Run that through your conscience!

Priest Blames Church For Aiding Alcoholism

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — A mod, outspoken Roman Catholic priest with a taste for wide, colorful ties and flared trousers is spurring his own campaign to help what he terms the alarming number of alcoholics in this northern New Brunswick community.

And Rev. Achille Maillet, member of the Montreal-based White Fathers of Africa, is quick to blame the church for helping to create the problem.

The priest, currently an employee of the provincial health department, says the north shore drinking problem is the worst in the province.

Flamboyantly dressed, the 46-year-old cleric looks like a one-man mod squad as he works day and night to help those with alcoholic or drug problems.

"Religion has played a part in creating an emotionally disturbed society," he says. "A bad understanding of religion has done this. In the past the church was narrow-minded . . . it is more open today. This is good but it came too late.

"It will take a century to cure the neuroticism of the people. People endure mental suffering needlessly and they like it that way. The church . . . in the past preached that human qualities and human nature are bad — the damnation of happiness."

Father Maillet said one of Bathurst's largest industries has declared that 45 employees, representing about five per cent of the work force, miss work daily because of alcoholism.

A doctor in nearby Dalhousie told him that in a similar industry there, 60 employees fail to report to work daily because of drinking.

The priest readily quotes American statistics showing that for every dollar spent on liquor, seven dollars are lost by industry through loss of production.

Father Maillet said the roots of the drinking problem are in the sociology, history, and religion of the area.

His prime objective now is to establish a centre for alcoholics in Bathurst. "We need a centre where men and women can get advice and help. The centre I propose will not be a hospital, medical centre, disintoxication centre nor a recreation centre. It will be a home where alcoholics will be received and counselled and directed to centres specializing in treatment of alcoholism."

BINGO TO HELP

The planned home will cost about $30,000 and an organization formed by Father Maillet, the Council on Alcoholism and Toxicomania, Inc. Conato, is heading the drive to establish it.

A major portion of the home's cost will be financed through bingo proceeds. More will come from a lottery, said the priest, with the remainder backed by private donations.

The friend of alcoholics has refused offers of help from temperance groups because "I'm not against social drinking."

"But it is heart-breaking to see people useful to society on the road to alcoholism."

Father Maillet has an office in the health building but does most of his work from the rectory of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in East Bathurst, where he lives.

BESIEGED WITH CALLS

The phone rings day and night with calls from persons concerned with alcoholics — wives, children, neighbors and alcoholics themselves.

The thoughtful priest doesn't mince words in his work and this gets him into difficulties. Such was the case when he appeared on a local open-line radio program and declared 80 per cent of the students at a local high school used drugs. His statement was immediately denied by the school authorities and police but he maintains his figures are accurate.

The priest has active support in his work. "Father Maillet is doing a tremendous job in alcoholic counselling and rehabilitation," said the administrator of the city health department, J. A. Friolet. "I'm very pleased with his performance. He works under terrific pressure. I'll do anything I can to help him."

Oregon Choir Slated

The United Medical Laboratories Choir of Portland will present a program of contemporary, classicial and sacred music Friday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m., in Blanshard School, 950 King Street.

Directed by Richard Lange, the choir has given many concerts throughout the northwest in the past year.

By PETER McNELLY

"Hare Krsna Hare Krsna Krsna Krsna Hare Hare Hare Rama Hare Rama Rama Rama Hare Hare."

Say it over and over and you are praying, invoking the names of Hindu gods Krishná and Rama. Hindus call the prayer "mantra."

Most days a handful of young people dressed in ancient Hindu garb chant this mantra downtown. They are friendly and more than willing to talk with anyone who stops.

It may be unfair to call these people religious fanatics, for the term has a negative sense which doesn't suit their gentleness. But in the simplest sense of the word they are fanatics who, like the so-called Jesus Freaks, take their god to the streets.

The Hare Krishna people are members of the International Society for Kirshna Consciousness, formed in 1966 by A. C. Bhaktivedanta who brought Krishna's message to the west from India.

Four months ago, the society established a Victoria branch—called an Iskcon centre—at 2407 Fernwood. A free "yoga lunch" is served daily at 1:30 p.m. and on Sundays at 4:00 p.m.

Evenings at 6:30 p.m., mantra meditation classes and spiritual readings are held.

What's it all about ?

"We are after a knowledge that can manifest a happy person, and the culture of material knowledge can only agitate the already perplexed living being unless he can differentiate between his true identity, which is spirit, and his false material identity," says one Hare Krishna handbill.

Looking for happiness in a cluttered, worried world

Stripped of jargon, that quote simply means that the material world—ricks, sky, seagulls, stop signs, etc.—is not all there is. Reality is spirit and spirit is Krishna and Krishna is in everything.

One follower said in an interview this week that Krishna is another word for God. The reason for the "Hare Krishna" chant is a belief that by repeating the name of God, one gradually experiences him.

In eastern religions, knowledge often means experience as well as thought. Mystical exercise like meditation and chanting aim toward the experience of God. Chants, then, are tools to know God. That's not far different from the Christian attidude toward prayer.

Who is Krishna? His origins are not fully understood. But it is fair to say that he is the eighth incarnation of the great Hindu god Vishnu.

Rama is part of the seventh incarnation of Vishnu. Rama means the "spirit of the universe." One source indicates that Krishna includes Rama's spirit.

The Hare Krishna people explain that they do not worship God as western religion means it. Western God often is said to be a being apart from man and nature. Worship pays him due respect.

The Krishna chant aims to bring the follower into God's consciousness 24 hours a day.

During the interview, the follower said he had been a student in New Mexico studying English. College lost interest for him and he drifted to California where he met other Krishna people.

Like so many converts, he claims his new religion has brought peace and stability into his life. No more worries about money, success and fame.

He said the group doesn't knock material things, but doesn't worry about getting too many of them, either. Men must not exploit the world's resources for themselves, he said.

Everyone should be fed, clothed and housed. In the United States, the society has tried to see President Nixon to tell him to stop war and love Krishna. But so far, he said, efforts have not succeeded.

No plans exist yet to try to see Premier Bennett. But that, to be sure, would be some interview.

The young man, who described himself as a "citizen of the world," said he is in Canada on a visitor's visa, but will move from Victoria when he feels a need to go.

Victorians and the police here, he said, have not harassed the group. Vancouver police charged the society with violating an anti-noise bylaw.

"Some people are put off by our chanting, and if you don't understand it, it can sound a little strange. But they don't mind when they talk to us and learn about Krishna consciousness."

He explained that the movement is non-sectarian. Getting to know God goes beyond specific beliefs. A Krishna follower comes to know God in his own way. He doesn't have to join the society, the young man explained.

The bible of Krishna consciousness is the famous Bhagavad-gita. Its main message is freeing the body from bondage of lust for material things.

Krishna delivered the Bhagavad-gita to the world 5,000 years ago. The followers explained that Krishna later appeared in the world as the Bhudda. Great prophets like Jesus were Krishna's "sons."

He said the society is tolerant of all religions insofar as they try to know God. But he said the Jesus Freaks have hassled the Krishna people for being incorrect.

This is something no Krishna followed would ever do, he said.

The society's emphasis on the importance of saying God's name is not foreign to the subtle beginning of the Gospel according to St. John: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

The sense is there, but the meaning is elusive. All these words and incarnations become confusing.

Suppose God is a vast silence? Or, as the Zen Master suggested, a sesame bun? Or maybe he's . . .

Tell It Like It Is

The Christian folk musical, Tell It Like It Is, will be presented by the young people of Emmanuel Baptist Church, Sunday at 7 p.m. in the sanctuary.

Mennonite Choir to Perform

The Mennonite male choir from Abbotsford will present a program of sacred music Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Gordon Head Recreation Centre, 1744 Feltham.

The 35-member group, under the direction of Aron Martens, has travelled the Pacific coast singing a range of songs from Negro spirituals and folk to Bach.

The choir is sponsored by the Saanich Community Church.

Rubbish Burned

Numerous bags of rubbish were burned by members of the 2nd Garry Oak Cub Pack, St. Michael's School, at their annual beach clean-up held recently at Shoal Bay.

The pack also plans to hold a bottle drive in the south Oak Bay district, Saturday, May 15.

Other cub activities in the past week included an annual Cub rally at the Metchosin farm of Geoff Mitchell. A total of 330 Cubs and leaders of the Douglas and Juan de Fuca District took part in the event.

The program included games, obstacles races, spear throwing, birling on drums and tug-of-wars.

"Mommy, this rose bush BIT me!"

Wonderful World of Animals

DEAR DR. MILLER: I know you write about all kinds of pets so that's why you are getting my question. I don't have any pets of my own. I don't even want any. I overheard this silly woman on the bus talking about getting a flea tag. That did it for me! Why would anyone want to keep such a stupid pet? And even if they did, why would they bother putting a tag on it? Is it for identification, or what? Don't tell me it is just an ornament! — K.A.

DEAR K. A.: While it is a bit hard to tell fleas apart, not too many people want to, anyway. So there isn't much of a market for that kind of an identification tag. Fleas don't wear flea tags any more than they wear flea collars. They are both for the same purpose. The flea tag is merely a concentration of the same insecticide that is found in flea collars. However, instead of encircling the neck in the collar form, it is concentrated in the tag that hangs on the collar. One advantage to the tag over the collar is that there should be little danger of its contact with the skin. Sensitivity to the flea tag produces a more localized skin reaction than that from a flea collar.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Missy, our cat, has been a terrible clod with her first batch of kittens. She flops on them and ignores them while they scream for help. And air. She often leaves them scattered about every which way. She doesn't feed them when they are hungry, just when she is in the mood. She is a beautiful cat, but spoiled. Her kittens — what's left of them — are beautiful, too. We hope she will be a better mother the next time around. Isn't this generally the case? — N. P.

DEAR N. P.: While the queen may become a little more adept in handling the very newborn kittens, she doesn't learn a great deal as far as their long term care and comfort is concerned. If she is lackadasical about her first litter, she is likely to be lazy and indifferent with other litters too.

ARTS COUNCIL COOL TO CENSOR PROPOSAL

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Arts Council, boss of the state-owned theatres, has balked at the idea of a censor.

Lord Eccles, who as paymaster-general hands out the government subsidies for the arts, told the House of Lords Feb. 3 he was consulting the council about withholding funds from productions of blasphemous plays.

The Arts Council's reply contained three main points: Rejection of censorship, rejection of the imposition of conditions on theatre boards to which the council makes grants, and agreement to an admonition that plays containing material unsuitable for children should be so publicized.

Blacks Progesss

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey by the Joint Centre for Political Studies shows more blacks than ever are being elected to public office in the United States. The survey shows a 22 per cent rise in the number of blacks elected to positions ranging from the local school board to the U.S. Senate.

NORTH VAN GETS NON-POLLUTING TAXI

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—It won't make much difference to the air on the average traffic-clogged street, but North Vancouver now has what may be Canada's first non-polluting taxicab.

The key is an engine that operates on propane instead of gasoline. Propane is a clean-burning fuel that produces only a small fraction of the exhaust fumes produced by gasoline.

Tony Smith, 31, who owns the cab and operates it for North Shore Taxi, said he converted to propane operation about four weeks ago.

"I was sceptical about it at first, but it has surpassed all expectations," he said Friday.

The idea was first suggested to him by a friend who manages a propane distribution company and "reluctantly agreed to" by the directors of the taxi service.

Mr. Smith said his two-year-old cab was converted to propane without charge as an experiment, but said the conversion would normally cost about $400.

"Propane costs about the same as gasoline and I'm getting slightly better mileage with it," he said.

"It also prolongs the life of the engine. I'm not sure how long this one will last but they estimate that a brand new car running propane from the start can be good for 400,000 miles."

Mr. Smith said the propane car will be able to go up to 10,000 miles between oil changes and 30,000 miles on a set of spark plugs.

A ROMANTIC NEW PATTERN
'LOVE'
in gleaming silverplate by International

New at Eaton's. "Love" . . . a timeless response design that brings the aura of romance to any setting. Inspired by wooden love spoons, with symbolically carved handles, whittled by sailors' pen knives for their special girls in home port. By accepting the spoon, a young girl acknowledged the sailor as her suitor. Like today's newest silverplate pattern in 1847 Rogers Bros. the wooden love spoons were encrusted with intricate designs, hearts and flowers. "Love" International Style . . . as new as romance.

Partnership In OAS Won

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada appears headed for partnership, of a kind, in the Organization of American States.

Informed sources predict arrangements will be completed before the end of this year allowing Canada to establish a permanent observer mission to OAS headquarters in Washington.

This could prove to be a first step toward eventual full membership in the inter-American organization, which now embraces the United States, 20 countries of Latin America and three Commonwealth Caribbean states.

Cuba, though technically still a member, has been barred for several years from OAS activities because of its Communist associations.

A major breakthrough in Canada's search for direct political ties with the organization came at an OAS general assembly meeting in San Jose, Costa Rica, earlier this month.

The assembly, a policy-making body, passed a resolution officially creating the status of permanent observer.

The resolution was a direct result of a special plea by Canada, with some elements of arm-twisting, that the OAS get moving on Canada's application earlier this year for observer recognition.

"We believe it is essential to establish satisfactory institutional ties," Andre Ouellet, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Sharp and head of a Canadian observer delegation, told the assembly.

He described this as the crux of Canada's collaboration with the other countries of the hemisphere.

Read in the context of references by Mr. Ouellet to Canada's intention to devote an increasing proportion of its foreign aid budget to Latin America, his statement appears an attempt to apply some economic leverage to the issue of Canada's political association with the OAS.

Officials here deny any intent to coerce the Latin Americans.

But, as Mr. Ouellet told the OAS assembly, a permanent observer mission would be "an invaluable source of information to guide us in the allocation of resources we assign to Latin America."

Canada has been considering OAS membership for years—off and on, in fact, since the organization started as the Pan American Union more than half a century ago.

Successive Canadian governments have looked at the question and then put it back on the shelf.

More Claims Against Firm Dismissed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Claims against Commonwealth Trust Co. were dismissed Friday while others were adjourned to Oct. 4 for hearing in the wind-up proceedings of the defunct company before Mr. Justice Gordon Rae of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

On March 15, the judge had dismissed 129 of 237 claims then made against the company, but the dismissal doesn't preclude further action by the claimants against other Commonwealth group companies.

Original claims against the company totalled over $15 million, the largest being a $7 million claim by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corp., which paid that amount to depositors when the Commonwealth group of companies collapsed in November three years ago.

'Solid Evidence' Links Diet, Heart

By DAVID A. ANDELMAN

BOSTON (NYT) — A group of medical researchers from Harvard University and the University of Quito, Ecuador, have discovered what they believe is solid evidence of a link between low cholesterol diets and the absence of heart disease among the elderly of a remote Andean village.

Dr. Alexander Leaf, Jackson professor of clinical medicine at Harvard Medical School, said in an interview this week that blood serum cholesterol levels as low as 149 were recorded in the population of Vilcabamba, in Loja Province, with average levels among the adult population of 160 to 165. The average for an adult American male of 50 years of age is 250, according to the American Heart Association.

"After extensive cardiovascular studies conducted by the group from the University of Quito, there were only a couple of individuals found with any atherosclerotic heart disease," Leaf reported.

The clinical tests were conducted over a period of several months last year by a team from the University of Quito headed by Dr. Miguel Salvador. Last September, Leaf and a colleague, Dr. Harold Elrick of the University of California at San Diego, also went to the village to conduct clinical tests of their own.

Leaf added that according to church baptismal records, the residents of the village of 800 persons, including 400 adults over 15 years, live to "extraordinarily old ages." The oldest resident of the village was a man of 121 years, but there were several over 100 years old and 38 over the age of 75. Of these 38, electrocardiogram studies were done on the 20 oldest and only two showed any evidence of heart disease.

Dr. Campbell Moses, medical director of the American Heart Association, said that such electrocardiogram studies of a similarly elderly population in the U.S. "would show 95 per cent with cardiovascular disease. These are truly extraordinary findings."

The villagers, who are of European rather than Indian stock, live a primarily agrarian existence, according to Leaf. They rise at dawn and work until nightfall in the fields of their Andean valley, 8,000 feet above sea-level.

A study of their diet by a university of Quito nutritionist, Dr. Gillermo Vela, revealed that the villagers consume an average of 1,700 calories per day and include in their diet 17 grams of animal fat, or approximately 153 calories.

"This is an extraordinarily low figure," said Moses. "The average adult American male consumes 2,400 to 2,600 calories per day of which 450 to 500 are animal fat — about three times the level in this village."

Leaf declined for the present to make a direct link between lack of cholesterol in the diet and the age of the villagers. He cited the possibility of extensive genetic inbreeding due to the isolation of the village as a possible contributing factor to the length of life.

However, he also noted that the villagers grow tobacco and smoke it heavily but it appeared to have no effect on the incidence of heart disease among the villagers. Extensive tests were not conducted on this aspect, however.

Leaf said that the governor of Loja Province had agreed to conduct a census survey of other nearby villages in an effort to determine if this village was unique or whether a similar phenomenon might show up elsewhere. When this census is completed, he plans to return for further observations, including genetic studies and family histories.

Troops Ready For Protest Confrontation

Self-Appointed Analysts Oddly Silent

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — More than just the Public Order (temporary) Measures Act was swept into the dustbin of history Friday midnight.

Along with it went all the garbage prattled for months by many self-appointed spokesmen and interpreters of the French fact in Canada.

Besides not being elected by the downtrodden people they claimed to represent these and lesser-known experts had a common bond in their sometimes vitriolic denunciation of the act as a brutal measure imposed by English Canada on French Canada.

Counter arguments that the federal government was acting at the behest of Quebec's elected representatives were scorned as "transparent deception.

'WEAK-KNEED'

To Quebec brilliant avant garde Robert Bourassa had proved to be a disappointing strawman who was too weak-kneed as premier to dare seek repressive legislation.

To them it was obvious a power-mad Prime Minister Trudeau had twisted his arm until he whimpered for help to give the constitutional excuse for launching a Machiavellian vendetta against the hated separatists.

It was all a cynical federalist plot to isolate and silence Quebec's separatistes and intelligentsia the country was assured from countless public platforms as Party Quebecois, FLQ members and sympathizers of both hit the fund-raising circuit to make hay while their sun shone.

The arch-priests of logic reacted predictably when public opinion polls showed even Quebecers didn't believe them. They merely heaped scorn on the polls and shifted their itineraries to address more audiences outside Quebec where the money and true believers abounded.

ONE THEORY

Courageously they railed against the secretly-pleased premiers of English Canada who had looked on in hypercritical silence at Quebec's agony under federal storm troopers and fascist police powers.

At least that's how the theory of a federal conspiracy to grind down Quebec went.

It was all so clear — until the reaction Friday to Ottawa's decision to let the Public Order Act lapse exposed the theory as transparently untrue.

Almost to a man premiers and leading citizens throughout all the provinces save one have expressed pleasure and relief with the federal decision.

PROOF?

The exception was Quebec's complaisant Bourassa who bitterly castigated Ottawa for ignoring his vehement demands the legislation he asked for be extended beyond the federal deadline and that the FLQ be specifically outlawed forever.

So where were the conspiracy theorists who argued so stridently such a short time ago that theirs was the only logical interpretation of what really happened between the two governments during the FLQ crisis?

Here's Where to Get Glimpse of Queen

"Early arrival" is the key directive for citizens who want a glimpse of the city's royal visitors Monday and Tuesday.

After arriving at 6:45 p.m. Monday at the Inner Harbor on the yacht Britannia, the royal party will leave by car at 7 p.m. for city hall, travelling east on Belleville, north on Government, east on Fort, north on Cook, west on Yates, North on Blanshard and west on Pandora.

At 7:30 p.m. the royal family will arrive at the Pandora entrance to city hall and at 7:35 p.m. at Centennial Square through which they will walk to Douglas Street.

From there, at 7:40 p.m., the carcade proceeds south on Douglas, west on Pandora, south on Government, west on Yates, south on Wharf, east on Humbodt, south on Government, west on Belleville, north on Menzies to the Britannia.

Tuesday all streets in the vicinity of the Legislative Building will be blocked to traffic from 8:30 a.m. until after the official provincial welcome ends at 11 a.m.

To the sound of a 21-gun salute, the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Anne will disembark from Britannia at 10 a.m. and proceed east on Belleville, south on Government, west on the main driveway in front of the Legislative Buildings, where the welcoming ceremony will begin at 10:45 a.m.

At its conclusion about an hour later, the royal party, will go to the Provincial Museum and the archives, then down the steps to Belleville Street and west to Britannia.

At 12:30, when they head for the government luncheon at the Empress Hotel, the royal family will travel east on Belleville and north on Government.

At 2 p.m. the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh leave the Empress for up-Island, travelling north on Government, east on Humboldt, north on Douglas to the Trans-Canada Highway.

At 2:20 p.m., Princess Anne departs for Pat Bay airport, north on Government, east on Humboldt, and north on Douglas.

Ceylon Rebels Surrender To Authorities

COLOMBO (Reuter) — Large numbers of insurgents began surrendering to Ceylon government forces today the start of a four-day period set by Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike for them to give themselves up.

An order has gone out to all security forces mopping up the last strongholds of terrorists in various parts of the country instructing them to hold their fire.

A government spokesman said that security forces who up until Friday were continuing their offensive against the extreme left-wing insurrection have been ordered not to launch any offensives unless they are attacked.

The spokesman said that while large numbers are surrendering several hard-core insurgents are still on the rampage, killing civilians, looting stores and food stores and destroying public and private buildings.

He said that about 300 insurgents already have surrendered, but he did not make clear when they had done so. He said about 3,000 insurgents, including those captured and others arrested as suspects, now are in the island's jails.

Those who surrender will be held in army camps until they are moved to rehabilitation centres now being set up.

W. Indians Burn Trudeau Effigy

The demonstration came a few hours after about 60 demonstrators stoned the Canadian high commissioner's house in Georgetown, Guyana, breaking windows but causing no injuries.

About 150 students of the University of West Indies here refused their dinner and trooped out of the hall of residence — a gift from the Canadian government — after word of the Montreal trial verdict reached them.

Shouting "power to the people, death to racism," and "we will fight for the rights of black people," the students marched to the university playing fields.

There they trampled, spit on, and then set fire to the Canadian flag and Trudeau's effigy.

In the trial, one student from the British West Indies island of Dominica and another from Barbados were jailed for terms ranging from six months to almost two years and fined for wilfully obstructing use of the computer centre at the university during demonstrations in February, 1969.

Demonstrators Plan Disruption

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hundreds of military policemen standing ready just across the Potomac, anti-war demonstrators are drumming up support for militant activities they hope will disrupt the United States government.

The U.S. defence department announced early today that as a precaution it transferred "a few hundred personnel of the 519th Military Police Battalion from Fort Meade, Md., to Fort Myer, Va."

That puts the troops within two miles of the four main Potomac River bridges over which thousands of federal employees commute from suburban Virginia into the District of Columbia every working day.

The demonstrators — in their most ambitious campaign in the capital since the Vietnam war began — have made those bridges and other key traffic intersections in the Washington area targets for disruption Monday and Tuesday.

By tying up traffic at those 21 points, the protesters contend, they can bring the federal city to a halt.

CITY READY

But the federal city is ready, officials say.

Deputy Attorney-General Richard Kleindienst called threats to shut down the government "just a lot of hot air." He said 7,300 police and National Guard troops will be on hand to prevent traffic tieups. The Pentagon added six helicopters to the force, some choppers to ferry high officials to work, others big enough to move cars from the highways.

The demonstrators launched a series of rock concerts to boost crowds for the Monday and Tuesday tieups.

Many of the youthful campers streamed into the city overnight to join an estimated 1,500 who had camped just west of the Tidal Basin below the Lincoln Memorial.

Friday, 335 anti-war protesters were arrested at the justice department where they blocked every entrance to the building in a sit-down campaign. The arrests brought to 1,200 the number made by Washington police during a week of demonstrations on Capitol Hill and at various governmental agencies.

PREDICTS 50,000

Rennie Davis, a demonstration organizer, predicted that up to 50,000 persons will be on hand for the sit-ins.

Police estimated far fewer. Briefings held on Capitol Hill for members of Congress included estimates of 5,000 to 10,000. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, one of those briefed, said officials assured him there will be no encirclement of the Capitol, which had been predicted.

And Kleindienst promised official Washington the

Cambodia Premiership Still Open

PHNOM PENH (AP) — A third Cambodian declined today to take the premiership, and Chief of State Cheng Heng once more turned to the army.

He asked Brig.-Gen. In Tam, president of the National Assembly, to try to form a new government after one of his own advisers, Choup Hell, said he could not undertake the task.

The government crisis began when Gen. Lon Nol, partly paralysed from a stroke, announced Thursday he would stick to his decision announced April 20 to resign.

Cheng Heng then called on Deputy Premier Sisowath Sirik Matak to take the premiership. Sirik Matak declined.

In Tam, 51, is one of the more popular army officers. He is governor of Kompong Cham province. This region encompasses the important eastern sector where the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese maintain major bases. He helped to overthrow Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Jack Scott Wins Top Writing Award

Times columnist Jack Scott has been awarded a $500 first prize in the 13th annual MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. journalism competition, company chairman J. V. Clyne announced Friday night.

Scott's winning entry was an eight-part series titled "Victoria — A Search for Identity" which appeared in the Times in February of 1970.

In it he explored the provincial capital's environment, culture, economic problems and prospects.

Awards totalling $1,700 were presented by MacMillan-Bloedel in two categories: writers on British Columbia daily newspapers with over 25,000 circulation and those working for dailies with under 25,000 circulation.

Rex Malthouse of the Nanaimo Free Press received the $500 first award for smaller dailies for a feature article explaining the purpose and success of experiments on Vancouver Island to increase size and population of salmon by adding fertilizer to lake water.

VETERAN NEWSMAN

Scott, 57, is a veteran Canadian newsman who has worked as an international correspondent and was a long featured columnist with the Vancouver Sun. He started with the News Herald in Vancouver when he was 15.

A national newspaper awards winner, he came to Victoria after five years abroad as roving reporter for the Toronto Daily Star. He spent two years as the first resident Canadian correspondent in Latin America and later headed the London bureau of the Star covering Britain, Europe and the Middle East.

SCOTT

Other assignments have included the Mau-Mau rebellion in Kenya, the six-day Arab-Israeli war and the "missile crisis" in Cuba.

He earlier won a Bowater award for a series on developing nationalism within French Canada.

Among other winners announced Friday night was Colonist columnist Gorde Hunter. He received a $100 honorable mention award for three columns about the non-medical use of drugs, including a critical analysis of the LeDain Commission interim report on the subject.

PEKING, MOSCOW LASH OUT

U.S. 'Defeats' Inspire Oppressed

By The Canadian Press

China and the Soviet Union attacked the United States today for its policies in Indochina during May Day celebrations.

China's revolutionary masses flocked to Peking's Summer Palace for the celebrations, chanting "Long live Mao Tse-tung" and "Down with U.S. aggressors."

The New China news agency accused President Nixon of "Fascist suppression" of anti-Vietnam war demonstrators in the U.S. and denounced "U.S. policies of aggression and racial discrimination."

PLEDGES SUPPORT

"We proclaim anew from Red Square that our party and people will continue to support the just cause of the heroic peoples of Vietnam and Cambodia, the peoples of the Arab countries and all fighters of aggression and suppression, for the freedom of the peoples."

The New China news agency said "brilliant victories" won against U.S. and allied forces in Indochina have "greatly inspired the oppressed people and nations of the world in their struggle for liberation.

The agency also attacked the Soviet Union, saying: "Many medium-sized and small nations long bullied by U.S. imperialism and social-imperialism have daringly stood up one after another to oppose the power politics of the two super powers."

East Germany was the only Warsaw pact country to celebrate May Day with a military parade. The Soviet Union and other Warsaw pact countries have dropped the military parade in favor of workers' meetings.

DISPLAY GIANT ROCKETS

In Warsaw, Polish Communist leader Edward Gierek warned against sowing discord and "high-handedness" in a speech to thousands of May Day demonstrators.

The celebrations were the first organized mass demonstrations since food-price riots last December.

In Prague, Gustav Husak, Czechoslovak Communist party leader, said that the three-year crisis in his country's political, economic and social life has ended.

Wars to end all wars didn't seem t' work. Now they hev demonstrations t' end all wars—an' they might jist be makin' some headway.

NO TIME FOR FRIVOLITY as these miniature musicians bear down on their pint-sized violins. More than a dozen young fiddlers appeared on stage this week in the last of Victoria Music Festival string classes. They are all students of the Suzuki method which is taking strong hold in Victoria. Tots of two and three quickly learn how to use the scaled-down instruments.

Better Weather Seen For Royal Visit

The weatherman is holding out tenuous hope for good weather during the two-day first stage of the royal family's visit to Victoria.

Rain is forecast for Sunday morning, with clearing expected in the afternoon and "fairly good weather" Monday and Tuesday.

The weatherman said today a disturbance moving across the southern part of the Island and the mainland had weakened a bit, enough to avert showers which had been forecast earlier for Tuesday.

The tour will mean a day off school Tuesday for 33,000 students and 1,360 teachers in the Greater Victoria School District. Administrative staff will be working as usual.

Welcoming fanfare will be joined by Christ Church Cathedral, which announced today that tower bells will be "sounding a joyful welcome . . . expressing loyalty and affection of the people of this city and province" when the royal party arrives Monday night and again May 11.

The possibility of trouble in Centennial Square Monday night was suggested today by the organizers of a wieners-and-beans handout in the square.

The Low Income Group, representing welfare recipients, plans to offer free food during a half-hour visit at city hall by the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne.

Walter Olszewski, president of the group, said no licence had been obtained from the city for the "poor peoples' banquet."

"If the police want to scoop us up, let them go ahead," Olszewski said.

"But if they adopt bullying tactics, there are a few members of our group who aren't going to let them get away with it. A rallying cry will go up, that's for sure."

Group volunteers planned to soak their 20 pounds of dried beans overnight tonight and cook them Sunday. The "banquet" is set for 7 p.m. Monday, about the time the Royal party leaves the Britannia for city hall.

Cadets to Primp For Iffy Visitor

The weather will be watched with mixed emotions at Royal Roads Military College next week.

Tea with the cadets is on the alternate schedule for Princess Anne if weather forces cancellation of a flying visit by the princess to Tofino to officially open Pacific Rim Park.

She is scheduled to fly by RCMP Twin Otter to Tofino and back in a quick three-hour trip that is to include a walk on the beach as well as the opening ceremonies.

If bad weather prevents that expedition, she'll join cadets and staff in a full-dress tea on the terrace at Royal Roads. If the weather's good here and at Tofino, there will be no royalty at the college's royal tea.

Little Hope Indicated To Avert City Strike

Negotiators for the city and outside municipal workers met separately in morning and afternoon sessions with a provincial mediator today in a last-ditch effort to avert a strike which could be called Monday.

The strike, which would cut such services as garbage collection, street cleaning, road maintenance, parks care and sewage and drain clearing, is threatened by members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The city was standing pat in today's talks on its final offer to the union, two wage increases of 7½ per cent each over two years. Base rate for the workers now is $2.93 an hour.

At city hall this morning, mediation officer Clark Gilmour met alternately with municipal representatives in the mayor's office and with union negotiators gathered upstairs in council chambers.

Gilmour made two trips between the groups before Ald. Ove Witt announced that talks had been suspended until 3:30 p.m., to permit Victoria delegates to attend a long-planned capital regional district seminar.

TIED UP

"It would not be a good idea if no one showed up for the seminar from the municipality which proposed it in the first place," Witt said.

Although union representatives remained huddled over the city's offer in council chambers, little hope for averting a strike was held by the city.

Mayor Courtney Haddock, who said he has been tied up through much of the negotiation period with preparations for the Royal visit, reportedly has prepared a final appeal to the workers should the talks fail. His appeal is believed to ask the union not to put personal interests ahead of the city as a whole.

NOTICE GIVEN

Union spokesmen declined comment on progress in the mediation attempt. The union gave the necessary 72-hour strike notice some time ago, but no strike would be legal until the mediation officer has submitted his report.

About 270 outside workers are involved in the dispute.

The city stand has been supported by Sidney council, who said in a letter to Mayor Haddock Friday the municipality was supporting Victoria and would take the same position if a dispute arises there.

A strike next week would affect the city's efforts to present a scrubbed and shining face for the royal visit, which begins Monday night.

Volunteers Needed For Crash Pad List

Anyone who will put up young travellers for one or more nights this summer can get on the Summer Crash Pad list in Ottawa.

This service will supplement hostels which aren't expected to accommodate all the youthful transients who will be on the road between June and September.

The following information is requested from people who want to get on the list: preference of male or female guest, how many nights they can stay, fees if any, telephone and complete address.

Inquiries should be sent to Summer Crash Pad Service, 3rd Floor, 102 Bank St., Ottawa.

Just over 300 names have been listed to date, according to a release, and many more are needed.

In Victoria, Cool Aid maintains a list of about 20 families where couples who don't want to be separated can be billeted. The organization would like to get more names for billets, said worker Laurie Smith.

BIBLIOGRAPHY PROJECT

Uvic Hires Ousted Librarian

John Lort, former chief librarian of the Victoria Public Library, has been appointed bibliographer by the University of Victoria.

His assignment — to produce a bibliography of British Columbia encompassing the years 1900 to 1965.

It is six months to the day, Nov. 1, that he was forced to resign by the library board because of his opposition to some of the recommendations made in the controversial efficiency survey made by the Vancouver management consultant firm of Woods, Gordon.

Dr. R. H. Roy, associate professor of history at the university and a member of Uvic's Social Science Research Centre, said Lort was chosen out of a field of "between 15 and 20 applicants from both the United States and Canada."

He estimates the bibliography will take at least three years to complete.

"We didn't know that Mr. Lort would be applying — we're fortunate to have a man with such an extensive knowledge of B.C. history."

Roy said the volume will be the third to have been initiated by the university as a centennial project.

The first bibliography, which covered the years 1849 to 1900 contained 2,200 entries. Its bibliographer was Mrs. Barbara Lowther, head of the documents-serials department of the university's library.

The second volume, covering 1748 to 1848, had 600 entries and was prepared by Mrs. G. M. Strathern, now a member of the library staff at the University of Western Ontario.

Roy said the new bibliography will be much more extensive than its predecessors because of the amount of material recorded for those years.

"It will be a tremendously useful book, both for historians and those in the social sciences."

Mrs. Margaret Edwards, who helped in the preparation of the second bibliography, will be Lort's assistant.

The bibliography will be a compilation of everything published about B.C. during the period concerned, with the exception of government documents, newspaper reports and magazine articles.

Roy said the provincial government has already compiled a bibliography of government documents.

"I was stunned to hear about a year or so ago," said Roy, "that there are 110 newspapers publishing in B.C. They need a bibliography of their own."

Since the project was started financial assistance has been given by both the Canada Council and the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation. The latter provided $1,500 in 1965-1966 and two grants from the council in 1966-1967 contributed another $7,500.

Merger Announced By Private Schools

Amalgamation of St. Michael's and University schools here the two oldest independent schools in British Columbia, was announced today.

The school will be known as St. Michael's University School.

The union will make the school the second largest independent school in the province, said Peter Caleb, headmaster of St. Michael's who has been appointed headmaster of the merged school. St. George's in Vancouver is the largest.

St. Michael's, at 820 Victoria, has 170 students. University at 3400 Richmond has 130.

John Nation, president of the board, said the amalgamation will provide boys at St. Michael's with additional sporting facilities.

"Up to now St. Michael's has been a day school," he said. "It can now allow for boarders. They will use the dormitories at the senior school."

Caleb, headmaster at St. Michael's for seven years, said immediate plans call for the refurbishing of all dormitories at the Richmond Road school.

"Despite new classes and a new library, St. Michael's is bursting at the seams," he said.

$5,000 Damage In City Blaze

An early morning fire caused about $5,000 damage to the top floor of a four-suite apartment at 1163 View today.

The city fire department official said the blaze which broke out shortly before 7:30 a.m. was confined to the living room of one suite.

20-FOOT-HIGH REPLICA

Museum to Make 'Discovery'

The Provincial Museum this summer will launch its most ambitious project in its three years — a full-sized replica of the stern-to-midship section of Captain George Vancouver's HMS Discovery.

While it may be only half a ship, Dan Gallagher, museum curator of history, believes Capt. Vancouver would approve the museum plans.

The section will be an exact replica, more than 20 feet in height — not a makeshift," he said. "It will be a detailed job undertaken by experts."

The stern section was chosen because it was the most interesting part of the ship, containing the captain's cabin, plus a good part of the deck.

The exhibit will tell the story of Vancouver's voyage of discovery in 1792-93-94 which included the charting of Vancouver Island and mainland waters.

His chart is considered a masterpeice of map-making.

Other areas on the Discovery will be used to display B.C.'s maritime history.

The replica will form part of the human history exhibit project featuring B.C. history.

"We hope to start the Discovery in July," said Gallagher. "It's a tremendous project and will take at least a year to complete."

Ted Roberts of Delta, who has spent years of research on the construction of the vessel and its history, will be in charge of the project.

SISTERS DONATE OLD SCHOOLHOUSE

One of the oldest schools in British Columbia will get a new lease on life.

The Sisters of St. Ann have donated to the Provincial Museum their old wooden schoolhouse built in 1858 when British Columbia was still a colony.

The school is on Humboldt facing south near Blanshard.

History curator Dan Gallagher said the building will be moved to a site in the Thunderbird Park - Helmcken House area and used as a museum classroom.

The Victoria Real Estate Board has offered to pay cost of moving.

The school, with a floor area of about 20 by 35 feet, will be renovated.

PHONE RINGS, THE call is from Portsmouth, England. For a moment, three voices volley to and fro. They belong to a male British operator, one of our Times switchboard ladies, and a third party who seems to be speaking from the bottom of a well.

Then things sort themselves out, and here's Beau Tracey of Oak Bay with a message to impart.

On Sunday, as an unofficial ambassador of goodwill, he plans to convey an advance welcome from Victoria to Prince Philip.

A nice gesture. But will Ernest J. "Beau" Tracey, who lives at 2411 Epworth Street when at home, kindly explain what he's doing in England, and how he proposes to deliver his greeting?

Tracey, voice coming in more clearly now, proceeds to oblige.

The Royal Marine Association is celebrating its 25th anniversary in Portsmouth. Tracey, a former Marine and a veteran of the First World War raid on Zeebrugge, wouldn't have missed it for anything. He grabbed a plane over.

When he learned that Prince Philip and Lord Louis Mountbatten planned to attend, he decided to offer the prince an informal salute from this city.

"I mean to pass on Victoria's best wishes and hopes for a happy visit," Tracey said. "And I don't think it would be out of line to hope that Her Majesty's cold is on the mend."

For gallant ex-marine Tracey, now a hardy 71, this will be a second meeting with Mountbatten. The first was in Belgium three years ago, at ceremonies commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Zeebrugge assault.

Only 17 marines from Tracey's platoon of 40 returned from that battle fought upon St. George's Day of 1918. Tracey, with a shrapnel wound for a souvenir, remained in the service until 1948. Then he fulfilled a long-held ambition by retiring to Victoria.

Beau wishes he could be home for Tuesday's Royal visit, but his flight schedule won't land him here quite in time. Still, to Oak Bay's self-appointed emissary go the first words of welcome!

If you belong to practically any club, association, organization or committee, there's a chance that you may one day find yourself joed to take charge of public relations. One of your tasks will then be to keep the press informed of your group's significant doings.

It's a thankless job, but here are a few do's and dont's that will make it easier for you and us.

Do supply all necessary names, places, times and dates.

Names are tricky. You may feel like an idiot when you ask John Smith to spell it out. But for all you know, he may be Jon Smythe.

Be sure to supply us with first names as well as last. Or, if the subject prefers, use his first-name initials. (Not just "Mr. Doe," or "J. Doe," but "J. W. Doe.") If he has a title — vice-president, secretary-treasurer, general manager — tuck that in, too, making sure you get it right.

If you don't type, do write clearly. We're pretty good at deciphering spider-crawl scribbles, but that takes time, a commodity often in scant supply.

While we're glad to offer suggestions if we have 'em, don't expect us to think up campaigns, presentations and newsworthy angles for you. That's your job as public relations rep.

If you possibly can, do your dropping in before 10 a.m. or after 2 p.m. What with a deadline to meet and a paper to put to bed, the hours between are busy-busy-busy.

Don't tell a newsroom denizen that your group has just purchased advertising space and in consequence expects a big news spread. His eyes will redden and he will begin to snarl.

And speaking of space, don't be too disappointed if your item is boiled down to the essentials. Our news columns are elastic only to a point, and the pressure on them is terrific.

That's it for this spring-scented week, and off now with kind thoughts for six senior students at George Pearkes Clinic. Working like beavers, the kids have made 60 yellow silk arm-bands to be worn by attendants on the Royal visitors.

Drugs Before Concert Avoided by Rubinstein

By MICHAEL BENNETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The handshake is firm, understating the power of the slightly spatulated fingers of Artur Rubinstein's right hand, and the audience with a genius begins.

Touching his surprisingly wrinkle-free brow, he ponders a headache acquired from an hour of indiscriminate television viewing and wonders if he should take an aspirin.

"I have never taken drugs before a concert," he says, arching his fuzzy white eyebrows to accentuate the statement.

"If I did, I might find myself smiling at a mistake in a passage from Chopin. That would never do!"

It's been 80 years since four-year-old Artur passed around cards reading: "Artur the great piano virtuoso" in his home town of Lodz, Poland.

He will complete a gruelling 46-concert tour of North America this year in two months, just before his 85th birthday.

"People are beginning to look at me as if I were some sort of freak," he says.

"At my age, they think it's unnatural. I do all the things I shouldn't. I stay up until 2 in the morning, smoke a good cigar, exercise every day . . . you know, running and things like that.

"If I didn't love what I'm doing, I wouldn't do it. I'll continue to play even if the people stop paying to see me."

At 11, he gave a technically difficult Mozart concert and shocked his teacher by improvising a Mendelssohn Lied Ohne Worte for an encoure.

"It's unnatural for a seven-year-old to be playing the complete works of Liszt or Beethoven — I think it must be a gland problem," Rubinstein recalls now.

"I remember a brilliant boy named Kenneth Wolfe. He was only 12 years old, but he was the best in his science class at university. Unfortunately, he lost it all by the time he was 20.

"I'm sure if the medical men were given the opportunity, they would discover something wrong somewhere."

His first public appearance in London was at Queen's Hall with his old friend Pablo Casals; he was only 20.

Rubinstein became the darling of English society, appearing regularly in The Tatler and The Sketch, but the critics refused to take him seriously as an interpreter of Beethoven.

"Audiences, especially in England, were very pedantic. They paid to hear every note and if you didn't give it to them . . . But in Russia and Poland, the Slav countries, people were more interested in the emotion and interpretation of Beethoven.

"They had a fire, a passion for the music. I am absolutely not a specialist — I fought that with a vengeance."

BORN WITH TALENT

"I was born with a talent for interpretation, not composition.

"I can change from one composer to another, like a chameleon. My whole musical being is transformed.

"When I stop playing a Beethoven sonata and I have to go into Ravel's Forlana or Poissons de Or by Debussy, I change my whole musical nature to that of another person."

Rubinstein says the real critics are artists themselves, people who look at a concert objectively and relate to it emotionally.

"Theirs is a personal involvement. It's not just, 'Toscanini played such and such last night; the first movement was too slow and the second too fast.'

"Shall I tell you an anecdote?

"I have a friend who is a porter at the Savoy Hotel, where I always stayed in London. At least I think he liked me, although he may have liked my tips.

"The day after my concert he came up to me and said: 'Oh, Mr. Rubinstein, did you see The Daily Mail? They loved you.'

"However, when I bought a copy, I couldn't find anything about the performance.

"Are you sure it wasn't The Daily Telegraph" I asked him.

"He got me a copy of The Daily Mail and do you know what it said: 'The Old Man Jumps the Banister Again.'

"You see there were six steps leading up to the stage and I always took them three at a time, but when I read the newspaper, I wasn't looking for old men and banisters."

Manson's 'Power' Disputed

MONTREAL (CP) — Reports that Charles Manson had overwhelming control of the women members of his "family" are somewhat inaccurate, says George Bishop, author of a book about the Manson murder trial.

There were two sides to the man recently sentenced to death for the Sharon Tate murders in Los Angeles, he said in an interview.

"For as many girls who saw him as a charismatic figure, there were those who didn't.

"There were girls who told me of cruelties and sadism and pathos. He often resorted to gimmicks under the guise of sanctity and often cheated and received.

"He often pounded his girls' heads against a wall or threatened to cut off their breasts if they failed to do as he ordered. "He would also express a belief or devotion to one thing, then abandon it."

Bishop, a "morning man" for Montreal radio station CJAD in the early 1950s before leaving to begin a writing career, compiled reports of in-chamber and at-bench discussions between the judge and lawyers at the Manson trial for his book, Witness to Evil.

He said he first became involved in the trial when Art Linkletter asked him to sit in and listen for a possible drug angle in the case. Linkletter has been interested in excessive drug use since his teen-age daughter, Diane, died of causes related to narcotics addiction.

"There was a drug angle to the case, but it was really overshadowed by the killings themselves."

Judge Charles H. Older, Bishop added, exercised "a distinct propriety and judicial distance" while in the courtroom.

"But in his chambers, it was a different story. He really told the defence lawyers what he thought of them and their clients in no uncertain terms."

Hospital Meeting

A sponsoring group to organize a Peninsula hospital society will meet on Monday at Rest Haven Hospital.

A. N. Howe of that hospital board will be meeting chairman.

After a licence to operate the new society is issued, a public meeting will be called to explain principles behind operation of the 150-bed acute and extended-care hospital.

The public will be invited to purchase membership at $1 each and a board of trustees will include four members appointed by the sponsoring group and six elected by the membership.

F. L. Bell, administrator of Rest Haven Hospital, says that the functional program for the new Peninsula hospital has now been accepted by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, the Capital Regional board and Rest Haven board and will be in the hands of the architects Wagg and Hambleton shortly.

Tribute To Rotary

Tribute will be paid the Victoria Rotary Club Wednesday afternoon for its help in acquiring new premises for the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Mayor Courtney Haddock will be on hand for the official opening at 2 p.m. of the new branch office and White Cross Centre at 1450 Elford St.

Open house will be held from 2 to 4 p.m.

BE YOURSELF

Are you being held back by qualities or shortcomings you wish you didn't have?

If so, it may be time to learn the facts about yourself.

Where do you start? Many people are literally having their lives transformed by starting with God. They are finding that as their understanding of God grows their spiritual relationship to God becomes more apparent.

And through this they are discovering good qualities in themselves they never knew they had.

If you would like to learn what such an enlightened view of yourself can mean to your life, hear Colonel William Little of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

Grand Theft Charged In Computer Espionage

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — No one took particular notice of the deck of 515 cards that had spilled out of the computer at Information Systems Design Corp. here.

After all, the computer lives on the seven-by-three-inch cards. They are the key to its electronic secrets.

Routinely, a courier took the cards to an ISD customer, the Shell Development Corp., because they carried a notation from the computer indicating that Shell had ordered the information on them by telephone.

The cards stayed at Shell in Emeryville, Calif., a little more than two weeks until, early in February, a routine check showed that the company had never ordered them.

Back went the cards from Shell to ISD and that's when the alarm sounded as ISD surmised it had been the victim of the newest form of industrial espionage—theft of information from a computer by telephone.

With help from the records of the very computer that had been victimized, ISD reconstructed what had happened.

On Jan. 19, 1971, at about 6:15 p.m. California time, someone picked up a telephone hooked into his own computer and dialed an unlisted number which was answered automatically by ISD's multi-million-dollar Univac 1108 computer in Oakland.

ISD, a computer service company with customers all over the country, has several such numbers for customers to plug themselves directly into the ISD computer.

The caller then dialed a series of numbers which identified a specific program stored in the ISD's computer's memory bank. The computer zeroed in on the program, stored on a large rotating gold-colored drum.

The caller then used cards at his computer to ask questions about the particular program. The computer answered.

The key thing that had been taken was a program which enabled a computer to produce diagrams, charts or graphs on any subject in a customer's office via telephone lines.

For instance, if an aerospace company was designing a jet engine and wanted a picture of what it would look like, they could put the specifications into the ISD computer. The computer would then send back to the requesting company electronic signals which would draw a real picture of the engine.

ISD's main customer for the program is Aerojet-General Corp. of Folsom, Calif. and out of that connection arose a criminal charge of grand theft and a $6-million civil damage suit, both hitting at an ISD competitor.

In papers filed in connection with the court actions, ISD President George T. Steeley said that the University Computing Co. of Palo Alto, Calif., also supplies computer services to Aerojet-General.

Steeley's court declaration said: "In recent months, UCC has been attempting to take the Aerojet business from ISD.

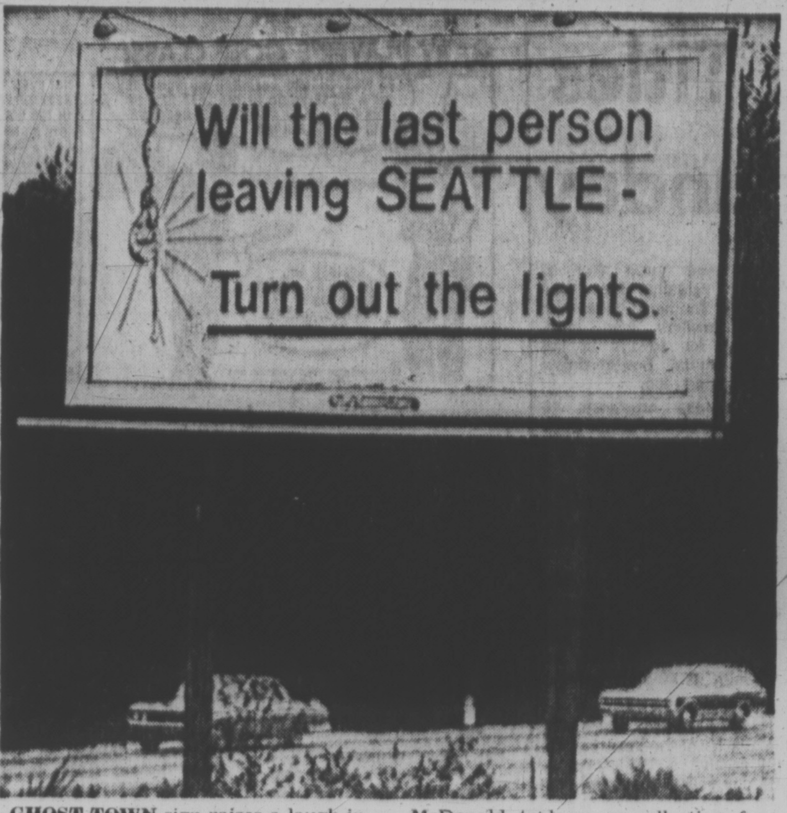
"Personnel of ISD who often visit Aerojet have reported to me that Mr. Hugh Jeffrey Ward II, an employee of UCC, was assigned by UCC to develop programs for UCC which would allow it to provide the same kind of remote services which ISD's existing programs allow it to provide."

Probation Office For Sidney

The first probation office to be located outside the headquarters for Greater Victoria opens in Sidney next week on Third Street.

Probation officer Brian Malen says there is a tremendous work load in this area which includes Central and North Saanich, as well as Sidney.

Malen, who arrived in Canada 18 months ago from England where he served as probation officer, says that the largest number of his cases are in their late teens.



GHOST TOWN sign raises a laugh in Seattle where aerospace industry layoffs and general depressed conditions have left 70,000 jobless. Real estate agents Jim Youngren and Bob McDonald took up a collection for the sign because "people expect to see a ghost town here these days." The sign is on the U.S. 99. (AP Wirephoto).

Uvic Faculty Rejects Partridge Probe Call

The Faculty Association at the University of Victoria Friday rejected a move by president Bruce J. Partridge to establish a tribunal to investigate a contract and tenure dispute with three professors.

Partridge announced earlier in the week that Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the B.C. Supreme Court had been asked to nominate three men to examine the cases of Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and Toby Graff.

The names of the nominees have not yet been rleased."

CENSURE THREAT

The Canadian Association of University Teachers had threatened Uvic with censure if an impartial external tribunal was not appointed by the university administration.

The tribunal called for by Partridge, however, differs substantially from the proposals of the CAUT, which recommended a neutral chairman and representatives of the disputants.

In separate ballots both students and faculty voted solidly in support of the CAUT recommendations.

The Faculty Association strongly criticized the president's tribunal in an afternoon press release that listed seven points of objection.

"The Faculty Association executive notes that the board of governors at the university admit the need for an outside review of the cases . . .," the release says.

"Despite the fact that on several occasions a large number of faculty has voted that the university accept the CAUT recommendations for review (at last vote 180 so voted), the board has instead accepted a proposal endoresed by 26 professors."

The release, signed by past president Don Harvey and new president Dr. Charles Doyle, said the executive "must reject" the proposal.

The association objected that while it had already been "established to our satisfaction that natural justice has not been done," the proposed panel's terms of reference did not include "investigation of the substantive issue" — that is, whether or not tenure should be granted to Goede and Jain and Graff promoted.

NO COMMENT

Meanwhile, the CAUT's executive secretary Alwyn Berland declined to comment on the Partridge proposal or a rebuttal by the president to a report harshly critical of himself and the board.

"CAUT has just received president Partridge's comments on the CAUT report, including the proposal to appeal to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of B.C. to nominate a panel of enquiry into recent events on campus," a news release signed by Berland said.

We have not yet had time to study president Partridge's comments.

ELIJAH ORATORIO

Mendelssohn's great oratorio, Elijah, is to be performed by the Saanich Oratorio Choir and Orchestra, conducted by Helmut Janzen, next Saturday at McPherson Playhouse.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Adele Lewis, Eleanor Bertram, Arthur Wiebe, Ron Bermingham and boy soprano Alan Strahan in the solo parts.

Organ accompaniment will be provided by Jack Lenagham and concert master for the full orchestra will be Elfreda Gleam.

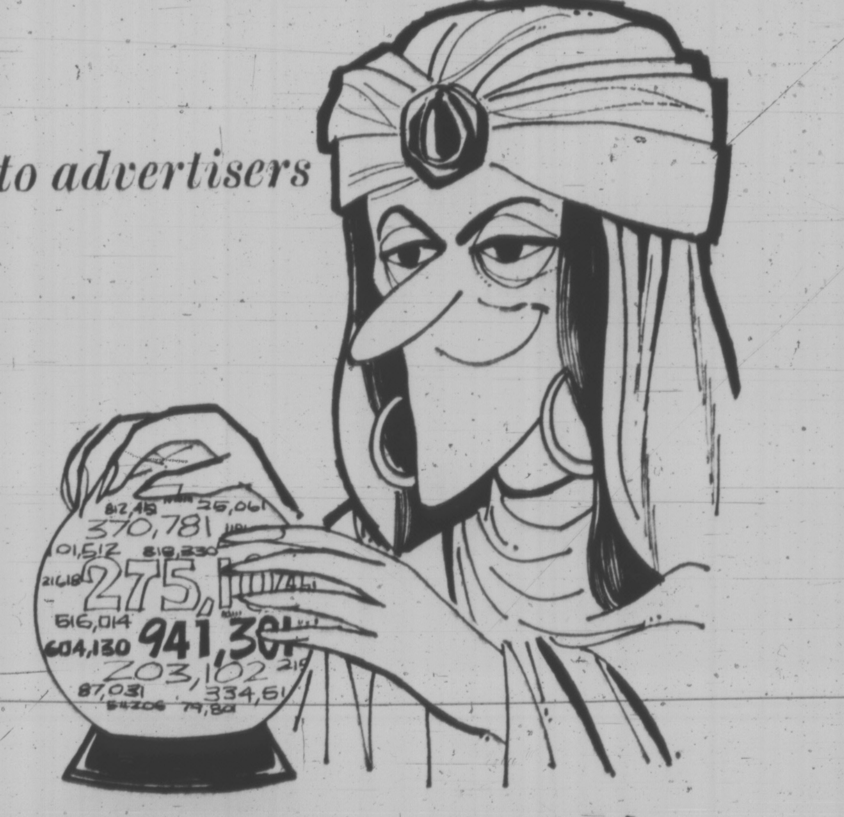
memo to advertisers



CRYSTAL BALLS JUST DON'T SEEM TO GRAB US
We read a good deal about advertising research and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation—figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.
What ever happened to the good old how-many-copies-were-really-sold counts? That's the kind of stuff advertising rates are based on!
And it's just for that reason we have a no-nonsense, no-mystery ABC audit report of our circulation audience.
If you aren't strong on crystal balls either, just ask to see a copy of our latest report from the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

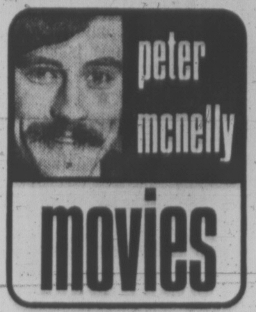
A Souped Up Film on Familiar Western Theme



'Valdez Is Coming'

Somewhere out there in Marlboro Country the deputy sheriff turned in his badge and went gunning for justice.

He wanted Frank Tanner to pay $100 to the Indian woman whose husband had been murdered. The deputy, whose name was Valdez, figured Tanner was responsible.

Tanner thought the suggestion was ridiculous. After all, the dead man was only black, and the Indian could go back to the reserve. Besides, Valdez was only a Mexican. With what gall did he tell Tanner how to spend his money?

Valdez kept popping up like a guilty conscience, hat in hand, asking about the $100. Well, Tanner fixed him — almost.

Valdez Is Coming, for the most part, tells a pretty clever story on the old themes of humiliation and revenge. The movie's been souped up with some modern angles on racism, but basically it's a familiar tale.

After Tanner humiliates Valdez into silence by tying him to a cross and letting him find his way home, the deputy stops asking and starts taking.

He kidnaps Tanner's girl and leads Tanner's posse on a bloody chase. The deal? Return of the woman for $100.

Venerable Burt Lancaster turns in a strong, comic performance as the gentle deputy. Lancaster, always a big man, looks here to weigh about 220 middle-aged pounds.

Hard to imagine him as a Mexican, but the make-up crew did a presentable browning job on his skin. Though for some unforgivable reason Lancaster looks darker in some scenes than in others.

This unevenness is matched by a script which is alternately witty then dull as dialogue from Bonanza. Tanner's number one gunman El Segundo (Barton Heyman) fires off some of the best one-liners in the film. And a young actor named Richard Jordan does his best to upstage Lancaster as a parasitic coward who would rather switch than fight.

As the plot develops, Valdez shows he can outgun and outfox Tanner's men. Lancaster is a more intriguing outlaw than civil rights lawman, and this explains why the second half of the film is so much better than the first.

The ending shines with ironies. Maybe Valdez doesn't get the $100, but maybe Tanner doesn't get his woman back. From an acting point of view, Tanner won't lose much. His girl, Susan Clark, appears destined for obscurity.

Jon Cyper as Tanner also puts in only a routine job, but that may be the character's fault, not his.

Valdez Is Coming surpasses the sum of its erratic parts. But without Lancaster, I'd be hard put to tell anyone why they ought to see it.

Raquel Welch

In an Age of Sex Who Needs Symbol?

By MICHAEL BILLINGTON

LONDON — Crouching on the floor of her caravan clad only in the figure-hugging vest and shorts of a soccer player, Raquel Welch pulled a gun from her holster, pointed it at me and fired. And if this sounds like the erotic fantasy of a masochistic soccer buff, I can only assert that every word is gospel truth.

For currently Miss Welch is playing the gun-toting heroine in a Burt Kennedy Western, "Hannie Caoulder," being made in southern Spain and she was proudly demonstrating her speed on the draw. The soccer gear? This was to oblige a photographer and to demonstrate her newfound passion for soccer.

Never having met a sex-goddess before I was a little unsure what to expect. In fact, Miss Welch turns out to be a bright, strong-willed, conversationally fluent girl who justifies her own observation, on an American David Frost Show, that "The female mind can be an erogenous zone."

Physically, also, she's not unremarkable: The high cheekbones, the leonine hairstyle, the slightly wild eyes suggest she might conceivably have emerged from the real jungle as opposed to the showbiz jungle. It may be a paradox that in an age when sex is as much a part of cinema-going as a packet of peanuts we still have a universal sex-symbol; but who cares about paradoxes?

Raquel Welch was born in Chicago of a Bolivian father and part-English mother, moved to La Jolla in California at the age of 2 and says that she wanted to become an actress from the age of 5.

"I never wanted to be a nurse or a social worker. But, coming from a town without any theatre, I got involved with movies early on. They became the source of my fantasies and I created my own little world around them. I was also sent to ballet classes, chiefly so that I should keep out of trouble . . . Later on I studied drama at San Diego State College but when I came to Hollywood I had no more experience than that of a naive little small-town girl diligently pursuing a hobby."

She made amazingly rapid progress. She made a teen-age pop movie, "Swinging Summer," that hand "50,000 other people and a story that could have been written on the back of a Band-Aid." She and her husband, Patrick Curtis, formed their own company; and she was spotted by Twentieth Century-Fox executives at a ball.

There quickly followed her first important film, "Fantastic Voyage", in which she and a team of scientists made a 60-minute journey through the human body in a miniaturized submarine.

She doesn't seem umbilically attached to any of her early movies. She recalls one western, "100 Rifles," in which the plot required her to be sprayed with a hose before filming. "I wouldn't mind suffering for the cause of art," she observed, "but not for 100 Rifles." But it was only with "Myra Breckenridge" that she got her first major lead role.

I asked if, given the benefit of hindsight, she would do "Myra Breckenridge" again:

"Under the circumstances, yes. The only thing that worried me about it was the amount of preparation involved; but I dutifully went back and read about the lives of the 1940's stars and saw as many of their films again as I could. The film was a very good thing for me personally but the script might have made Myra a much richer, fuller character . . . But there are plenty of subjects I wouldn't do. For instance, 'Valley of the Dolls' and 'Beyond the Valley of the Dolls,' both of which were pushed vaguely in my direction. I pushed them right back again."

In the past Hollywood's sex queens have, once dethroned, come to notoriously sticky ends; but somehow I can't see this happening to Raquel Welch. She gives the impression of being much too self-aware not to quit while she's ahead of the game.

New Canadian Film Doesn't Measure Up

By VICTOR STANTON

TORONTO — Add one female — the first — to Canada's growing list of native movie makers.

Her name is Sylvia Spring and her first movie, Madeleine Is . . ., opened last week at Toronto's New Yorker cinema, preceding openings in Montreal and early this month in Vancouver where the film was made.

Miss Spring, 28, a native of Galt, Ont., who moved to Vancouver three years ago "to get away from the speediness of Toronto," co-authored, directed and co-produced the 90-minute color film which stars Vancouver actress Nicola Lipman in the title role.

Madeleine Is . . ., which Miss Spring has said is "partly autobiographical," tells the story of a girl living in a hippie environment trying to discover herself and escaping from too-harsh realities in a childhood fantasy involving a clown.

The possibilities in this, which have been developed by other film makers, notably Italy's Federico Fellini, have eluded Miss Spring, both as a writer and as a director.

She introduces a character or sets up a mood then doesn't sustain or develop it. The result is a picture of little artistic or entertainment merit, relying on a lot of cliched outdoor shots to pad a slight story and thin characterizations.

But the film's shortcomings don't quite cloud the fact that Miss Spring has chosen her cast well.

Miss Lipman, in her first movie role, displays a talent for underplaying emotions effectively, but because of the limits of the script and Miss Spring's direction, her Madeleine never develops as more than a celluloid character.

Wayne Specht, playing the double role of David and the clown, on occasion could do with some of Miss Lipman's restraint and subtlety, but as David provides some of the movie's most enjoyable moments.

John Juliani lacks the sinister quality needed by the character of Toro, Madeleine's self-styled radical boyfriend who exhibits his power over her by insisting she never wear panties, but this again is more the failure of Miss Spring than that of the actor.

Miss Spring shot the movie in 30 days on a budget of $100,000, $15,000 of it a grant from the Canadian Film Development Corp. and most of the remainder provided by Glen-Warren Productions Ltd., the producing arm of Toronto television station CFTO.

Madeleine Is . . . will be an entry in this year's international film festival at Cannes, France.

JUST OUT OF JAIL, OH NO, NOT AGAIN?

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Angry Horace Allen of Sarnia returned home Friday after spending five days in jail for refusing to pay a $20 traffic ticket for going through a stop sign.

He was convicted of the charge Monday after a policeman testified he went through the stop sign at "walking speed." Mr. Allen claimed he came to a full stop and went to jail rather than pay the $20.

When he got home after losing a week's wages, Mr. Allen found he had some mail — a ticket from the police department for the same traffic violation.

It turned out to be a clerical error. The department ticketed him twice.

Movie Banned

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — The movie The Liberation of L. B. Jones has been banned from U.S. armed forces theatres in Europe because of its inflammatory effect on race relations, the army said Thursday. A spokesman said the film, dealing with an inter-racial divorce case in a small southern U.S. town, "appeared to be inflaming both to whites and blacks."
